Thread: Do you support gay marriage?

FPhenom - March 19, 2014, 7:57 pm

I know I'm probably going to get flammed for this, but I am against Gay-Marriages. I am actually against anything that has to do with gay people. I dont mind being friends with people that are gay I guess but like keep your distance nigga. Although I would be friends I would never promote them to do anything gay. I go on facebook and see everyone talking about how they support gay people and stuff and I'm just here sitting like...

NO.

A few reasons I don't support gay marriage:

1. Its gay
2. Its against most religions (or all, I'm not sure)
3. Its disgusting

Now some of you might be like: What does other people getting married have to do with you? Well I really don't care about either people, you can do whatever the hell you want. I just wont be there to support you and your gay partner.

I guess what I'm trying to say is, why all of a sudden do people feel the need to support Gay people? Like NO.

What about you HF users, do you support gay marriage?

Tech?nique - March 19, 2014, 7:59 pm

i honestly couldnt care less as long as they dont try to hit on me im good and its like if lesbians go married and most people wouldnt say anything about it

Redemption - March 19, 2014, 8:00 pm

I support gay marriage. It's like when someone eating a food you don't like. You might not like it but they do.

Troye - March 19, 2014, 8:01 pm

Yes because why should religion rule over what everyone can do? Coming from America I have the freedom of religion.

Exasperated - March 19, 2014, 8:03 pm

Why not?

Because an ancient book written by hippies on crack denies it?
I swear people are so arrogant and stupid.

Rofl Gun - March 19, 2014, 8:29 pm

I don't mind people who don't support it for legitimate reasons, but you cannot even construct a valid argument when you don't even know if your points are actual points -- do more research, please.

Now I don't like the men wearing thongs and shit in public. That's just disgusting, keep that shit at home and away from me (Mar 18, 2014 10:08 PM)SEKTØR Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Thongs were made for women to wear, and in statement earlier I meant to erase the part about not supporting it. I do to an extent, you don't need to be flaunting your homosexuality to the point it makes other heterosexual men uncomfortable.

I work with a couple gay guys and they are cool as hell, they act like regular men and you would never guess they were gay unless you asked.

Not to generalize homosexual men, but its the ones like this that give them a bad rep. Remember this is my opinion.

I support it and I would like to take the time to refute your points.

1. Its gay- No shit. It's called gay marriage for a reason.
2. Its against most religions (or all, I'm not sure) Irrelevant most first world countries have laws separating church and state so this should have no effect on laws.
3. Its disgusting- This is an opinion. We should base our actions off facts not your personal feelings.

Ok... First off, this list just makes me want to claw your eyes out and then shove them...(never mind)

But really, you list one of the reasons you don't support gay marriage is because it's gay?? That's like me saying I don't like the color green because it's green.. THAT MAKES NO SINCE! Then you say it's against it's against most religions. Well lets see- Buddhist don't have a universal opinion on same sex marriage, only adultery. Episcopal Church support same sex marriage as of 2012. Evangelical Lutheran Church supports same sex marriage as of 2009. Hinduism doesn't have a solid stance on it, but some Hindu text do support it. Judaism approved same sex marriage in 2012. United Church of Christ advocates in favor of same-sex marriage... must I go on?. And finally, "3. Its disgusting"... Just.. no.. Who are you to deem something "disgusting"??? I believe in having your own opinion, but when you go out and insult hundreds of thousands of people for loving some one of the same sex, even tho it's not like one day they wake up and say, "lets be gay", I think you should just keep it to your self because that is VERY insulting.

You may not think of gay people as much, but I am here to tell you that WE are stronger than you think! We stand up for ourselves and live the way that makes us happy, and you have no right to degrade a big chunk of the human race because they believe differently from you.

So please, before you try to go and insult another human being, make sure you have a good reason other than these childish responses.

Realizing an actual man and woman couple will still have the rights that gays don't(And to fully call it "Marriage" and be correct), I believe traditional marriage is STILL, between a man and woman. I do believe gays should be able to have the basic rights of a couple, Just not have the FULL on marriage package, If that makes sense."

Dolan. - March 19, 2014, 11:54 pm

This question is essentially asking the following: Do you support equal rights?

Honestly, asking if you support people being able to do things like every other person is just ludicrous.

Let me address your reasons:

1. What kind of reason is that? Honestly. "Reasons why I'm against something. It's something." How does that make sense, even to you?
2. Why does religion dictate something must be done? Fairly sure slavery is a fun part of religion, but we don't do that. I've never seen any sane person follow 100% of a religion. Most religions are just bigoted anyways.
3. Disgusting? What about two girls going at it? I'd personally say that is pretty hot. It's a shame that shit is gay though, eh?

Ronan. - March 20, 2014, 5:08 am

So, threads like this tend to bring out the two extremes of each side.

First off, I'm gay. Why? Because it's what I feel is right for me.

I have straight friends, guys/girls and I have gay friends, also guys/girls.

Maybe it's the fact it's different in my area and I know for a fact in some cultures people are brought up to believe being gay is vile and deserves to be punished (Russia for example), maybe it's how many cultures I'm mixed in with (My best friend being from Iraq, close friends from India, China, Thailand) or just the fact that I'm gay that makes me as open-minded as I am. I have never seen a need to hate on people without reason provided it isn't causing harm to anyone.

