I am going to use an "Article Spinner" and republish popular articles on Squidoo and hopefully make some money off of that. Does anyone have any thoughts on that?

You might make some pocket change but you're not going to make much.

I swear, don't invest in more ebooks. If it worked and he made serious money with it he wouldn't be here trying to make a commission off whoever buys it.

That aside, it sounds like you could make some money with this, it does have potential.

If you smoke, stop smoking, begin by there. Then, put aside some cash, time to time. When you feel that you have a nice quantity, bet on something... market stock, online betting, buy an ebook (if you want, I'm not selling nothing here, btw), etc., use your imagination. In some countries, I think that with Amazon and eBay, you can earn some money too.

Or simply use your skills to create something that is worth the effort, like: if you are into programming, why don't you just start doing some apps, and selling them? There are a million types of apps, but just try.
