Thread: [\[NO JAILBREAK\] Free up TONS of space!](#)

ZuGgY - January 18, 2014, 6:59 am

This method saved me so much space and will do the same for you!

I am not responsible if anything happens on your iDevice and it gets fucked up, but it worked for me just fine.

Just download and click the trash icon on the program.

Enjoy!

Glad to hear that mate.

You're very welcome guys.

Cleared up just about 1gb on my 5c. Thanks for this!

For those of you that have your iDevice jailbroken, you can use iCleanerPro to clear some space up to!

Thanks for this, I'm going to clean my moms iPad up!

I don't get why people wouldn't want to jailbreak their device? This the only opportunity that every iOS is jailbreakable. (except apple tv 3)

Shadow_Domo - January 18, 2014, 2:18 pm

I would try this, but I'm scared that it will fuck up my phone :/

Few things.

1.) This isn't your "method".

2.) This isn't your "program".

3.) Referrals belong in the fucking referrals section.

4.) <http://www.tongbu.com/zhushou> - You don't own that domain and you sure as hell don't own anything hosted on it.

5.) Nothing you posted on this thread was yours, except probably your Adfly link.

I never claimed anything like that, all I said was that I wrote the guide myself ???

Anyways, about the adfly link, I suppose you were right on that, and changed it to the actual link, so my mistake on that part.

Nothing to do with arrogance. More to do with profiting off of something that was intended to be shared with the public in the first place as freeware.

Well, that issue has been addressed now, so again, I apologize on that behalf.

Furthermore, please no more discussion off-topic.

OT: I'm glad to see that it worked for many of you guys already! <3

Why the fuck is every application in Chinese now these days?

VladHQ - January 18, 2014, 7:26 pm

What does this exactly delete? Siri files? Language files?

Basically, overtime your iOS device keeps files that are junk from apps such as cache files downloaded from the internet, etc I'm not the best at explaining this but im sure you can just google junk files on iOS

WrightPower - January 19, 2014, 7:25 am

Thank you for this man appreciated.

VladHQ - January 19, 2014, 9:40 am

A long time ago, about a year ago when I still had my iPod. I jailbroke it and deleted SO many files that it cleared 8GBs and I was still able to use it without any problems. I highly doubt that there are more than 1GB of junk files and cache on the ARM devices.

If you have a Jailbreak you can Download the Tweak called "iCleaner" it does the same thing, is in English and not this complicated Chinese shit.
