Hope we will have enough discussion for future threads.

Old thread for reference.

Uh... hey. Was too intimidated by the number of posts on the other thread (yes, that happens a lot with me) so I didn't post anything.

Not bad really, I had slowly started introducing her into anime/manga a year or two ago so she is used to certain anime that would normally put a brother/sis into an awkward position.

Omshivam - December 23, 2013, 6:16 pm

Recently finished watching Clannad: After Story (I cried) and Sakurasou no Pet na Kanojo

I'm keeping up-to-date with Golden Time and Strike the Blood although I don't really understand where the story is going as of yet in StB.

I finished the Shingeki no Kyojin OVA that aired on Dec. 16th and I was satisfied with it. I loved seeing Levi's squad and the story of a past survey corps soldier.

Planning to consistently watch episodes of Madoka Magica, I've only seen eps 1 and 2 as of yet.

I've put Mirai Nikki on hold as well, I'm on ep 4.

- Omshivam ?

Edit: I also finished the 1st volume of Ranma 1/2 by Rumiko Takahashi and it's an interesting story, definitely unique. I'm looking forward to reading the next volumes when I get them.

I'm curious, does anyone read the Japanese culture blog called Tofugu? I think it has awesome articles but I'm more interested in their YouTube channel and their upcoming videos now that they've hired someone to produce them.

Honestly, I would just check if there's a Japanese market somewhere nearby. While most of the stuff I have gotten were in the styrofoam containers where you add water and the packets of seasoning and such to it, you can most likely just buy the plain noodles to cook them yourself.

That's actually how most ramen come, since unless they're cooked by a chef, they'll be instant 2-minute ramen.

Hey guys, can anyone recommend me a new anime?

I am currently watching:

Naruto Shippuden

Kill la Kill

Samurai Flamenco

I Couldn't Become a Hero, So I Reluctantly Decided to Get a Job.

I have watched:

Swords Art Online

Angel Beats

Breaking Blade

The Devil Is a Part-Timer!

Death Note

I really like action with comedy or full of action like Breaking Blade. I haven't really branched out from this genre since I don't know what else to watch. Kind of scared that I might end up watching some hentai tentacle incest shit. lol Anyways, I'm probably going to give Log Horizon a try.

I also recommend you read Liar Game. However, good ol' Kaitani Shinobu got us waiting for nine months now for a new chapter, so you might want to take it slow.

No, I just assumed because the OP of the thread was named hentai. I prefer manga and drawing anime over watching it. Are we Ok to post our own drawn pictures here? I'd love some feed back on some of my art. And to the person up top, I'm new to the forums but I'm not a random posting whore. I just saw this pop up on some new threads thought I'd check it out. Recently I've completed:

Mirai Nikki & OVA

Mahou Shoujo Madoka Magica

Dakara Boku wa, H ga Dekinai & OVA

InuYasha Movie 4: Fire on the Mystic Island

I didn't really understand Madoka Magica's ending so I had to look it up. ? I gave it an 8 out of 10 on MAL because the first 9 episodes felt like they dragged on and the conclusion was wrapped up pretty quick. I really liked Homura's character development though.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

The ending was pretty good but I'm curious to know if Madoka would ever work her way out of her life long commitment. I was kind of sad when Akemi was on the beach and she met Madoka's little brother and her parents and they didn't remember Madoka at all. :(

? ?? ?

I didn't enjoy Mirai Nikki's OVA at all. I liked the anime and the battles between every contender in the game because each character had a unique ability about them that Yuuki had to figure out a way to counter. I didn't like the fact that the MC was really whiny and how Yuno always came to the conclusion that everyone that Yuuki talked to had to die even though she saved his life quite a bit.

I watched the 4th InuYasha movie on New Year's Eve ^^ . I didn't like how the battles ended pretty quick especially with the final character with all the war gods fused together. It was a decent movie overall though and I was satisfied with it.

I'm looking forward to finishing FMA: Brotherhood as it has been on my 'watching' list for a while. I'm on episode 7. I have seen the original Fullmetal Alchemist though.

I'm also planning to watch the Madoka Magica movies and Kill la Kill.

Well, I only watched it dubbed if it based in an English speaking nation, kinda weird but I like it like that.

Anyways, I really liked the Victorian era, Anything set in the past (1300s-1950s) would be nice, but if it is set in current times like Jormungand or Death note that would be nice. But I don't really want anything futuristic.

I also liked the theme, it was dark it was also a strategic sort of anime, as well as some adventure. I also like sort of mysterious antagonist, they're fun to figure out.

Also, genres that I would not like to watch, Hentai, Romance, comedy.

Do not suggest Code Gaess, not into mecha.

The whole point of that Anime is to allow a romance to hit the barrier of reality using the death game as its platform. If you didn't care about it, you would hardly enjoy it.

