

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Just a small thing that's been bugging me

Coffee - October 10, 2013, 1:30 am

On the awards page every award is written in the third person, for example "You can PM Omniscient for donation link"

However, for the Brony award it suddenly switches to first person.

Just a small yet irritating thing since this is the only occurrence of writing in the first person in the entirety of the documents.

muzzy. - October 10, 2013, 2:03 am

If the "grammar nazi" award was ever relevant, now is that time.

tired- - October 10, 2013, 3:22 am

This now also bugs me, a lot. You just had to create a thread about it, didn't you?

Fix it >:C

Skitlz - October 10, 2013, 3:39 am

#awardwhore2013

Nah I'm joking man, I'm sure omni is glad you pointed this out.

Verts - October 10, 2013, 3:45 am

Where's the Grammar Nazi award when you need it?

Coffee - October 10, 2013, 3:55 am

(Oct 10, 2013 03:22 AM)Nope. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This now also bugs me, a lot. You just had to create a thread about it, didn't you?

Fix it >:C

Haha I noticed it last time I was looking to see if the bitcoinage award counted to MD but didn't make a thread, then saw it again and was just like, ok this needs fixed >.<

(Oct 10, 2013 03:39 AM)SlothCoded Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) #awardwhore2013

Nah I'm joking man, I'm sure omni is glad you pointed this out.

Maybe, although it's extra work for him just to change a small error haha

RDCA - October 10, 2013, 4:00 am

The Help Docs team is already fixing it. Just for a status update for those of you who are interested, all the documents besides new ones that have to be written, are done. They just need to be edited and then converted.

Octobers Very Own - October 10, 2013, 4:28 am

I like it, it's funny as hell.

"Get this award from Omni, he's judging you"

"Pm me, I'm judging you"

Not as good is #1!