

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Did someone teach you or did you teach yourself?

Spider Venom - January 27, 2014, 6:50 am

Did someone teach you or did you teach yourself how to hack?

PloCe - January 27, 2014, 6:53 am teach myself but it take much time :/

sophrosyne - January 27, 2014, 7:02 am

I taught myself by reading multiple forums and watching multiple videos. Haven't really had anyone teach me. Just read a lot and you should get the hang of things.

Arcturus Mengsk - January 27, 2014, 7:06 am

I am self taught, along with reading up articles that others have written.

Goodies - January 27, 2014, 7:10 am

I've taken classes and certs that have helped a lot. A real lot.

Dadamam - January 27, 2014, 7:41 am

Self taught. I think as was the case for most people - you just pick up on stuff the more time you spend on the computer...

?ă?ž?® - January 27, 2014, 7:57 am i came up with this method myself <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=3955823> I learned VB and servers through youtube and other people.

/Jigsaw/ - January 27, 2014, 9:09 am

Self taught. Probably the best way to as you will understand it better.

Mad76e - January 27, 2014, 9:16 am

Well, it's 60/40 some you just stumble upon. (60 = reading books) and some classes

Imperious1 - January 27, 2014, 9:17 am

Mostly self taught, read a lot off internet as well.

Mr.Green™ - January 27, 2014, 9:20 am

So many people writing that they know how to hack, wonder how many 0 days did they find. Just so you know Rating, Phishing, using common web exploits IS NOT hacking.

Spider Venom - January 27, 2014, 9:22 am

(Jan 27, 2014 10:16 AM)SmnFz Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well, it's 60/40 some you just stumble upon. (60 = reading books)

What books do you recommend a beginner should read to really get him/her started?

Tirus - January 27, 2014, 9:24 am

I was initially motivated to start coding from a friend then I read tons of articles and e-books on it and then watched Youtube tutorials, so I was self taught I guess.

trojan. - January 27, 2014, 3:02 pm

Learned HTML and coding (Java, Ruby, Python etc.) myself, this "hacking" stuff I'm learning via HF as I'm starting to enjoy all of it as much as I enjoy coding/programming. :-)

Supreme??????? - January 27, 2014, 3:03 pm

Self taught. However, I'm planning to take classes sometime in the future connorp123 - January 27, 2014, 3:21 pm

I taught myself on forums like this

Income. - January 27, 2014, 3:43 pm

Hackforums helped me and taught me a lot.

Everything started with me modding games for PS3 and then I started with PC related stuffs and got stuck :)

Old PS3 modding got me the understanding of coding but as mentioned Hackforums helped with a lot of stuffs!