

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Requesting clean up in sellers section

'Snorlax - April 15, 2014, 8:18 am

I could literally get 100 reported posts per day by reporting people's threads because they posted them in the wrong section.

Member Sales Market

Look at all the account threads. All of them either belong in the Online Accounts section or one of the sub-sections.

We have the online accounts section for a reason, and the seller sections are filled up with those threads.

Please clean up those sections. It's getting pretty annoying to look at day after day.

Thank you.

Kioshi - April 15, 2014, 8:22 am

We also have the report option for a reason, it'll do all of us some good. It would be nice to get it cleaned up though, but it also might not get genuinely accepted as a suggestion. You just might end up having to report everything for the correct purpose.

You don't have to be the board moderator to moderate ? meaning if you care, then show it.
-Trophix

'Snorlax - April 15, 2014, 8:30 am

(Apr 15, 2014 08:22 AM)Trophix Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) We also have the report option for a reason, it'll do all of us some good. It would be nice to get it cleaned up though, but it also might not get genuinely accepted as a suggestion. You just might end up having to report everything for the correct purpose.

You don't have to be the board moderator to moderate ? meaning if you care, then show it.
-Trophix

Reporting posts all day long will give you a warning. I got one last summer, and I was told that my account would get closed if I reported one more post in that section.

I could PM a staff to do it, but he would probably forget about it pretty quick and I would have to PM a staff again because it gets filled up again.

If I could, I would report all the threads myself, but I am not going to risk that.

Viral Dragon - April 15, 2014, 8:36 am

OP:

Sorry, send a PM with the thread links to me and I'll report them. If I had moderation powers there, I would take care of it, but I don't.

Sorry. Sadly enough though, nothing can be done about this other than just reporting the threads.

-Viral.