I thought Golden Time was not bad at all. It was hilarious. People say the ending was not as good up to episode 12 and others said it was good. Well I thought it was fine.

I also watched anime that I thought was good during Christmas Break such as Tokyo ravens, strike the blood, machine doll wa, freezing vibrations

They were all pretty good, like it wasn't omg bad. But I did not like freezing vibrations as much as the others

Btw the ending song to machine doll wa is amazing attracting. Tokyo ravens is probably one of my favorite op songs in a while

Can anybody tell me why Seventhstyle is telling me Arpeggio of Blue Steel was a failure?

<http://seventhstyle.com/2013/12/28/2013s-best-worst-anime-series/>

I haven't read the manga but basing an anime's performance on its manga counterpart should not be a determining factor for its evaluation as an anime overall. Maybe I am biased towards naval combat (being a Navy vet myself) but I really, REALLY enjoyed the writing, direction and action of the entire series. Maybe I am missing something crucial (and I don't think being blatantly CG disqualifies this anime from being a 8-9/10).

READ THAT ARTICLE AT RISK OF BRAIN CANCER. This is not a reviewer. This is a guy who likes one kind of anime and hates everything that is not that and tries to pass it off as "reviewing". To quote from the article "Said and done, 2013 was a shockingly bad year for anime – it's not even that most series were dreadful, it's that there were hardly that weren't. But no matter, there are a few diamonds in the overwhelming expanse of roughness spread through the regrettable 365 days of the year which certainly would be a mistake to miss.". Whoever wrote this needs to be taught 2 things. 1. What a reviewer actually is. 2. His opinions are not the only defining factor in what makes something good or not.

Well the first few episodes is not really into the romance, more like comedy, but then after episode I think 4, 5 it gets deep. But still very funny. One day I planned to watch up to episode 5 and then I am like, its amazingly good, so I kept watching. But you may not seem like it is amazingly good. The rating for the story that most people gave was very low but end out the total score people said was high. Well this was a new romance anime, which I have not seen any good ones in a while that is just plain comedy romance, so maybe that is why my heart was captured into it

That didn't make much sense to me. On another note you can only use Lelouch's Geass on someone once. Not to mention using it too much causes it to permanently show. I'd pick a Geass less bothersome.

If you could use it more than once it would be overcheated, like the death note.

\(Click to View\) Once the Geass evolves to two eyes, the person who gave the Geass can grant the user his or her 'Code', thus removing the Geass and making the user an Immortal and immune to all Geass, and the person who gave them the Geass usually dies after granting a person his or her 'Code', though in both cases shown, this has been a result of fatal wounds

Now, read this:

\(Click to View\) Second, however, and this is where the others have thought things through, Lelouch is alive because he got his father's code. He beckoned the World of C to lend him its powers, and he took Charles's code before Charles passed on. The reason why Lelouch still has his Geass is because he didn't take the Code from the same person who gave him his Geass: he took his Geass from CC, and he took his Code from Charles. Thus, he now possesses both immortality and a Geass. This is also a reason that the title is Code Geass: Lelouch of the Rebellion.

\(Click to View\) Orange knew of Lelouche's and Suzaku's plan and helped them out by ordering his men not to fire on Zero, he even smiled when Zerozaku jumped on his shoulder.

Now would Orange, a man who devoted himself entirely to Lelouche and threw away everything without a second thought be OK with a plan where the sole person he wants to protect in life is actually killed? The answer to that is NO, not even if Lelouche ordered him to accept the plan: he would not go along with it and would protect him with his life. There is only one way that Orange would be OK with a plan like that and that's if he knew about Lelouche's immortality, which I assume he did as he worked with V.V. in the Geass research base. Orange was OK with this plan as he knew Lelouche would come to no harm and would be able to start a new peaceful life with the woman he loves in a world which he himself had made peaceful.

Even at the end, we see Orange on his orange plantation, completely content with the way things have panned out, he definitely could not be that happy had Lelouche actually died.

There it is, firm evidence of Lelouche's immortality if the scene with C.C. and the cart driver wasn't painfully obvious enough.

Did you even WATCH Code Geass? Do you know what a Geass is? What a Code is?

\(Click to View\) Charles grabbed Lelouch with his right hand, which had the Geass sigil. Lelouch needed the fully evolved Geass to transfer a code.

The code doesn't appear to activate until someone dies. Hence, why C.C. was wounded when she first inherited her code. Same happened with Charles in the World of C., and with Lelouch when Suzaku/Zero kills him.

My friends would casually watch anime in their Career Training and Development class. Although they had to sneak to do it since doing anything other than your assignments is cause enough to get you kicked out of the class, and it is a college course. We're high schoolers so it's a bigger deal about us on the open internet without a firewall.

It's actually not that long, just make sure you get the saves right and screenshot any services you like ?

