Lol, there's nothing illegal about SQL injection. Don't worry.

This is just an attempt of a shitty programmer.

w0t lol. Trying to hack a website isn't illegal. I'm pretty sure that it's 100% illegal.

it is nothing more than a page which might just record your ip and add them to pay attention on their ids or ips

Maybe his intentions were whitehat related?

No proof of blackhat attempts.

itzthead - November 1, 2013, 12:17 pm

Oh shit now my ip has been logged too. I'm goin away for a long time man..

Without the owners consent it's the same thing.

That's like you coming home to me find me in your house and I say "Well I only did it to show how insecure your properties sekurity izzz."

But it's OK if you explain how you got into the house, right?

If you're trolling: pens > pencils

If you're being serious: No.

I was trying, but your misunderstanding killed it. :(

Oh, do explain the 'pens > pencils' ref.?

So when you are exploiting google for vulnerabilities is it illegal? No.

Instead they PAY you.

Yes, because they have given you consent:

Dumb fuck.

It's actually diffrence and would be a useless comparing, google are allowing people to search for vulnerabilities, (But only if they report what they found, to their company-Even paying). While attack a random site that you got from a google dork is actually illegal, becuse you don't got any privileges or permissions by the owner or the webmaster to actually exploit their site.

It is illegal look it up because you are accessing information in an unauthorized fashion.
