Quite spamming this forum with your useless posts.

Read the rules and Help Docs before posting again.

We recommend you take the time to read the HF Help Documents section. The answer to your questions should be contained in there.

OP, there's no real way to bypass this. If it exists, you could use a website or a software/app that let you impersonate a phone number and use it, but I doubt it will work.

I'm having trouble with Gmail's mobile verification process. It seems that my phone number isn't being recognized, and I'm unable to receive the verification code. Is there a way to bypass this verification step or any alternative methods to verify my account? I've tried troubleshooting but haven't had any success. Any advice or solutions would be greatly appreciated. Thanks in advance!

You shouldn't have hijacked someone else's graveyard thread, but to answer your question, 2SV verification codes will be sent to the number on the account. Is there a recovery email? Any logged in devices? If not you can follow Google's account recovery process.
