Wait, is this a RAT or a worm (Spreader)?

The pictures that I see showing me that this is a RAT.

Lolerbeans12 - November 11, 2013, 10:41 pm

Infected myself and a few slaves.

I'm not seeing anything pop up in the Worm UI.

Edit: Double-checked IP and Ports. Working just fine.

I did crypt it, that may have corrupted it.

Edit 2: Created a new server file, didn't encrypt it, made IP local host. Still doesn't work.
Any explanation?

Edit 3: False alarm. I was using the same port I use for Dark Comet.
I don't know why I didn't think about that before.

Good job with the Worm btw. :>

1-try use the default Port

2-check the port in <http://canyouseeme.org/> if open or not

3-dont use port , that you used it for another program

4-try Ccleaner & clean your PC

every thing should be fine

Well in a few days if the worm does it's job, and I see some new slaves;

I'll be sure to post back with my results.

Question, does it have it's own startup?

This is the virus total scan.... I'm new but looks scary to me.

7H3 3XP3R7 - November 12, 2013, 5:53 am

that scan report cant show its a virus or backdoo

all are dirt code known as virus or malware in real no have any effect on the PC

some of detected is show that the coder used some tools for protect the source so it say its virus

you can test under Vmware or sandibox

also see the connection when you run the Program

you will be sure there is no any out connection

gigabit - November 12, 2013, 5:53 am
