I Like Angular but I'm more of a Backbone + Marionette guy. I don't like calling functions in my markup - it's too close to inline scripts. I'm aware of

But for the sake of semantic markup I tossed out Twitter Bootstrap/Zurb Foundation for a more semantic CSS framework called Axis (for which I am one of the core team members) so I do the opposite of appreciate dirty markup on the web.

HOWEVER - that won't stop me from using Angular over Backbone occasionally. I just don't use it for websites - I use it for desktop apps coded in Node-Webkit or mobile apps with Phonegap, because there - the semantic nature isn't as important (though I'm still iffy about the separation of concerns).
