jRAT isn't currently FUD.

Also, not sure if you're working with Redpoison, so until then... dwc.

1. He's aware of that and is currently doing a update. You don't expect a RAT to stay FUD 24/7.
2. Yes I'm the new re-seller. He'll post & vouch for that soon lol

1. Wait until that happens don't put FUD on the title when it is not. A RAT should be re-FUD'd every 2-3 days not weeks. Especially one that is not compatible with crypters. Don't make yourself look like a fool.

2. Okay.

FUD is no longer guaranteed with the stub. Plus, you can get private stubs at around 3 detection rate.

I actually liked the old jRAT. Was FUD probably 99% of the time.

And not being FUD as a JAVA based RAT is fucking idiotic. It isn't compatible with any crypters as far as I know, so how exactly are you going to be spreading?

I have to agree, I haven't used jRAT since my VPN closed down, but even if I were to buy a new one I wouldn't right now, since the spreading would be so difficult.

Are you going to get it FUD any time soon?

PJ. - December 8, 2013, 2:51 am

I've tried running the "trial" I guess you call it from the website but it never loads. I've downloaded the files but when I go to run the Client.jar nothing ever happens. When I try to run the Builder.exe it errors out with "Invalid argument length: 0". Also, trying to launch the batch file in the folder gives me this

I'd love to get this up and running and test this thing out and hopefully purchase it soon, looks promising.

Not a question to ask and expect an answer, because "Best" is an opinion, you'll only get what people think is the best as a response. RATs are rated based on stability, features, and how UD they are usually.

No, this is a Java based RAT. It can infect all platforms running Java (Windows, Macintosh, Linux).

DC is coded in Delphi and the owner disconnected the project ages ago. jRAT is coded in Java and updated frequently with a built in crypter and is a multi platform rat.

You can upload stealers to the victim computer using jRAT and output a text file and download the text file to view it.

Check out this tool from NirSoft for stealing chrome passwords. It doesn't get detected and you can use the remote command line to output a txt with all chrome passwords on the victim's PC.

Muhammad Ali - December 18, 2013, 12:59 pm

Very nice rat, lots of features. Only thing which made me not use anymore is the bugs. Server builder is broken sometimes and the no-ip / dns host adding isn't saving for when i want a new build which is frustrating. Also, why a password/ID for socket? What's that needed for?

I give it a 7, if these things get fixed then a 9. (used trial btw). Was about to buy the real version but after this i changed mind.

If u want detailed errors pm me.

why the panel is always crashed when someone connected? before its works perfect, i don't said its not good rat, just not stable and also there few bugs, like:

if you open someone desktop his ping go to sky and you have to close the panel, and wait for him to reconnect again to do something with that user.

also the panel is crashed while someone connected and there many more bugs.

I do not want to sound paranoid but I am very cautious about what I do. Is there any chance at all of my jRAT victims finding out where the connection is coming from? I am strictly referring to the RAT program itself. For example, can they by any chance:

- a) Find any information in the .jar file (e.g. the system username by which the file was created)
- b) Track where the RAT is connected to (my IP)
- c) Switch connection and take over control or something similar
- ...etc

Of course, I am not including factors such as the means of communication I am using to transfer the file to them. I am only concerned about the RAT itself.

I am purchasing jRAT regardless, but this is something I would like to know in order to avoid risk.

Cheers!

Also, to the guys above on this page... I am also getting that error. It keeps coming back after I close it. A little annoying but it doesn't look like there's anything we can do for now. Otherwise the RAT works great.

-snip-

Well, anyone can see the connection between you and them with a simple "netstat -abn" in CMD. If you're behind a VPN though, you should be fine.

For the finding out info through the server, if your victim "jRAT-Reversers" the server, they can find out a bunch of info about it, and you.

For the reversing the connection, I don't believe that's possible.

These factors affect every RAT though, well besides Web/HTTP RATs.

Also, for that error, make sure that your ports are forwarded and listening, and the port that is listening has the same ENC Key as the server being ran.

Quick question, i have Jrat running on a mac osx 10.9 computer without keylogger + webcam plugins (the jar files won't run with these plugins as i don't have the password for the root account) is there anyway around that to get a keylogger on there? Thanks bshades - December 30, 2013, 5:06 pm

Lol, this is the best RAT what i know, infect this Olso Apple? IOS etc?

Erster - December 30, 2013, 6:49 pm tested it on Ubuntu 13.10 / Windows 8.1 / Mac OS X Mavericks 10.9

first try with minimal server settings (no keylogger, no webcam) -> everything works on all systems, fine good and stable ;)

second try with keylogger + webcam, startup etc. -> server can't connect on all operating systems :(

Next thing, delete FUD out of the title it isn't.

