Thread: email spoofing: email arrives in junk folder

mcfaker - December 14, 2013, 12:52 pm

Hello, Spoofers online mostly send the emails to the junk folder of a person. Does anyone know a spoofer or a method where the email will arrive in the main inbox instead of the junk folder?

Thanks in advance!

Programmatically to keep your emails out of SPAM-BOX, you need to change the Email "Headers", sent with your email. Most Mail-Box filters for specific headers to decide if its a spam, so make sure you use Unique Ones.

Build your own spoofer and pop it up onto a server that mail servers don't know about (unused). Using emkei.cz or any other well known email spoofer will have the spoofed mail sent to Junk immediately.
