

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Does going from Windows 8 to Windows 8.1 improve security?

BestThreadEver - April 8, 2014, 4:41 pm

Does Windows 8.1 provide more security compared to Windows 8? It says it has the built-in Windows Defender but if you installed an AV program on your own wouldn't it make no difference? Also the addition of start button is meaningless if you already installed Classic Shell.

I just wanna know if it's worth upgrading to Windows 8.1 from Windows 8.

Aura - April 8, 2014, 4:45 pm

These kind of questions and information can easily be found in articles online.

<http://mashable.com/2013/10/17/windows-8-1-best-features/>

BestThreadEver - April 16, 2014, 4:47 pm

(Apr 8, 2014 04:45 PM)Aura? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) These kind of questions and information can easily be found in articles online.

<http://mashable.com/2013/10/17/windows-8-1-best-features/>

Sure but I wanted to know how Hack Forums people think about this.

Tesseract - April 16, 2014, 6:37 pm

(Apr 16, 2014 04:47 PM)BestThreadEver Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Sure but I wanted to know how Hack Forums people think about this.

The answer is yes, as that is one of the main reasons Microsoft has invented updates. You don't notice a new feature after every update you get from Windows Updates. Ever though about that? ?

-Hyperion - April 20, 2014, 6:46 am

Yes it does windows 8.1 should have actually been called 9 it changed a lot.

RDCA - April 20, 2014, 6:48 am

No ground breaking security changes but it is always best to stay up-to-date with things.

WarOnDrugs - April 20, 2014, 7:12 pm

No. It merely fixes bugs that were in the previous version and removes the shit that annoyed you in the previous version.