

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Anyone with Go Daddy? - Coming Soon page

Poppet - March 22, 2014, 7:47 am

HeyHey,

When I navigate to my site www.mobasoft.co.uk, it comes up with the default go daddy coming soon page.

How do I remove this and make my site read my own files stored on the server?

Thanks.

?

Vert0x - March 22, 2014, 7:48 am

It does say:

If you are the owner, sign in here.

Poppet - March 22, 2014, 7:50 am

(Mar 22, 2014 07:48 AM)Vert0x Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It does say:

If you are the owner, sign in here.

And redirects me to cpanel which doesn't do anything.

Djokovic - March 22, 2014, 8:30 am log in to your FTP via FTPzilla then remove the default files and index.html and replace with your own

Josh-Emm - March 22, 2014, 8:32 am

If its only a domain you have with them you will need to get your nameservers from your hosting and change them on the godaddy cpanel!

Exemplification - March 22, 2014, 8:45 am

Godaddy adds default pages. Delete them; to find their names you can make a new subdomain and find what files are added. For their Windows hosting they add: Vdir/\App Data

default.aspx

index.html

layout-style.css

stdfooter.html

Then it should work, and if it doesn't try to go direct to one of your files. Make your homepage either index.html/php or default.aspx for easy navigation