Thread: [\[The Empire\] How to Put Text Into Text for a Cool Looking Design](#)

Magnetize - October 5, 2013, 3:53 pm

This tutorial is in the name of The Empire. This is my simple tutorial on how to Put any Text/ Picture that you would like into text like the image above. I hope you guys enjoy!

Step 1:

Start off by creating a new Photoshop document. Any size will work in this situation but the bigger, the better.

Step 2:

Create a text box that fills the entire document and fill it with what ever you want to be in the background of the main text. When you are done filling the entire page, turn it to about a 45 degree angle. Your product should look like this(with your own text):

Step 3:

Create another text box. For me, I created two more because I wanted to have two different sized texts. Once done, place your text in the middle and make sure it is as large as it could possibly look good. Add effects to your text untill you are content. Here is what your picture should look like now(again with all of your own stuff):

Step 4:

Finally, you need to create a clipping mask with the text. To do this, select your text and make sure it is above the text box that you want in your background. Hold alt and click in between the two layers and it should put the layer inside the other one.

You should end up with something like this:

Congratulations! You are done. Save your work and share with the world!

Well I did follow the tutorial but in the end I was a bit lost because you didn't mention that you need to rasterize the text so that you can do the final step because it is a crucial part , but I ain't hating on you in the end the tutorial helped me because as I have stated on other threads I'm a newbie in photoshop. It is weird that no one has replied to the tutorial neither has said thanks or anything well then I'll be the first to thank you for the tutorial. Here is my result

I am pretty sure that I used the font "Bebas."

It works really well for this.
