Thread: Hackforums Member KingJason Arrested

Complex - March 20, 2014, 3:17 am

Since I know a lot of you don't read the league of legends section I figured I would post this here. He basically sold a service that allowed you to get the IP of pretty much any player in league of legends.

He also did stuff back in 2013 such as selling user account info, etc.

Here is his profile :

<https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=2196396>

Official news report:

http://www.computerworld.com.au/article/540972/queensland_police_arrest_man_allegedly_hacking_us_gaming_developer_site/

+ a picture of what he was currently doing when arrested

<http://mypolice.qld.gov.au/wp-content/uploads/2014/03/Computer-hacking-image.jpg>

Quote:Queensland Police Fraud and Cyber Crime Group have charged the man with three counts of computer hacking/misuse and five counts of fraud, including dishonestly obtaining property from another person or company.

He is due to appear in the Maryborough Magistrates Court on 8 April, 2014.

The charges follow a search of the man's property in November 2013, where police seized laptops and a hard drive for forensic examination. Police also received assistance from the FBI and the US gaming company.

RIP

Ch?ese - March 20, 2014, 3:19 am

Always sad to hear when a member gets arrested. I wish him all the best of luck and hope none of the charges stick. From what I gather he wasn't the most loved member of HF but all points aside, no one deserves jail time.

~Jay~ - March 20, 2014, 3:19 am

I bet the people he was messaging on Skype are flipping out over this.

JackPackage - March 20, 2014, 3:19 am

Wow this kind of stuff makes me scared and wanna leave HF. Im maybe me addicted into these kind of stuff because I really like doing these stuff its like a drug for me, I maybe end up in jail:(<33

What memdump does?

Also why he need freezant?

Complex_ - March 20, 2014, 3:23 am

Because he was selling user info, I would expect him to probably face a lot of charges. My best guess, if he doesn't go to prison, he will be banned from using the internet for probably 10+ years (based on previous similar crimes), or something along that. He didn't really do much to cover himself up.

Zabuza? - March 20, 2014, 3:24 am

Wow, I wish him the best of luck. I think we can expect for him to be getting the black hatter award sooner or later.

(Mar 20, 2014 03:22 AM)saixen Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What memdump does?

The memdump tool dumps his ram. You dump the ram mainly because things like truecrypt, and other forms of crypto programs are useless if feds are able to dump your ram. The freezant is if he turns off his computer. If his computer is freshly turned off they can access the ram and spray the freezant on the ram (ram stays on for up to a solid minute after shutdown), and allow them to dump it.

He was silly for getting caught. He should of been more cautious.

He was raided a few months back he was very careful with covering himself but the FBI supenoed (sp?) his personal gmail and got IPs from there and traced him,

I really fucking hope nothing sticks to him hes a good guy and doesnt deserve jail, Its bullshit this computer law he could have raped someone and would get a lesser sentence than what he is facing.

He's sharing information about over 100.000+ people, If you want to make money from doing a blackhat buisness you better cover your ass, he had lack of protection and got caught.

His activity is listed under Cyber fraude.

I never mentioned that he hacked, I said he had acces to the Database, I ain't sure how he obtained it, but he should've avoided it he was having illegal documents and he decided to abuse it and turn it into a service.

"illegal documents" - Surely having databases saved on your computer bearing in mind that if you didnt hack them yourself would fall under freedom of information, if a file is available to download there is nothing stopping you downloading it. E.g. the people who read or downloaded the Wikileaks documents, they could be classed as "illegal documents" but no one would be in trouble for having them on their computers, its a double standard and I hope the cops realise that.

@ Barrage Tax When you are dealing and selling illegal documents then you should be careful and watch your steps.It's different just to have some archives and different to taking advantage and making money of them. Resolvers are not bad the worst thing u'll do with it is to ddos someone to win a ranked or something. But Riot won't see it that way, they are losing money if someone hears that their servers have been compromised and personal information are leaked. So they have to do their job.

I personally disagree with this politic, they should've learned what their vulnerability is but they don't so we have to accept that and every person doing illegal stuff must take his security measures.

Gloves are worn to not leave any fingerprints, they're not explosion proof. Did you think a pair of flimsy gloves like that could resist an explosion? Jesus Christ.

I hope his lawyer sees the search video and notices the investigator navigating through the laptop before taking pictures, surely that's tampering with evidence regardless of jurisdiction.

You dump the ram mainly because things like truecrypt, and other forms of crypto programs are useless if feds are able to dump your ram. The freezant is if he turns off his computer. If his computer is freshly turned off they can access the ram and spray the freezant on the ram (ram stays on for up to a solid minute after shutdown), and allow them to dump it.

He didn't hack shit, the DB was on sale on a dw forum and he simply bought it for 500$, the guy who sold it didn't want to open a shop because of the risks, he sold it to 5 ppl.

This guy jason on setup a shop with it and sold it on hf, pretty stupid knowing that omni is known for giving out your ip address if you run a BH shop and he blocked most vpn from hf.

Also that skid used Skype, chrome , and windows fucking 8. Fucking idiot..

Zion. - March 21, 2014, 10:49 am

Yes put the man in jail who managed to hack into the Riot DB.

Clearly no one was smart enough to secure it. GG logic.

Omni stickied it.

I'm quite sure he pays a little bit of attention towards Sticky threads.

And he infact did hack it all on his own.

Read this article:

He got acces to the co-founder of Riot games and also shared pictures of upcoming releases and such.

Also he ended his tweet by using the tag 'Jason (God)'.

They probably shared the account, and he figured why access it if his partner got arrested. When Jason bragged about knowing people, I'm guessing he was talking about that guy.

Meh. I sent him a skype message around this same time, and he never responded (and has been offline on skype ever since). + on his computer you can see hackforums, lol-ip and skype open... Safe to say it was KingJason that was arrested.

It's not karma. It's like saying a mysterious force interacts with all of us depending on our actions when it's impossible. It's like saying "thank God that surgical operation went fine" when it's the surgeon you should be thanking.

He was just too dumb not to get caught.
