Dragon. - March 23, 2014, 11:07 am

Does this come with a decent sized combo list? Or do we have to supply our own?

(Mar 23, 2014 11:07 AM)Dragon. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Does this come with a decent sized combo list? Or do we have to supply our own?

It comes with a list of the most common usernames and passwords for SSH, as well as a few private passwords I used myself when I used to sell rooted VPS.

PM me, add my Skype or Jabber for anything else. ?

Angel Beats?? - March 23, 2014, 11:39 am

Isn't SFTP a protocol of SSH? If so I don't understand how it gets more roots than any other

24/7 - March 24, 2014, 10:54 am

It looks awesome, thinking of buying this.

Is it possible to crack multiple RDP's (Ex. a .txt list) or are we only able to crack one at the time.

I believe the reason would be that a router or such probably wouldn't run sftp. Biggest issue with brutng ssh is that if you can't filter them you get mostly routers or other trash.

SSH -> Has various different types of authentication (i.e keyboard interactive)

SFTP -> Bypasses keyboard interactive authentication, plus more servers than routers run SFTP.

This tool only cracks linux servers. Not windows.

Any reason why it's the very same IP range as OP was using for his picture?

(Mar 24, 2014 11:26 AM)Clubs Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Any reason why it's the very same IP range as OP was using for his picture?

he gave me the ip list he was using along with the pass & user list just to test:)

Because in the zip there are three lists, two with most common usernames and passwords and an old IP list just to show the format.

Chickendipper - March 27, 2014, 1:57 pm

It's not impossible for windows to run SSH lol.

Looks like a nice tool none the less, Would be better if it was coded in C so you could use it on the roots you get but yeah

You're right, but people associate SSH with Linux.