Now, while I am gay myself, what I think gives us a bad press is people like this:

[Video: <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=eX3l2P1jyP8>]

"OH! But Ronan, you just said you don't hate people as long as they aren't causing harm!", "What a hypocrite!" - Okay, so while I see absolutely nothing wrong with being gay, when people take their sexuality way too far to this extent it annoys me. Sure, be happy, nothing wrong with that - but sexuality doesn't change your sex, males are males regardless of their preference. Acting like a girl, being overly flamboyant, purposely talking in a higher pitched voice, CONSTANTLY bringing up their sexuality are all things that annoy me, mostly because when I tell someone that I'm gay they associate me with those traits.

I might be gay but I don't see any need to do any of that crap, it gives us a bad reputation.

Another point to bring up is when people think that they don't want to be friends with a gay person unless they try something on you.

I don't know where the hell this misconception comes from or why they think they're so adonis-like that anyone close to them will sprawl out in front of them but I can assure you that shit doesn't happen.

Those that think this either have a painfully big ego or very few friends of the opposite sex. I have my straight friends and I wouldn't even think of doing stuff with them, same goes for my gay friends, we might be the same sexuality but we're not going to mess around because we're both gay, just like how a straight guy and a straight girl can be friends, there's no sexual tension.

TL;DR:

- I'm gay, why hate on something causing no harm?
- Some gay people take their sexuality way too far, why act like a girl? Get your purposely high-pitch voice shit out of here.
- Just because you're straight, doesn't mean we're going to do stuff with you, you're giving yourself far too much credit.

Concussive - December 30, 2016, 1:34 am

Oh man I don't think I've ever seen a more stupid post OP, seriously just take this down it's so embarrassing, just look at your reasons, and "guys have dicks to fuck chicks" like what the actual fuck, i use my dick to fuck chicks personally but i don't have a dick to fuck chicks i have a dick cus I'm a dude where you put it and what gender of who you put it into has nothing to do with literally anything at all. Anything that would be inappropriate for a gay person to do would be inappropriate for a straight person to do, for example having a parade for gay pride is pretty much the stupidest thing i've ever heard of but it would be equally as retarded if it was the straight pride parade. I guess certain gays just put a bad name on the community because they're so over sensitive and flamboyant, thats what embarrassing if you purposely act feminine and flamboyant publicly then you need some sense knocked into you but if you like dick and you have a dick just deal with your sexual encounters privately like anyone else geez.

I do yet don't, I don't care. It doesn't matter who you love.

??Austin?? - December 30, 2016, 2:37 am

This shit is in the wrong section. I think? Why hasn't anyone noticed this yet?

Science, Religion, Politics, Philosophy, ETC.

And it's also from 2014.....thanks Concussive

Hello Buddy - December 30, 2016, 2:38 am

I don't care what they do. If it doesn't effect me then i couldn't care less.

gay marraige is against the bible so its bad

I am personally opposed to gay marriage. Lesbian marriage I'm fine with. Both shouldn't be allowed to adopt kids. There are plenty of health risks involved with man-on-man action. Woman-on-woman, not so much.

Sure thing. As long as they respect me I respect them.

Biff - March 11, 2019, 10:48 am way to necro, nerds. Well might as well do it:

"Haha as long as they dont bother me, i'm cool with it!"

Gay Marriage is an attempt to rewrite the definition of marriage and nothing else really matters to anyone. That's the center of the 'debate' and has nothing to do with a decision to punish pete for sticking his pecker where it shouldn't go. Marriage once was an indication of a new Family. A family with a leader (husband, provider) and partner, underneath him (wife, the protector).

I am against the idea of blanket support for "Gay marriage" because it covertly protects pedophiles (trying to pass as gay)

Tragedie - March 11, 2019, 11:08 am

Shit, what's the divorce rates among heterosexuals? 60%?

Straight people don't know how be married, maybe the gays will figure it out.

I grew up in a Christian environment, with prayers and bible readings daily.

If you're using religion as an excuse, you're mistaken. Jesus said to love one another. As far as I know, marriage is the biggest declaration of love you can give (well almost). The promise of spending the rest of your life together, through sickness and health. It's a bigger task than saying yes in the church, it's hard work. I think everyone who's willing to promise each other eternal love, should be allowed to do so. Gay, straight, bi. You have my blessing.

Sure. I'm not gay (unless it's with perfectstorm) so, whether it's legal or not doesn't have a personal impact on me.

Literally this.

I don't care what others ppl do until it's effects my personal life.

Love is Love, is one person falls in love with someone of the same sex, then so be it. Let them get married. That's part humanity, homosexuality has always existed, even in ancient times. It's completely normal.

lust - March 11, 2019, 3:15 pm

I really don't understand why you have to care so much about what other people do with their dicks.

Astrogen - March 11, 2019, 4:09 pm

I think it's fine as long as it's male > female. (Gay - Lesbian)

flavoral - March 11, 2019, 4:12 pm

Ok can we stop with the thread digging now?

extreme1owning - March 11, 2019, 5:47 pm

Yes, I wouldn't like someone else telling me who/what i couldn't marry so who am I to make that decision for someone else?
