Thread: Coding a new keylogger, we need beta testers!!

lolimsoasd - November 24, 2013, 2:23 am

Hello, I'm coding a new keylogger with mgcmartin.

Now we are in need of early beta testers from all around the world with different keyboard layouts. If you are willing to map the layout YOU use, and beta test the loggeer, please post into this thread.

Post in this format:

Where are you from?

What is your KB layout?

How experienced you are regarding keylogging stuff?

The layouts we already support & have:

(& therefor not needed for beta testing)

Finnish (supported by me)

Danish (supported by mgcmartin)

We are not yet sure if it will be a public logger OR public open source logger. But the beta testers will have their hands on it first ?

So Honeyz I assume your keyboard is Greek?

And Guwap's seems to have US layout?

I'll add you after you reply to this :) The testing is estimated to start next week, and the initial release of the keylogger should be 2-3 weeks from now :)

Ah, no, they are not being keylogged actually.

They run the keylogger, which writes the log locally on their own computer, not for me or anyone else. This is just a beta program to test how the base works.

The testers will get their hands on the logger FIRST, before we release it to public.

Other than that, it's just voluntary work, if you want to support it :)