I started watching Machine-Doll wa Kizutsukanai and I have to say, I love it toooooo bits. A loli machine doll sexually harassing the protagonist, magic and [/quote], God, I love it.

I want to be the best kouhai!

In other news, I officially have the smallest anime collection out of everyone here who downloads due to my idiocy. I accidentally started formatting my external HDD instead of my USB and corrupted everything. None of the data recovery programs I tried yielded any results so I just formatted the whole thing instead of having an expensive, power-wasting brick on my table. I'll start redownloading all my anime again (thank God for MAL).

IS2 was a disappointment in my eyes because most of it turned into fanservice and Cecilia wanting Ichika's D so hard, but Ichika, the stubborn vegetable that he is, can't take a hint.

Yes, some of them are really good; but I choose to not read certain titles because I want to watch the Anime and not spoil it for myself. For example, I've really enjoyed Kuroko no Basuke so far, and the manga is ahead of the Anime by around an estimate (my estimation) of 30 episodes. The anime is super intense, and I just didn't want to ruin the final score between the two schools in the latest episode.

Also; mate, H-Manga are a great read. Something new I tried the other day; I read the COMIC LO collection (Don't get the wrong idea, senpai. Baka! </////>) and it was pretty good. Some of the details on the manga are pretty good as well.

What year are you in?!

It's hentai isn't it? No, no; loli, right? Haha, or it could just be ecchi/ anime with nudity...

Yes, some of them are really good; but I choose to not read certain titles because I want to watch the Anime and not spoil it for myself. For example, I've really enjoyed Kuroko no Basuke so far, and the manga is ahead of the Anime by around an estimate (my estimation) of 30 episodes. The anime is super intense, and I just didn't want to ruin the final score between the two schools in the latest episode.

Also; mate, H-Manga are a great read. Something new I tried the other day; I read the COMIC LO collection (Don't get the wrong idea, senpai. Baka! </////>) and it was pretty good. Some of the details on the manga are pretty good as well.

Graduated from high-school last year and starting a Law/Commerce dual degree at University in March.

Finally finished Katawa Shoujo. I only made one mistake with the girl I was on. It took me completely by surprised and upset me a lot. It felt like I had failed in more than one way. Not just in the game, but in life too. I had recently saved a state before all my choices, so I had something to go back on. I found what I had did wrong immediately too. I was being too overprotective. Which is how I am by nature. And the girl I was after had only ever been protected all her life and wanted something else. And when I think about it, I ended up doing exactly what I didn't want to. If I've learned anything from this game is that I'm way to over protective. But in the end, finally getting the girl I was after was really satisfying. Although I feel like I cheated by going back on the save.

Who knew I could become so emotionally attached to someone in a game? I can't even get my self to complete the game with the other characters because it feels like I'd be cheating... ~sigh.

Well those were my thoughts, back to watching No. 6.

Darkness follows the manga pretty well actually. It's just that the anime version was created when darkness didn't have enough chapters, so I guess they used a lot of things not in manga. It's sad that the manga has a new chapter only every month ;(The last chapter was the only 'interesting' one in a looooong time tho. The story actually progresses with something not too H-ish.

Not exactly a cliffhanger, but I guess it could be considered one. They tied off most of the loose ends, but there are still some things that don't make too much sense.

They can be unaired episodes due to promiscuity, but a majority of the time it's because they ran out of episodes, didn't feel like it had to be aired (fanservice episodes) or because it was animated much later than the actual series,

Its like associating GoT with porn which lot people do as jokes, same with anime and hentai because most mainstream anime has much fan service.

It may be a joke between you and I, but the same does not usually apply to those with little to no understanding of anime.

Why is it bad to be associated with hentai? Because the medium it is capable of so much more, and it perpetuates the stereotypes. Nobody will take you seriously if you tell them there is an anime with an equivalent or greater story than western media.

Not only that, but hentai is porn! You wouldn't go around a school talking about porn with people.

You wouldn't talk to your mom about porn. You're saying that anime as a whole should be classified as a taboo??

Trolling? Not at all. Many people are familiar with some "strange" stuff from japan. If you googled "wtf japan" there are thousands of examples of what the average person is commonly aware of.

Art style is very broad compared to a single show.

If you know what hentai is then you know that anime is not hentai. Hentai is anime porn therefore they know what anime is. And those who doesnt know about anime either doesnt know about hentai or just knows the word.

As i said again, no one is serious about anime being porn only unless they are retarded and cant use their brain. And people who barley knows anything about anime will compare it to western cartoon and think most of it is for child audience and only some are for mature. Therefore they would think that there barley are any anime. And the reason they wont take you serious is not because of the word 'hentai' but because they dont let them selves belive that 'cartoon' (anime) is something for mature audience.

Is it you or others who associats hentai with anime? If not you then the othefs are the one talking about porn and if they know its porn then they also know anime is not porn. And for what reason would your parents think that anime is hentai? In that case your parents are retarded.

