Thread: Anyone else feels like their eyes are being strained when using the modern theme?

ep1capple - October 18, 2013, 10:49 pm

The modern theme is turning out good so far but my eyes feel strained after a while. The colors are too vibrant.

CyberneticTitan - October 18, 2013, 10:50 pm

Just the username and rep color.

If Omni can dim it a little and it shall be fine.

I'm working on that. I'm forcing myself to use it. I also have 2 monitors and keep the old school theme on one. Trying to gauge as best I can visual appeal and eye strain.

The background helped a lot but I may still adjust it a few percent for opacity.

I'm working on it and sorry if your eyes are straining right now. Feel free to use Old School theme until this is fully adjusted.

So far I'm using the new theme and loving it. Keep these changes coming Omni!

SIM-1349466 - October 18, 2013, 11:00 pm

I switched to the modern theme like an hour ago and love it. I do understand how the colors could be bright to others though.

v11 - October 18, 2013, 11:01 pm

I don't mind it at all. I think that it flows very nice.

Clique - October 18, 2013, 11:05 pm

Try using f.lux for the time being.

Really helps, especially at night.

I am using F.lux. That may be one of the reasons I am not feeling any strain.

Wow..kind of a neat program. Using it now to see how it does for my own eye strain. Which btw I have plenty of and these past couple years I've had to start wearing glasses to read and increasing my font sizes on the computer to read. I pretty much can't read anything within 2 feet of my face anymore. :(

Cryptic™ - October 18, 2013, 11:13 pm

Wow I love the new theme now. Looks amazing. Much better than what it did a few days ago.

Clique - October 18, 2013, 11:20 pm

I'm pretty sure that there's computer glasses nowadays.

I think it's fine tbh, I quite like change.

Dan. - October 18, 2013, 11:58 pm

I'm really starting to like the new theme. First it was too dull, now a little bright, we can't be that far from a perfect balance. :3

Well I was trying to get you guys on board initially with the clean slate but too many just wanted to bitch and moan about what they didn't like instead of giving it a chance to settle in.

I knew when I created the theme initially it was only a fresh start and that I had a lot of work to do on it. A good theme like a good website evolve over time and adjust to the needs of the community.

I made a plethora of small changes today that I feel really push the themes punch and integration into MyBB. Right now it's actually more suited to MyBB with custom alterations than the original theme.

P???ce - October 19, 2013, 1:29 am

it was awesome till yesterday :(today something is wrong with colors, I like change but positive change :(

Good Mood Dude - October 19, 2013, 2:07 am

I don't like the new theme colors that much as well.

The old school theme compared to the modern theme is like iOS6 compared to iOS7 lol

Way too colorful?

SoulZeh - October 19, 2013, 2:11 am

The new theme is nice, not to keen on the actual background of the theme, but I love the new colours that have been adding into it.

Even the reputation page colors?
Black background is just horrible to me.
Edit: just checked. The background is now gray but still not good at all to me.

Blizzard - October 19, 2013, 2:17 am

Looks good in my opinion. I don't feel anything much wrong with the colors.

The background is checkered for me, not sure what theme you're on.

S?vant - October 19, 2013, 2:54 am

With F.lux you can also see the difference between normal users and users in a custom usergroup in the who's online list.

Antigen - October 19, 2013, 3:00 am

Yes absolutely, too much color and contrast, I feel strained. I'm using Oldschool theme as time being.

Dastoks - October 19, 2013, 3:20 am i love the new theme ! though i agree the rep colors are abit to vibrant and hurting my eyes. rather then that its amazing!

It responds to me very well. IF it's giving you a hard time try smacking it in the head.

ShadowLock - October 19, 2013, 4:14 am

When I read something in 30 secs my eyes hurts :s

Kolz - October 19, 2013, 4:58 am

Took me a bit to get used to it but with f.lux it's fine. I can see it being painful on new people that aren't used to the colors as they first come here so adjusting it a bit would make it perfect. However I'm not sure I'd have used the purple color for Ub3r as it's already used a lot on the forums currently.

Mobile device compitable, resizes automatically depending on size of your screen.

?NoShame - October 19, 2013, 5:42 am

They new theme is awesome however after a few minutes on it it strains my eye like OP said.

Shoppa - October 19, 2013, 5:43 am

I agree

The Ub3r, L33t and Staff colours are to brightly also rep and links.

I hope this get changed before i need to go see a doctor for my eyes.

McDork - October 19, 2013, 5:48 am

I think it's fine. Obviously it's not perfect but I'm pretty happy. It's definitely more defined.

Correction Correction : I just saw what's called "modern theme" dafaq man!! [I dint know you need to select that from control panel, I thought we are already in the modern theme]

Gosh I couldn't stand that for even a second that scared the shit out of me.. Changed it back to old school, OMG I love this heaven.. this old school is heaven!!!

Edit: Those colours looks like something from a troll forum, my eyes hurt! Thank God I can still use the old school theme!

Are there any MYBB themes that do such?

Usually you have to switch themes to get such functionality, I've never heard of a cross platform theme.

Excalvius - October 19, 2013, 9:25 am

I feel if the Ub3r names are pink now, the awards should be too (per theme).

If this would be possible, that'd be pretty neat.

However if the theme isn't built to be responsive from the absolute beginning, it can be quite time consuming to convert it to a responsive theme.

Omniscient - October 19, 2013, 2:08 pm

As far as I can tell this design works and functions very well with as little of window as 500 but even better at 650-700. That's reasonable for most tablets and cell phones held width wise. The only real layout breaker is signature and post images. This site is very dynamic in width for almost all settings.

The current term is "responsive" but a decade ago it was simply a "dynamic" theme. No real difference really other than maybe there is more focus on mobile and tablet sizes now. I almost never build a site to be fixed width.

This is an example of a responsive website:

<http://www.supercell.net/>

Try to resize your browser window and see how it changes.

I'm with you on that. Fixed width usually causes more problems then it's worth, and in this day n' age people use their phones/tablets commonly to browse websites.

Shoppa - October 19, 2013, 2:16 pm

The name colours are back in the old theme :D

J?ey - October 19, 2013, 2:21 pm

I actually really like the new theme. It honestly looked shit on my iPhone but since I went on a computer it looks A LOT better, I don't even know why.

Edit: I don't care for the user color/bars for l33t/ub3r, maybe I just need to give it time.
