

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: [\[Guide\] How to make your girl squirt \[Guide\]](#)

nurries - February 5, 2014, 7:03 am

Every woman can and will ejaculate, unless they have their Skeen's glands (G spot) removed by some form of surgery. If you ever want to make a woman squirt, you must know that the understanding of the G spot is critical to succeed, because the G spot is responsible for the so called "squirting orgasm" or female ejaculation. First of all, the reason why women squirt is because the G spot, or in more scientific terms: the Skene's glands, swell up during sexual arousal, they swell up with a liquid similar to a male's prostatic fluid, when the woman reaches the orgasm she releases this liquid through the urethra, and trust me, it's not pee, you can smell it or taste it if you want and if that is gross for you then you shouldn't be reading this!

And if you're wondering why these Glands or the G spot exists well then I have no idea, the G spot is supposed to be like the female counterpart to the male prostate, serving no purpose other than pleasure (for girls). Also the fluid taste is affected by the foods she eats; similar to how the taste of the semen is affected by the foods you eat.

The G spot is located about 1 to 2 inches INSIDE and UP on the front wall of a woman's vagina, well actually how deep inside... it depends on the woman but I would say it usually isn't very deep. So well, the question is how to find it?

First, to know how the G spot feels; try rubbing your palate (roof of your mouth) with your tongue with moderate pressure. After a little while you'll notice that this part of the skin starts wrinkling and it sort of feels like a ribbed texture. This is similar to how the G spot feels, it feels pretty soft inside the vagina walls but the G spot is like a little bumpy button with a different texture and it also feels harder than the skin around it, you'll notice a significant change in the texture and size of it if you stimulate it.

So, a good way to find it, is to simply enter your woman's vagina with one or two fingers (palms up) about 1 to 2 inches inside and UP towards her vaginal wall, preferably have her lay down on the bed next to you, then start rubbing slowly and look for the G spot. Good indicators that you have found it can be:

1. Feeling the ribbed texture thing
2. Feeling something swelling up inside of her
3. She makes an "OMG face" and moans

Reminder: Just in case, never enter a woman's vagina if she's not well aroused and lubricated or in other words... if she's not wet enough, it can be painful for most women to be penetrated if they're not lubricated. So, make sure she's pretty aroused before you attempt to make her squirt, you can spend some time doing foreplay with her and maybe you can go down on her if you want, that should get the job done. Also, if she feels the need to pee, you'll have to reassure her that it is not pee but rather her ejaculate, at first it may be tough for her to let go, but after a while the bond of trust between you and your girl should grow more and hopefully make her able to let go.

Ok, once you find her G spot, keep stimulating it with a slow and steady rhythm, you can use a

"come hitter" motion with either one or two fingers, always ask your woman what she likes best, after a while you should start feeling something is swelling up inside of her (her G spot) and it has swollen so much that it is pushing your fingers out of her a little bit (or sometimes really pushing them out a lot) that means she's ready to squirt.

Now you'll need to keep going at it but faster and/or harder to make her cum. What I'm about to tell you is the particular technique that I use with my girlfriend to make her squirt, and this a similar technique a lot of pro squirters use. First you must use two fingers, and it has to be the middle and the ring finger, this is mandatory... why? Because you'll have a better grip that way and you'll be able to hit your girl faster, harder and with more control... you don't want to hurt her, that's why you need control so you can hit her G spot hard and fast and not punch her vagina! Your fingers should look like you're throwing out the 'bullhorn', like you throw out your fingers at a rock concert, or like Spiderman when he is shooting web out of his hands.

Ok, so you enter her with 2 fingers, the middle and the ring finger, putting your index and your pinky on the sides (you can put your pinky on her anus if she likes anal stimulation), now your girl positioning is CRITICAL to make this final step to make her squirt, in order to hit her G spot well, what you want to do is to make sure that your 2 fingers and her G spot are aligned so that they're parallel to each other. And that's because what you are going to do is a tapping motion with your finger pads going UP and DOWN hitting her G spot as fast as you can. A little trick that helped me a lot is to lift her legs up, this way you'll find that in this position it is much easier to feel her G spot, simply because it will rest right on your fingers better, and also if you place your other hand over her pubic bone she's going to feel more pleasure as the internal muscles of her clitoris are going to be pressed towards the G spot.

Hopefully you understood my explanation above, so now is the time for you to go with all you've got, tap her G spot as fast as you can going up and down for about 20 seconds, if she doesn't squirt passed 20 seconds then stop, let her rest and continue to stimulate her in the same process (start slow if her G spot isn't swollen anymore). Don't do this for more than 15 minutes because you'll make your girl pretty sore, if you didn't make her squirt past 15 minutes then save it for another day... this takes some time to master so it's OK if you didn't make her squirt on the first try.

I personally made my girl squirt after about 3 months of trying, when it happened she freaked out and she was very surprised that it didn't smell like pee or anything 'gross'. Please keep in mind that while squirting feels great, women have different reactions, for some women it's not really a big deal while for some others it's so good that they get addicted to it.

The point is to take some time to make your girl have some fun in bed <3

Sources:

Axel Braun - Squirting 101 series

Jason Julius - The female blueprint

Disclaimer: This guide is not completely my own work, although I have done some heavy editing to get the guide at the point it is now. I do not take full credit, but do share the credit with the sources as listed above et al.

GL1TCH3D - February 5, 2014, 12:21 pm

Informative post.

I know I've looked this up elsewhere so I already knew most of this but a good read for the inexperienced or unknowing.

God - February 5, 2014, 12:25 pm

Someone is making his Girl squirt and im just sitting here and mastubaiting.

Perfectionist - April 3, 2014, 10:55 am lol shitty guide, no pictures :c

jk very detailed and in-depth guide, I hope this will come in use sometime (most likely not :c)

Winry Rockbell - April 3, 2014, 10:56 am

Yeah, I found the G-Spot. Didn't know that the G-Spot is in my GF's sister.

Sexy Devil - April 3, 2014, 11:17 am wow..... such a detailed guide/...

Thanks for sharing :P