There are weird western stuff too does it mean clothes are dildos?

Either all people you know are retarded yolo faggots or you are stupid.

There are 2 guys in my class joking about me watching hentai in the school and i just laugh with them because they want to act funny. I have met more of these who think they are comedians before too and in the end im the one laughing at them.

And what you are telling me is that people doesnt know what a video clip is but knows what a porn video clip is.

And no, those who doesnt know about anime thinks its just something small.

After listening to some of the song of continued story from Code Geass, I came upon a theory for C.C's name...

It might be very far out, but well, I am tired and my mind's going everywhere xD

Anyways, here we go:

Spoiler (Click to View)

The lyrics of "continued story" - a song from Code Geass says;
"Even with just that single droplet, I just might be able to protect the flower"

Now, I would usually say, well, that's a metaphor, for a Lelouch, as one single idea can protect that precious "flower" which could be her sister or the will to fight.
But after thinking a bit with not much sleep, this idea came to me.

What if it was a refference? "Even with just that single drop" - okay, now think back to the episode in the cave where C.C reveals her name, the thing that blocked us from hearing it was; A droplet.

Now, what was the droplet protecting? A flower

Okay, so on this tree, there is a flower, the tree grows as part of the sakura family as far as I am concerned, so my final conclussion would be that C.C's real name would be the same as this tree sort, Cassia.

The synonym for it is Cathartocarpus

Which includes 2 C's, aka. C.C

So might it be Cassia?

Of course during the song for an extra note, if you do like I did you can find lots of references to the series, as an example;

"I can even reach out my hand" - metaphor for when Lelouch gets the power. - That would make C.C the "I", which could turn down the theory or ultimately we could use it and say that C.C wanted to protect her name?

Well, that is just my fast theory, I need to rewatch Code Geass, I can feel it xD

It's one of those things that you have to watch at night, otherwise you won't embrace the atmosphere fully. Sort of like Amnesia, if anyone still plays that stupid game.

That's why K-ON, Tamako Market and every other KyoAni anime were made; cute girls doing cute things is always an A-OK when you have nothing else to do. Infinite Stratos had some potential as an anime with a plot, but just flushed it down the toilet with S2. It was the only mecha-related anime I could stand, but they darn goofed up.

Errm... Hi guys, I know I haven't been around here before, but would someone mind helping me figure out something?

Okay, so I was at my friend's place and he was watching this anime with vampires in it, and there was this cute character whom I could not tell if it was a girl or a boy, but apparently it was immortal because its head got shot off, and yet it made an appearance later in the anime. Oh, and I completely forgot, the girl/trap had kitty ears.

1) Does this anime sound familiar to anyone, and if so, what's the name of it?

2) What is the name of this character?

iFind - February 23, 2014, 3:36 pm

[vent]Gah, I feel like there is a serious lack of taste in some of the anime community. Apparently anything with panty shots, cute companions, poor storyline, and borderline hentai is 8/10. There is also a lot of really good anime people aren't exploring because they're stuck in the loop of ecchi

For all you that watch hentai for "plot". To be completely honest though, I have never in my life seen hentai that was worth watching for the storyline. I've seen plenty of ecchi shows that were alright, but most hentai have an awful story if you choose to watch multiple episodes of the same series.

Also it seems like it would be pretty hard to pay attention to the story with all the ahem distractions...

On a sidenote, I like your Mirai cosplay Tweety. If that is indeed you. I almost went to a con as Akihito but didn't get any of the stuff in time.

Depends on what you expect from it.

If you want a chill Slice of Life about a merchant and a god, it probably won't be for you.

If you want to learn about trading and economy in around the Renaissance period, this is definitely for you.

I would say so, it's my favourite anime of all time, I have a weird taste though, but personally I liked it.

It doesn't have much action, but it has a great setting, great music, characters, romance, etc.

I am currently reading the LN because I believe they should make another season...

I would have absolutely loved a more serious, drama/suspense oriented zombie apocalypse anime. I mean, how many modern, post apocalyptic anime series with a young (teenage/high school) cast can you name? I think the genre is currently very popular and an anime studio with a more NA/EU based clientele should definitely pick it up.

I have to agree with that, the zombie theme is getting more popular every day, more movies & games are being made for it too. Makers of Dojinshi should definitely focus on making a good and serious zombie apocalypse-based anime/manga.

I absolutely agree, High School of the Dead is unique to its content and I'd like to see more series within the high school/zombie genre (minus the ecchi if possible or even keeping it to a minimal level). Although, aren't most anime production companies directed at producing content for Japan and their interests without regard to their popularity within the North American or European market?

If you don't mind gore, go for it. There's a nice helping of it, but not so much as Higurashi (in terms of details).

