I changed my IP and just paid an employee to use their name & information on the account. I just have to be ridiculously careful to keep my feedback above 98% and 4.8 stars in the ratings section. I'm going to be making more accounts with information from other employees so that I can switch from account to account in case of another ban. I'm also going to make 3 accounts with each of their info and link them (only link the ones with the same info) that way if I get a strike or bad feedback I can switch to a linked account & wait it out until it is no longer an issue, plus you can share limits on multiple accounts (a 300 limit would be 300 per account on the 3 accounts).

Sounds very smart, using the EvanC method?

That is probably one of the reasons that those methods are so effective, nobody is going to share them and get their shit saturated.

I'm selling actual physical goods that I bought at a local auction house (I just about double my money on everything before paying for my overhead & all). I'm pretty much breaking even though because my selling limits on eBay are so low, I'm using only about 100 square feet of my 5,500+ square foot warehouse for eBay storage because after that they wont let me list any more :(I realize that this website is 99% about online methods but offline methods are just so much easier and so much more profitable in my opinion.

Visualize - November 4, 2013, 9:04 pm

Why would physical items make you get banned? If it isn't the shitty guide method, then the only way is if you are trying to rip them off by exaggerating the value or the genuinity of some product.

Exactly, it's because when you're selling used items people tend to complain more and you HAVE TO have 98%+ positive feedback and all 4.8-5 out of 5 star ratings for eBay to allow you to stay a seller. So if any more than 1 in 50 buyers has any problem with you you're done.

Tony Soprano - November 5, 2013, 3:08 pm

Nice, I used to do something similar when I was 14.. Local car boot goods re-selling on ebay :O

I got into trouble with eBay before but my account was only suspended for a month, but they perm banned my PayPal, and yeah it only took 2 strikes. I see what you mean

Yesterday was a good day ;)

iSnitch - November 9, 2013, 8:32 am

I have good feedback on ebay as buyer, haven't tried to sell anything yet..

If someone would like to point me some good guide i could give him one of my guides.

I don't care if it is Offline or Online method, and i don't want that scamming method where you sell guide.

PM ME :)

Of course you do! Sellers can't leave buyers negative feedback after and update a year or two ago lol. I just sold something to a guy today who had over 100k feedback as a buyer. He hasn't sold a single item yet he buys 250+ items a day. I have to admit it does make him look very trustworthy even as a seller though. Probably cant get scammed by someone spending $3,000,000 a year.

$3,000!

My $4,000 probably won't be for a while but I'll get there!

SIM-1966021 - February 9, 2014, 6:54 pm

$4,000 is finally in sight! I will try and continue to post here forever as my sales increase.

Cool earnings, is this selling virtual items?

$7,000 & 1,056 feedback!

Well, this does include one very large sale ($2,400 for a car that was bought and sold through the regular course of this business). However, this is still $4,500 even if we do not count that sale.

SIM-1966021 - December 13, 2014, 10:02 pm

Same as the previous post in that $2,400 was from a large sale. Not counting this sale this is still my highest milestone to date at $5,000 in one month!

How did you raise your seller limits? I'm a new seller and I hit the limit 4 days after my first sale.

The only way to do it is to call eBay to get an increase of usually 50%-100% (I think your first increase is 1000% though) and you can only call to get an increase once every 31 days. Good luck!

Thanks mate. Ebay is a great way to make money. Congratulations on your nice profits/

Lean, you should be VERY careful of using other peoples names. As all the sales are going in their names.

Your best bet would be to register a company, and just sign up under it

I lied, it is registered under my company but the account is linked to my ~5 other personal accounts that got banned. I think this was the first account that I made when I was over 18 which is why I was able to sell without breaking any rules for over a month before it got linked to my old ones but at that point I was a "good seller" paying hundreds in fees and not breaking any rules so they said they could overlook the "relatively minor" issues that I had with my other accounts. These other accounts are still all limited and useless and I have asked for them to be deleted but they always tell me that they cannot be. It's been over a year and they still show up as linked accounts on my account that I use now but they don't cause any problems.

I think that for anyone who has been banned, as long as you haven't broken any major rules (scamming) you just need to make a stealth account that can follow all rules for a month or two and after that you can have your information safely changed without being banned so long as you remain to be careful not to break any rules in the future.

Same as the previous 2 posts in that $2,400 was from a large sale. Not counting this sale this is $6,000 in in 31 days! And I thought $5,000 was crazy...

I wish there was some kind of god who popped up with a alternative known website like eBay without shoving massive fees up asses.

Congratz dude, invest in some other methods since you got funding.

Goodluck!

Okay this is just insane now...

I'm sure this will die down a bit after Christmas but I'm currently doing around $1,000 a day in revenue.

IamWholam - December 18, 2014, 1:16 pm

Could You tell us what do You sell?

Realizm - December 18, 2014, 1:17 pm

Very nice man, I have a fairly good method myself that could make me close to $10k in profit. But I only do it in the summer when I'm making a lot of money anyways lol.

I'm banned from Amazon still. I think I need to set up a new LLC to get on it again; honestly it would probably be a huge revenue boost but it would be annoying to go through all of that trouble and then find out that it still wont work.

If you scammed on eBay you probably won't be allowed back on. I don't buy on Amazon but I have bought things from eBay and had them arrive shipped from Amazon so I know that some sellers do this and seem to be doing okay.

Holy fuck, Lean Six Sigma! You must be selling a really popular/in demand item. $10k in a month? Is that all profit?

I believe I'm making around $3,000 per month in profit now after paying for the items, rent, cable, heat, electric, labor, eBay fees, etc.

$11,000+

SIM-1966021 - December 6, 2018, 8:21 pm

I really messed up shortly after this... for over 2 years...

Anyway finally got a new high score worth adding to my diary so time for another grave-digging session.

$16,422 for the past 30 days and still on a clear upward trend

Last post for a little while, I ended up peaking on 12/17 at $21,368
Hopefully it will not be too long before I am able to beat this.

THE NORTH FACE - December 23, 2018, 7:10 pm

Very nice work. What is your profit margin on your earnings?

That's crazy dude! I used to love selling on eBay until I got banned & closed forever. eBay is just too restricted and I really don't like selling there even if you can make fortune out of it.

I have been banned like 5 times. But you can legally make new accounts under "pen names" and then when tax time comes claim the income as yours with the IRS. If eBay or paypal ask for your SSN or EIN then you just have to get an LLC which can cost like ~$200. Its all 100% legal. You just need a few things like a dedicated IP from HostPigeon.com & a VCC + new bank account (which is free).

I'm using only about 100 square feet of my 5,500+ square foot warehouse for eBay storage because after that they wont let me list