It needs a big update, at the moment it isn't 40$ worth...

Weasyl - December 31, 2013, 2:04 am

Yeah with plugins it wont work. The build fails with manifest errors. Maybe this will be fixed, also the crypter.

Anyway, it is a good rat tool.

I am very intrested in this RAT. But first i like to know if its fud? As I read in this thread it isnt but the title says it is. I am confused an like to clear things up before purchasing.

Thanks.

redpois0n - January 1, 2014, 11:04 am

There will be a attack/DDoS plugin included along this purchase soon. My PMs and support system is having a delay ATM.

im a paid customer I sent a pm about getting a fud stub please reply this is horribly detected, other than that this is the best rat ever very stable and easy to use.

Weasyl - January 1, 2014, 5:15 pm

Did you try it as exe? Yes this is not FUD anymore, just use a crypter.

Yes it comes with the webcam feature.

could you provide a scan for tomorrow date?
I would like to see if BitDefender detects it ci0x - January 4, 2014, 4:45 pm

A few rudimentary features that I would personally LOVE to be implemented, is for jRat to show the first connect date, maybe do it by machine id, etc, and allow the clients to be sorted by each column.

So I use this for business use, as well as to infect people, and if I could have them grouped by Server ID that would be awesome. (The ones for business have a different server id than those infected)

There already is a grouping option, but I would like to see it become more prevelant than it already is.

Each of these features are relatively simple to do, machine id could be something like mac address, that would be the simplest way to do it.

For grouping, maybe in the main window, where it shows connected clients, there could be something like this:

I like the collapsable window layout the most. I think it would make it alot cleaner.

Another thing, that may already be in there, i just cant find.. Is to stop the task bar popups when a new user connects/disconnects.. I would like to have it only show when a new UNIQUE user connects, or have the option to disable it completely.

i would honestly stick with jRat. RedPois0n, the creator, will make it FUD VERY soon, and most people running linux dont use AV anyways.

Most of them have their head stuck up their own ass and think that linux doesnt get virus's, just look at the fucknards on 4chan. They all say

"Why don't you install gentoo?!?"
Bunch of fucking idiots.

jordansparks - January 5, 2014, 3:24 am

I meant more of one that I can use like compile and monitor from a linux system as I am running linux and want a RAT i can easily compile/share/monitor from linux without booting into windows

Hope they can get it FUD soon

Please redpoison can you respond to this or contact TOMMYD so i can have my problem solved.

One_Hacker - January 5, 2014, 9:47 pm

I used jRAT when it was free and I have to admit that it was really easy to use and very easy to infect people with just because people don't know much about jars and don't expect them to be viruses. I find that they work a lot better than .exe's as many people are cautious with exe's today and would suspect a virus. I will be purchasing this upgrade soon.

mutilatedhooker - January 5, 2014, 10:48 pm

I am really thinking about buying this. Like 3 years ago i used Cerberus and had so much fun with it. I kind of want to start hacking again but I do it for fun not gain. Anyone have the same idea as me? Doing it for fun, I use to go on AIM and other chats and pose as like a 16 yearold girl and wait for people to ask for pictures. I liked fucking with pedophiles the most since they were so easy to convince to download.

1. What is your refund policy, should the keylogger not work as in the trial version it was not working.
2. Are the plugins free/where can I find them?
3. Where do I sign in using the stuff you're going to PM me?
4. How do I access future updates?

Something like Firefox/Chrome/IE/Opera history reader would be nice. And password reader. Also the plugins need to be fixes (keylogger).

The fun feature to play a .wav sound is also broken. It just says non valid URL.

usernameess - January 8, 2014, 1:05 pm

the key logger works people, it always worked, but it did post everything double for a wile lliikkee tthhiiss..

anyhow that stopped now so it works.

I hope that webcam update will be made this time ;)

-a important thing that isn't working anymore is updating a mac, can't update after 4.1.3

-Skype name grabber never worked.

-the slave crashes when opening a image that has 0kb.

-the slave crashes when opening a file with weird sighs like ?><(*%^$ etc.

-updating using the update option makes you lose them forever (learned that the hard way) for as far as i know everything else just work's.

Can't send you a PM, need to be on your buddy list.

Edit: I asked for the feature list, not to have a recommendation to download the trial to see "some of them".

he has disabled PMs so i can not do it myself.
When exploit.im is back online I'll do that.

X-J???? - February 23, 2014, 5:11 pm

Please add me on your buddy list, i can't contact you :)

It's back already for a few days.

Anyway, why did you just change the thread? Lol.