Finished Steins;Gate yesterday and I loved it although I'm trying to understand the theory behind their time travel still; it's hard to wrap my head around it ? I think Steins;Gate deserved a 10/10 because it gave me a lot to think about with time travel theories and how there are ethical issues associated with time travel.

Going to start the OVA and the movie as Blufury recommended on the AA skype chat. ^^

I also started watching Rosario to Vampire but I was hoping for a better plot than from what I've seen so far.

I'm excited for Noragami in the next few weeks as I'm curious as to how it'll end in only three more episodes. I'm assuming there will be a second season given the episode limit of 12.

I'm sure you're not the only one who could not get interested in Steins;Gate, one of my friends has seen the first few episodes as well but stopped watching it (I don't know why) but I don't think Okabe's laugh is something that merits you abandoning the show because the show itself is well done imo.

Lots of awesome anime, not as commercial as series, very charismatic characters, interesting plots. There are anime of all kinds, if you're a "sissy" you can watch some emotional anime, if you're a "sicko" you can watch gore-ish anime, and it goes on. If you want to watch series, the choices are less various. Plots of anime are in general more captivating than whatever I could find.

Anime are also more attracting than series and whatever I found because it's just more entertaining. You can spend days watching anime, or reading manga, I've found tremendous pleasure in reading Liar Game and was addicted to it for a few weeks.

I'm not saying series are shit or books are awful to read, I just enjoy watching Log Horizon more than I enjoy watching House of Cards. It's a lot less commercial which is really more captivating although I don't watch anime because it's not commercial, I just find this to be a pro of anime.

I dunno, Japanese culture just attracts me.

If he would just rip their ballots to pieces and vote yes then it would end up with the 2 getting disqualified and it would be a draw and the pot would be shared (1.1b ea) or if they would vote no because they only have no ballots it would be 3v1 and he would've won 2.2b.

I feel like a group would be good but bad. Yeah, we already have a section but when like %40 of posts are threads that already exist, threads that definitely belong in the lounge, or asking destroying morale in these threads, maybe it wouldnt be so bad.

I would join, assuming I would be accepted as I think I would be %200 worthy, but yeah, it would basically just be a userbar.

But if they had a post count quota in the private forum I would probably leave.

That series is definitely worth the re-watch. ? It's one of the funniest anime I've seen so far. I'm not sure if there's a confirmation for the second season, not that I know of.

I don't see any reason not to have a second season because Maou vowed to go back to Ente Isla one day and the plot deserves it. I'm not sure how much the anime covers of the LN but according to this reddit I looked up; <http://www.reddit.com/r/anime/comments/1kij7g/>

There's quite a bit of material to cover from the LN and the anime was quite popular.

Liar Game, Ikigami and some Watamote are the first which come to mind.

Liar Game is highly addictive, same goes for Ikigami and they're both a little psychologic. The manga Watamote is better than the anime.

That's what i do but my download speed is too low so it takes longer time.

My bothers(uncle sons) they have fast internet but they don't watch anime.

BTW my parents are against me using internet so they will not increase the speed no matter what, my dad once got a free internet(much n much faster than my current connection) offer for a company who provides internet to his college but he dropped the offer.

Lol @ Animus.

<http://assassinscreed.wikia.com/wiki/Animus>

The Animus (plural: Animi) is a virtual reality machine rediscovered, developed, and sold by Abstergo Industries. It allows the user to read a subject's genetic memory, and project it onto an external screen in three dimensions.

The machine was notably used in Abstergo's Animus Project and the Animi Training Program. The former analyzed the genetic memories of several select subjects, usually to gain information on the Assassin Order or on Pieces of Eden, while the latter was used for the training of Abstergo employees.

A newer model of the Animus, known as the Animus Omega, was developed and distributed commercially by Abstergo as an entertainment console. It was compatible with video games consisting of recorded memories.

I will do my best to join the group, I'm pumped for it.

I mean, its not an official group

In fact, its pretty much dead as of right now...

Fair enough. Makes sense.

My ideas:

Ai

Kami

Chi

Baka

Inochi

Ki

Suki

Yume

Jonetsu (Passion and the one I think we should use most since its all about the passion.

Anime is Japanese and the group is based on the passion people have for anime.)

I'll come up with more that arent just japanese words but I think they are a pretty good idea to use personally.

I hate that it's Frostix making the group. I am against this shit, it will be filled with weebos and #1 Naruto fans. If Black/Happeh/Tas is not a leader, then this group is basically a fandem group.

Again, going to talk to him about this. Try and be firm with him that it shouldn't just be a free-for-all, let everyone in and pay for lifetime memberships. Sick of that shit on HF, worse than micro-transactions in mobile games.

I'm still half and half on the group, interested in what he says and AA is split last time we spoke about this years ago. We do have this section, so is a group necessary? But having a place and group as our own is probably long overdue.

