Please correct the following errors before continuing:

The message is too short. Please enter a message longer than 35 characters.

i mostly get this error even after making the message longer than 35 characters

Those characters include spaces and punctuation. Generally if your post is treading the line of 35 characters it might be worthwhile adding some more stuff to it as it's probably not of a good quality. If you're talking about a subject, don't just say 35 characters worth - it's not a text message. ;)

Well, i never had any problems with it. You probably made a word more than 2 sentences beside each other?

like A.A.A.A.A --> AA (Ignore the .'s lol)

it will shorten it?

It does not include BBCode as well as some other things. Just go well over 35 characters and make the effort.

when i just try to post in some threads even in my own i get this message

If you were high quality you would not have to worry about the character limit in your posts. Really all I have or need to say about this.

Silas Botwin - October 13, 2013, 9:55 am

If you wrote out a reply and got the 35 character error, and instead of just making it longer by adding a word or two, you counted out every letter to make sure it was longer, then I'm sorry...

That's a pretty good way of putting it, actually.

I've never faced any problem regarding this, just try to be hq that'll be good ?

ViN - October 13, 2013, 10:41 am

Make sure your post surpasses 35 characters excluding myCode.

Talu - October 13, 2013, 10:42 am

Just make your reply longer, that'll quickly solve the problem.

I get that rarely. Here is a way to get around it.

He used special characters.

OP, there isn't a problem. You simply haven't filled out the post box with 35 characters. No one else is experiencing any issues with this, so either it's something on your end (which would be very unlikely), or you're just not putting any effort into your posts.

Because the message he posted is the code for invisible characters, hence he used some.

He made the post but now his account is closed. Anyone else want to play games with the character limit?
