Thread: How to STEAL steam inventory?

Reservjesus - February 22, 2014, 8:10 am

Hey, I have ratted a few guys with knives on csgo ect. Worth quite alot.

How can I transfer the items to my account?

The best way should be when thay are AFK and you control the there's computer right? Like put in all the skinns ect and press Accept.

Or can they get the items back? Thanks

Compulsive - February 22, 2014, 8:12 am

If you RAT them, you can control their computers. Otherwise, you can log into their account.

Moseby - February 22, 2014, 8:14 am

I would just take their e-mail and Steam account and change pw's and stuff and fast transfer the knives,

Altho, it's so sad for them who have bought/got knives, haha.

Don't do it :(

You cant do that, you cant trade items for 7 days if you loggs in from a diffrent IP adress. Its the only way I think.

Compulsive - February 22, 2014, 8:17 am

Then you need to control their computer so it is logged on from their IP address.

Don't think you can give other steam users the games/etc, but you can change the info, and doing it on the victim's pc is the best way.

Reverse socks proxy == profit. ?

Son_Of_Diablo - February 22, 2014, 9:09 am

Some rats can make your victims be proxies this way you can do it from your own pc :)

Also, I'm quite sure Steam can find out who he traded with, so your account might be banned and your IP logged and you could end in bigger troubles if it ends the wrong way :)

Advice:

Buy a RDP, download Steam on it, make a new account and buy CS:GO. Use that account for all this. Then transfer from that account your own.

A little story:

I remember when I had RAT'd this guy who was eBay seller, when he was AFK I went onto a lot of different Runescape gold selling sites and bought Partyhats and such. He lost like $4000. I feel so bad about him today..

Yeah I did that, with my real steam... So this guy called me in the middle of the night saying hes gonna make a police report. But I talked to him and he got no proof of anything. I just stole his Knife and such when he was Afk. (Dont know what RAT's are) His Thoughts).

But then he realise that he cant go to the cops and starts threatening me :)

Hello guys, I'm quite new to all this hacking and hijacking steam accounts and was wondering if anyone of you could help me out.

I would like to transfer someones steam items (knife or something) to my account. I would obv. do it with just 1 guy so i got a knife and I would be fine.

Thanks already guys!

A RAT is a Remote Access Trojan, used to access a target computer when left alone

First of all, know some social engineering. Don't be a guy who adds people randomly and ask for them to click a link, that scam is so overused half of the guides are about avoiding being scammed by that.

Start off by getting (or making) a RAT, or basically a keylogger. You want your target to click on the link, download a file, and boom, logger. Then again, you'd need to cover it up so it doesn't blatantly look like a phishing site.

If you do manage to get a keylogger all setup, you'd also need a website. I don't know much about what goes on after hijacking, I just know how it works.

drazor - December 30, 2014, 3:08 am ok thanks harrison, is it anyhow possible the victim downloads the stealer directly from a jpeg file he viewed ?

dont feel bad he would have simply called his bank and eventually they would refund him the money. ?

Muddy Waters - February 14, 2015, 10:01 am if possible steal their ssfn files from the steam folder and you can login on your computer without market/trade ban for 7 days.

ImmortalSkill - April 27, 2015, 9:20 pm

lol sad

Incendiary. - June 14, 2015, 3:47 am

You can bypass steam guard if you have access to their files.

Masterlord1337 - August 14, 2015, 6:10 pm

Do anyone know how to hack peoples steam accounts? need help with that

Crescice - August 15, 2015, 11:51 am

Technically, i'm not 100% sure about this but when you rat someone and from THEIR COMPUTER and make the trade offer from there, the evidence is that he went to a trade offer and sent it too you legit, he technically has no evidence if you uninstall the rat of him. Right?

EthicalBro - September 3, 2015, 9:09 am please tell me which rat you used and how you ratted them?

Since everyone here thinks that stealing the ssfn files would be to go, can someone explain why using a reverse proxy with their machine wouldn't be a better alternative? Not trying to be a dick or anything, actually curious

EDIT: My method:

- 1) Reverse proxy through their machine with whatever rat you have
- 2) Trade Items
- 3) Assuming they try to contact steam support, just say that it was paid for with real money, they don't usually will not return the knife.
- 4)????
- 5) Profit.

umi143 - September 25, 2015, 1:21 pm

Motiv - May 13, 2016, 9:26 am

Stealing steam inventories is impossible unless they have a mobile authenticator on their computer, which 90% of people do not. The new steam escrow has 2fa for every time somethin leaves your inventory, or a change is made.

PM me if you need help with a private method on how to continue stealing.

1337ITWizKid - September 18, 2020, 10:28 am

Before it was simple as swapping ssfn files from the Steam directory, remote ip then, then trade. Now after the 2FA update, you have to have double link, one from their PC, and one from their 2FA device. Social engineering should still work to scam somebody out of their inventory.

Hatterene6272 - September 28, 2020, 6:51 am

Yeah is this still possible if they have 2FA? How do we bypass it?

adw2305 - October 20, 2020, 1:13 am

Hi there,

How can I hack someone's Steam Inventory, if I only have their Steam Profile Link?
