Thread: What do you think of my friends YouTube video.

Tech - December 21, 2013, 8:53 pm

Hey guys my friend is aspiring to become a minor YouTube member who posts content often. A while ago he made this video about Adblock and how it stops YouTubers from getting Cashflow. Could you leave some constructive criticism on this thread. He has been receiving hate from this video (The YT comments) and he is not sure why.

Getting into YouTube strictly for income is stupid.

Are you talking about him or the people he mentions in the video?

He is playing Battlefield 3 while talking about adblock? Like, at least record something relevant to what you are talking about. Personally I feel it throws the viewer off.

What could you record that would keep the user entertained? It would be hard to keep them interested and be filming a page sing Adblock.

"Using Adblock makes you a bad person...you're stealing content"

Well no, you released it onto a free website that requires no sign up, purchase or subscription whatsoever. Don't blame consumers, blame the people giving you inconsistent revenue.

Good to know I'm childish too for using it.

Your friend is another money hungry youtuber? What a surprise

He directly says people who use adblock are bad people...

I agree with you at that, he is very direct when he talks, he always thinks his opinion is right.

Yes he is a very direct person he will not say things like "I think they are using this wrong because" he will say you are wrong or right.

I don't think Adblock is wrong. He can get spammed with ads, be my guest.

It would be another thing if the said ran by paid subscriptions, but it does not. He shouldn't be bitching about free income.

Its pretty obvious why he is receiving hate.

If you can't put up a rock solid argument on the internet and someone disagrees, you get hate by the truckload.

He did really screw himself by saying "if you use Adblock it makes you a bad person because you are basically stealing someones work " That's just wow.

I myself only started using ad-block because a lot of websites have very intrusive ads on their pages. The ads on YouTube being blocked was just a bonus.

I did leave a comment on his video and I hope he doesn't see it as a personal attack. I was just trying to convey the reasoning behind ad-block and why people use it.
