Instructions:

Unpack and extract Visual Studio ISO to a folder.

Go into the Setup folder.

Edit setup.sdb file with any text editor such as Notepad.

Locate a section named [Product Key].

[img]http://i41.[censored].com/34s4bqa.jpg[/img]

Replace the line (serial code) below [Product Key] (if any) with the new product key to be used to install Visual Studio. If there is no product key pre-defined, just type in manually. No dash between 5-character blocks is required.

For example:

[img]http://i42.[censored].com/1z4z812.jpg[/img]

Save the setup.sdb file.

Run the setup installer from the parent directory.

NOW THE TRIAL VERSION HAS BEEN ACTIVATED!!

Great tut, but will the serial thing, do I need the ISO and unpack it (put the serial in), repack and install or can I just download the trial and install and in the installed dir will thier be that file?

codepoet - May 8, 2010, 4:04 pm

THE BEST AND SAFEST WAY IS THE ISO METHOD...I HAVE NOT TRIED THE WEB INSTALLER METHOD YET BUT I WILL UPDATE LATER....

TehShrink - May 8, 2010, 4:07 pm

Why don't you just mount the .iso with MagicDisc without having any unpacking or repacking?

codepoet - May 8, 2010, 4:30 pm

(May 8, 2010 04:07 PM)TehShrink Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Why don't you just mount the .iso with MagicDisc without having any unpacking or repacking?

because you have to change the serial key -so you can have the full version installed and not just trial.

Ex1led - May 25, 2010, 12:43 am

Great Post, Going to Go try it out now, 2005 was just breakin balls if ya know what i mean, but Thanks sooooo much for putting this out in the Public, and for those who just take it without saying thanks, well...Yea, and yes you should have more rep =)

(Edit) It worked Great, only thing I had a little issue is Running notepad in Administrator Mode, otherwise it would give me "Access Denied" Errors--If anyone else had the same problem, Just open a new notepad in Admin Mode, copy the original File, then type the key in, then save it as the setup file, and overwrite it, works perfectly =)

--First thing i code with it is going out to Crow407 =)..hehe, just wait xD ( Edit) Here It is =)
