

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Street art lovers here?

Melkor333 - March 15, 2014, 12:41 pm

Hey guys!

I was wondering if some of you are interested in Street art! I myself have drawn some graffiti in the last 3 years and painted few shit on wall. I stopped because the cans are too expensive for me..^^
If you're interested in my work, i posted some of them on deviantart.com (feedback desired! ?)

At moment I'm thinking about creating my own Stencils and doing my own kind of street art...

What do you think about Streetart and the different subgenres of it?

Spoiler (Click to View)

i hope this is right section... or was it maybe better if i posted it in the lounge? =S

Spl33k3 - March 16, 2014, 8:07 am

I like streetart, but your streetart kinda sucks :/

Coton Pker - March 16, 2014, 8:14 am

I love to see nice street art.

but in my opinion, it shouldn't be done until you have learned proper control and technique.

I once knew someone who tagged murals rather than lettering, and he spent almost 5 years practicing on cardboard before he actually put paint to a wall.

you also have to be smart about where you paint.. because graffiti can ruin someone's day if they don't like it.

Haax - March 16, 2014, 8:42 am nice . but I think u have do draw more

Melkor333 - March 16, 2014, 12:30 pm

yeah of course i have to draw more!! i've only drawn on legal places where someone else overpainted it after some days, because my murals are really fuucked up^^

StarDesignss - March 16, 2014, 2:18 pm

Your drawings are alright but I honestly don't like it.

Not trying to be mean or anything

geewizzer - March 17, 2014, 5:05 am

Stick to sketching one word.

learn can control by practicing, trying out different paints, caps.

Keep progressing your sketch till it's a masterpiece.

Never think you can't improve.

And for the ones you've already done,
In my opinion the four key elements a piece needs to look good are Sharpness (keeping solid areas solid, not blurry)

3D effect

Background

Aura(stroke)

-Eminent - March 17, 2014, 5:46 am

You meant to say graffiti art? ;/

Also, you have some nice ones there, but try to improve your works.