Would an official Anime group really work? It's a cool idea, but I feel acceptance into the group would be difficult to choose, as pretty much everyone who browses AA would apply. FLCL is a great coming of age story done by studio Gainax, the same people who made Evangelion and Gurren Lagann. Definitely watch it, it's pretty funny and only 6 episodes long.

Recently:Finished: Chuunibyou demo Koi ga Shitai! + OVA (I really enjoyed this one; animation was beautiful and had unique characters along with a decent story line. Going to start season 2 soon.)

Finished: Rosario to Vampire (I was looking for something similar to High School DxD; it was similar in some cases but this wasn't an anime that I really enjoyed(perhaps because I tried to compare it to DxD). While it may have had a decent theme, the episodes got repetitive and bland)

Started: Hentai Ouji to Warawanai Neko (Enjoying it so far!)

Also, I'm surprised that thread got 80 replies when I checked this morning haha although I don't see what he got out of it... XD

Definitely check out Fate/Zero afterwards. I think it's the better of the two, just don't let episode 1 throw you off, because it's mostly a 40 minute info dump.

Fate Zero is sequel to Fate Stay night.

Actually, it is a prequel. It was made after F/SN, but it takes place before it. I like it though, it's alot more mature and one of few anime with a serious tone and little/no fanservice.

This section will ruin the group? The demographic of the group is this section! It's doomed to fail already.

We have a section for discussing anime/manga/general jap stuff already. This private group would be no different. As I said above, AA becomes worse and the group board will inevitably be the same shit it is now. So you just spent 8k on some pixels. It's not even like it would a good userbar (?) to have, as nobody outside of AA gives a shit, and they usually look down upon it. It's like wearing a sign around that says "I'm a f.aggot. Kick me"

I totally agree. If things were my way the private sub-forum would be dead and occasionally would be for a "hey heres a free crunchyroll code, go nuts". Which probably makes it worse paying for anything. Fucking waste in reality.

I would love to be able to work on an anime streamer or manga reader website, we could make it an AA project and people who want could work on it and help out in different fields and it won't be hard to run such a site, it's all just download & upload ? But of course it should be without ads.

You could also create an anime/manga blog with a domain and give AA people access (only those who can be trusted, not anyone xD).

A anime/manga guide website would also be cool, pretty sure AA would help to make a perfect one. And it would be basic since theres already mal etc but they are advanced. I know some people who have wanted to watch anime and visited mal and ended up confused and left

Though it would be such a waste if none would use a anime streaming or manga reader website. Though i can do some promoting with google ads and in forums, and we have AA who would be using it (hopefully) and you never know, it might grow and be really big.

Okay so let me bow out with one big post.

The initial idea to have a group based on Anime was brought up by friends and I agreed seeing as how it was a sought after group, I was a fan, it and would be a nice addition instead of the usual 'marketing and business' group.

To the people claiming that I wanted to purely profit off the group, shut the fuck up. I was going to allow buy-ins, to cover some costs, once the group had a stable foundation, was contributing back to HF, and members were in a good place - on top of that it wouldn't be just any member that would be allowed into the group, they had to have shown actual interest and provide proof of contributions, as well as be approved by current members. This wouldn't happen until several months into the creation of the group. I asked several "veterans" and none had major issues with this when asked.

To the rest of you that claim you're a "close-knit" community, you need to wisen up. I have gotten several PM's from the "veterans" and notable members you look up to bashing other members/"veterans", asking for leadership positions as well as offering to buy the position, asking to blacklist certain members, and plenty of other things I don't have the patience to write out. Really showed me some of their true colors.

In regards to Vinnie, he was just a supporter of the idea and nothing more.

I had the best intentions but it's clear that members don't want it. This isn't worth the headache. It's not happening - rejoice.

Right, but they haven't specifically said they wanted that much. Obviously, if they did, people would think they're crazy; but more than one group owner has turned off offers in the five digit range.

People WANT to buy for $11k, they're just not selling for that, meaning that the value of groups is currently even higher. Once someone sells, the price might settle or drop again. How is it not worth $11k if people are willing to buy it for that price right now? I think you're confusing supply with demand. Correct me if I'm wrong.

Once someone sells, the price might settle or drop again. How is it not worth $11k if people are willing to buy it for that price right now? I think you're confusing supply with demand. Correct me if I'm wrong.

The value is a combination of what buyers and sellers are willing to let it be, not one or the other. A company can try to sell an average computer for $10,000 but if no one is willing to spend that much on it, they have to drop the price.

Or lets say someone is only willing to spend $300 on a specific car but the car dealer won't accept $300, the car isn't then worth $300. It's whatever both parties settle on.

I HATED dubbed anime. The voice actors for them are just terrible. It will likely through you off anime, to be honest. Likely some people prefer dubbed so they can understand it but overall the Japanese voice acting is more emotional and fits the characters/plots better in my opinion.

