Thread: I've made several viral Vine clips.. I want to spread them across YouTube. Help!

snowboardjacket - December 6, 2013, 7:40 pm

I'm pretty new to making money online, and I have some content that I believe can bring me in a good amount of money.

I've had licensing companies reach out to me over a few of my videos but I'd rather do this stuff myself than allow them to skim money off the top of my work.

I'm just looking for any tips/tricks I can use to go about monetizing my videos / promoting them / spreading them across YouTube.. while maximizing viewership etc. etc.

I've searched around for a bit, but I haven't been able to find anything really helpful without having to invest $20+ into for some sort of E Book.

I'm not trying to be cheap or anything, I just know there's a simple method that I'm missing here..

Can anyone help!?

To spread your channel you are going to need some money. Try to buy shoutout from other channels, which you can just ask by contacting them. This will drive real traffic to your videos. Good luck!

I can help you out with a couple of views for free. Just PM the video links.

Fake views is never the way to go. Unless if they are retention views, then you got yourself a nice profit.

Of course. I'm not interested in any type of hitleap views or anything of the sort. Generating fake views could get me banned from AdSense. Happened before, not trying to go down that road.

Let me know if they're legitimate
