

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Special Characters in Name

Slayster - December 3, 2013, 11:16 am

I have a Special "Space" in my name and just wondering if it is allowed. I've been away from hackforums for almost half a year and just wanted to make sure.

My concern is because there is a normal "Kendrick Lamar" account

<https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=1471713>

Dillweed - December 3, 2013, 11:17 am

Proly fine, since your name doesnt have some cray annoying character.

630 - December 3, 2013, 11:17 am

I am pretty sure you can have a space in your username.

Wires - December 3, 2013, 11:18 am

Not a problem. Sure it's pretty fine to have that.

Emylbus - December 3, 2013, 11:24 am

Omniscient Wrote:Technically there is no rule about this. Simply a setting which a few circumvent with special characters. Sometimes I ask members to change their username.from [\[Policy Q\] Under 4 character names](#)

Yes, you're allowed to have special characters in your name, however people may run into difficulties finding your account in the search tool or while trying to send you a PM.