I remember trying to watch Attack on Titan dubbed after watching it subbed. I didn't know if I should laugh or be pissed off on how insulting it made it to watch.

Johnny Yong Bosch (Lelouch) is a sweet remedy to Nunally's English voice actor, I'd love for him to narrate my life, and Suzaku's voice actor wasn't bad either. I dunno, maybe it's just nostalgia since it was the first real anime I really watched when I first got into it, not saying the Japanese dub is bad by any means.

Harem : Anime about 2 or more girls basically loving the main character. They often end without the guy getting anyone, just as it started.

Maou : Romaji for "Demon Lord" Or "Overlord"

Thank goodness, someone agrees. It just got popular because it reflected the case of a lot of manga readers. The anime was purely commercial and it has a different ending than the manga which I don't know if it's finished or not.

Now I don't expect anyone to do an anime for only passion and lose money, but there must be some balancing between making an anime for money and for passion. The anime was a big flop and the only likeable things in the first episodes were the opening and ending which soon enough get annoying.

Tomoko isn't even a neet, she just finished middle school and it's just for her kind-of-loli sex appeal. But yeah, they tried to make the reader/watcher relate to Tomoko because they might both be social cases.

No one is boosting their postcount here. The only topic of discussion is anime, no post is considered LQ and it's a vital part of the activity of the AA. The question is why it should be deleted, there's no reason as this lounge isn't being abused.

Almost finished with Gankutsuo (Count of Monte Cristo), and oh my word the art style is my favorite of any anime I've seen, it's just spectacular. Not to mention the series has plenty of plot twists/conspiracies/drama and I'm only on episode 21 of I think 26. If you can deal with slightly complex plots, I'm sure you'll enjoy it and I recommend it to those who are constantly posting "need anime to watch".

The characters aren't as lovable, but the fights were epic.

It's another Geass world, another story. Totally different from the original. Not as good, but definitely worth it.

I felt iDOLM@STER was a bit unnatural in the way that they suddenly come from nothing to being super popular idols. Wake Up, Girls! seems to portray the reality of it better, since they actually show the difficulties and hardships most idol groups probably go through.

A very funny anime. Nyaruko is funny but the series lacks as a whole since she's the only real comic relief. Also sucks that it didn't end the way it should've after 2 seasons. Even then it's still worth the watch for her shenanigans.

The rework will have better everything, it is Ufotable we're talking about here.

And Unknown, the original F/SN was a fucking disaster compared to F/Z and was only mediocre compared to other anime made near the same time. For you to enjoy it leads me to believe one or all of these things: You have very low standards, you are easily entertained, or you haven't seen many decent anime.

Take your pick, either way the general consensus for the F/SN travesty is just that: it was a travesty to the series. That is why it is getting a remake.

It's not that I have low standards, it's that I prioritize other things over the storyline when a anime doesn't have a decent one.

I've watched about 296 anime now, and I would label about 20 of them as "Good". I'm not easily entertained, I just hate being bored.

I didn't state why I loved F/SN yet. So I'll tell you exactly why:

The music. My father is a musician and I've been playing piano for 6 years, music is one of the things I look most at. If you listen to a few F/SN OST's you'll understand.

Fate/Zero was superior to F/SN in almost every way. I never said SN was better compared to Zero.

I told you enough about myself now to let you understand why I said that.

Is Fate/Kaleid Liner worth the watch?

If you watch it, even though you may or may not enjoy it, you'll understand Fate/Zero a bit more and have the backstory. Hell, you could play the F/SN visual novel if you have ALOT of time on your hands. I'm playing it and I like it.

As to Fate/ Kaleid Liner, it's just a magical girl spin-off, nothing special. So it's all up to whether you're into that.

Decided to finally pick up Mahou Sensou again. It's starting to go somewhere but too late in the series. I just finished Episode 11 and they're still alluding to stuff, so I doubt the ending will tie off many ends.

Cliche or not, it still has lolis and that is usually good enough for me.

On another note, my friend just unveiled a new site recently for anime artwork and is doing some contests to help kick it off.

Not everything is for sure, but I do know that for the month of April, the member with the most contribution to the site (uploads, likes, comments etc.) will receive any indie game from steam. I also hear talk of monthly point contests (you get points for being active on the site) in which awesome prizes will be given out.

So, it would mean a lot to me and the creator of the site if you could upload your AMVs, artwork and other anime related media I know you guys have stuffed your hard drives with. So please like this site on facebook and make an account and....like upload stuff. Ye.

I'm also watching The Melancholy of Haruhi Suzumiya but I'm confused about the order. I looked it up and the 4th episode is actually the 7th episode in some order so now I don't know which order I should watch it in. ?

Haruhi's order is a tough situation, because it takes place out of order. The two ways to view it are either chronological, or release order. If it's your first time watching the series just watch it in release order. Then, if you ever rewatch it, you can try chronological. In my opinion just go with release.

