Thanks, this looks really useful! I'll try it out now!

Edit: As soon as the program created the miner.exe, AVG flipped out and deleted it. It might be a false positive, but I will be steering clear of this program just in case.

Do you mean as in AVG said the virus it made was a virus because I don't think it's FUD or UD so I'm not surprised that AVG said that the miner it made is a virus.

Well, how does this work. I can't see any statistics. Could you please PM me or update it in the thread itself?

Thanks

This seems quite sketchy, my AV deletes it right when the download is finished.

I can help you there the program he posted is a bitcoin miner, but not like that it's a builder for a virus that when run secretly mines bitcoins for you. So you out in the pool, user and pass then the miner that comes out is the virus that you get other people to run, although I highly doubt that it's FUD or even UD so you'll need to get it crypted or the anti-virus will pick it up that's assuming the person has a anti-virus, if they don't then don't bother with the crypter.

Hmm.. this looks sketchy to me too because the OP hasn't replied from the time he posted this thread. I tried running it once and ignored the threat. Maybe I am infected now ? Need to get rid of this shit now
