-?Divine- - October 20, 2013, 8:35 am

[img]http://img24.imageshack.us/img24/1800/5o9x.png[/img]

Dynasty has officially begun recruiting. Though I say that the second branch is the core of Dynasty, is it not that everything is fundamentally made of its smaller parts? Can a tree stand tall without a root that attaches it?

The third branch is the lowest, base level of the group. It isn't included into the usergroup on HackForums. Everyone can join as it is completely independent of skill. All who join will take part in weekly assignments and lessons that will be hosted, either on TeamViewer, or on our IRC. The third branch is for everyone who wants to learn and improve. The course is made to make a beginner advance to an intermediate level of knowledge.

Members of the third branch will be given a chance to join the second branch. Everyone who joins the training is given a potential chance to be one of us. How, you might ask? By actively taking part in the free hacking course.

The training course consists of two things: Direct training from a higher branch This means that a skilled member will directly be hosting a lesson and inducting information. The method of teaching is direct and concise. All you have to do is listen. It will also be teaching you about real life scenarios and things you don't find in tutorials. It will gradually pick up in difficulty. Allow me to demonstrate with an example; It starts easy. Your average LFI tutorial does teach you the actual method, but what happens when you can't use the RCE functions? Or what if you don't have a writable directory? Or how would you go with actually locating the access logs without bruteforcing? It will go from easier aspects and after months we will be introducing you to low level exploitation and exploit development.

Indirect training This is done in form of assignments. You will be given a task and reasonable time to finish it. The assignments will start out low, but will get harder and harder. Do not expect unreasonable difficulty as it is in our interest to teach, not scare you. As you do the assignment and look up the information needed to complete it, you will be teaching yourself.

Upon finishing the training, the members that remain will be tested in order to make sure that they've improved and to make sure that they haven't cheated along the way. Members that pass the final test will make it into the second branch and into Dynasty. Please refer to this thread for more information. To clear things up, the third branch is not a part of the usergroup but is an important part of Dynasty nonetheless. Those who prove themselves worthy during the course of training shall be added to the second branch.

As I said, the assignments shall be handed out every week, starting from 27th October. There is no application format as everyone is allowed to take part in the course. To take part in this, you have to register a nick on our IRC and post it in this thread. Please PM Drake Bell about anything regarding them. Restrain yourself from PM-ing other leaders.

irc.dynastyhf.com/6667 #lobby but you can also use the webclient. <http://dynastyhf.com/irc-chat>
Also #irchelp and #QA for questions regarding the group.

I will join the 3rd branch, but I have a few questions - how much must I commit? I do not have too much time each day (sometimes no time at all) and will most likely go a bit slower than others.

How can I participate in learning with a bit less time?

The thing is, I have a busy schedule and I can't do anything online Monday or Tuesday (maybe a bit) and Saturday. I don't have much freetime. Those days that I mentioned I'm gone/busy all day with little to no internet.

It's meant to test some basic programming skills. If you are new to programming, spend a couple evenings to learn the ground basics of a scripting language like php python perl or ruby for example. Seems daunting, but give me anyone with a will to learn and in 3 evenings they should be able to solve this problem in any of those languages.

There is a guy that submitted a part solution with some basic C where he then used some shell scripting to finish it off which is acceptable. We aren't looking for perfect polished code, just something that works and demonstrated the aptitude and willingness of the student!

bandors - October 28, 2013, 2:22 pm

I'm not new to scripting. Give me 2 days and I'll be proficient in any of those langs (I started with Python and Java). It's just that I haven't had any practical uses of it yet. I've got most of the script down, it was easy. I'm stuck on another part that seems stupid now that I've read your post. Can't say more here w/o giving it away.

Defaced assignment, and the chat is dead.

Let me know when the assignment is back up.

Dyme???????????? - November 4, 2013, 5:56 am

Due to a limited number of people actually completing the assignment on time (only 5), we're going to release all ten assignments in one thread in the W&FH section in the near future. Once you've completed each one you'll be tested over team viewer to ensure you didn't cheat. If the chat is dead, start up a conversion. Idling and complaining won't help anything.

We're also contemplating switching over to Skype entirely due to the increasing large amount of trolling and flaming in the irc. We won't be doing anything worthy of the feds attention as a group, so Skype shouldn't pose a disadvantage in that regard.

And as far as the assignment being 'defaced', we expected that to happen. Any skid with havij could've done it; I'm more surprised at the fact it took this long. It was also 'defaced' long after the assignment was due, so it's not really an issue.

Nope, there has only been one assignment so far.

They're going to release all of the assignments at once and put them in the WFH section.

Once you've completed each one you'll be tested over team viewer to ensure you didn't cheat. If the chat is dead, start up a conversion. Idling and complaining won't help anything.

We're also contemplating switching over to Skype entirely due to the increasing large amount of trolling and flaming in the irc. We won't be doing anything worthy of the feds attention as a group, so Skype shouldn't pose a disadvantage in that regard.

And as far as the assignment being 'defaced', we expected that to happen. Any skid with havij could've done it; I'm more surprised at the fact it took this long. It was also 'defaced' long after the assignment was due, so it's not really an issue.

With this said, I close the recruitment for now. We will remain on the IRC though.