Um, claiming entire seasons are shit because YOU dont like the shows is naive. Remember that its your opinion but to let everyone know that seasons are shit in a pseudo informative post is depressing. Remember, its your opinion. No one really gives a shit what you think is bad. Unless of course you pair it with what you think is good haha.

But bashing entire seasons because you dont like them is pointless and as Happeh said, a little dense.

This will answer your question.

Quote:In Winter 13/14 nothing was good, unless you think maken ki is good (lel).

In Fall, Coppelion's first Ep's was nice liked the setting and the plot, but ended up bad.

Golden Time wasnt my genre style but still liked it a bit but dropped it later.

Kill la Kill complete bullshit random faggot stuff.

Log Horizon, started out good ended up like retarded trolls.

White Album 2 was ~ok but White Album was way better.

In Summer, there was nothing good but watamote was kind of ok.

In Spring, Hataraku Maou-Sama was a bit funny.

Aku no Hana had a nice story, liked it.

Shingeki no Kyojin started out good, ended like horse shit.

Susei no Gargantia was firstly good, then became a bit bad but they turned it all over with the lastest episodes.

Arata Kangatari was really bad, thought it would turn out good though.

Kakumeiki Valvrave was ok but nothing good.

In Winter 12/13 there was nothing good.

In Fall 12 there was Shinsekai Yori, it was pretty good.

K which was good and cool.

Zetsuen no Tempest was pretty good too.

Btooom! was really good.

Bakuman 3 was really good.

Magi was also good.

Jormungand was good.

Psycho-Pass was fucking awesome.

Robotics;Note was really good.

And just a remind incase some one forgot.

This is how the plots for the latest season's have been

I don't think you understand the definition of 'whole'. Whole is the same as saying all. ALL the season was shit = all of it was garbage. Which is fine to believe, but dont call it outright shit then fucking bitch when someone calls you out.

I do understand, but we are currently online on a forum, not in school so i didnt see the need to specify exactly whats shit and whats not shit therefore i generalized the anime seasons since most of it was shit.

We're on an English speaking forum - so excuse me when I took the definition of a word as the literal definition. Also, in what school do you need to specify what anime is shit or not last season? If you did think some was fine, then why not just say: "Didn't like most of this season, few shining lights though" - instead you're being destroyed in two separate threads and all you keep doing is acting stubborn. I haven't seen people argue about how the section should be in a pretty long time actually. Maybe I missed it, stopped caring at some time last year.

My problem is that the only members who really engage in actual anime discussions anymore are newcomers, and while that surely isn't negative in and of itself, 80-90% of those people come here only to talk about things I've either grown tired of or just don't care about. The good old AA members I grew attached to back in the day rarely post anymore, and when they do it's usually unrelated or insignificant.

But I guess I'm one to talk. Aside from two episodes from the seasonal stuff I haven't watched anime in almost 3 months now, and much less had any motivation to discuss it.

Either way, I've been thinking I should probably follow in your footsteps with this one.

Pretty much. Thought the whole point behind this bloated clusterfuck of a thread was to actually keep these posts from becoming threads of their own (although whether that's actually working is up to debate).

Currently deciding which anime to watch. I'm chosing to either watch Yosuga no sora, Black Bullet or some other anime. Is there any kind of anime like Clannad? Also, I watched the latest episode of fairy tail and I was surprise to know what was the Project about and what it can do. Pretty sure Fairy Tail going to win the tournament tho. Also, saw the latest Naruto episode and it's the best filler we had in a while. It was good to see Shisui Uchiha power and it was beast. But they could of had peace if Danzo didn't try to take his eye's and use it for his own will. I still don't know why Itachi Uchiha didn't tell the third hokage about what Danzo did for they can fire him or throw him in prison. Should I start reading the manga for Fairy Tail, Seto No Hanayome, Sora no Otoshimono, and The Seven Deadly Sins?

Just so you know, anime is both the singular and plural version of the word.

You guys should actually pay if you get the chance. Shows you support anime which proves to the studios its a good idea to push for release in the west + they also get paid.

Just finished Kara no Kyoukai movies 2 and 4; this movie series has not disappointed! Hoping to finish the rest of the movies this weekend. the fact that it's over 50GB is insane, but I'm just glad Coalgirls had it subbed and had the torrent on their site.

Speaking of sub groups, what sub group do you guys like most? I like Coalgirls, Commie, and HorribleSubs.

Pretty sure they are the fastest ones and releases HD unlike others. So i dont see why anyone would like another subgroup lol.

Just finished golden time, I think it was great and all but still made me feel bad each time I saw something tragic.

It's HorribleSubs that often has some parts in a video with no subs?

Horriblesubs rips their subtitles directly from crunchyroll. They don't have OP/ED subs, and they don't have typesetting.
