The Empire

What is this?

Great question. This is a thread where we, a select group of members of the usergroup, The Empire, get together to help others. We don't care who you are. We don't care how old you are, rich you are, etc. We have no requirements for people to receive support. We do this because we care about this forum, and the people in it. No matter what your situation is, we're here for you.

Hold up! What can I ask you all about or come to you about?

Just about anything. Emotional, innuendo, etc. No matter what your situation is, we've got people you can go to.

I just need to talk to someone... can I do that?

By all means, yes. We don't care if you need someone to listen to, or if you need some one-on-one support. Whether it's a friend or advice you need, we're here for you.

Who can I contact?

For now, contact one of these three people. Click their name to PM them, or you can post here and we'll post back. Either works.

Serious question:

Does size really matter?

Thanks for the help desk Empire ?

Assuming this is a real question, no...It doesn't.

It also depends on the level of love in a relationship.

One of the best ways to get a girl going is actually oral. Considering all the highly sensitive spots that your tool isn't gonna trigger.

You want a girl to call you the best? Learn as much as possible about oral and such. Not so much about actual fucking.

Example:

Passionate love sex:

No matter what this is typically good simply due to the passion in it. Typically won't matter what is what or who fucks up on something.

Non-passionate sex:

All skill based.

But again, I am assuming this to be a serious question but I feel like it isn't...So I left some things out...

Why do man lie about their dick size. After all, it's not size that matters.

Men who lie, often lie because they think they're small, because other's around them lie, so they do too. Apparently, a bigger dick = more man.

It's strange, I know.

What would you say is a great way to release stress?

Right now, well I've fucked up and I'm in a point of stress where I want to just fucking lay down and not wake up.

I've thought of taking a run or something, but I have no motivation.

I've personally gone through a long period of time where I felt like this.

Honestly, the best antidote for this, is to find a friend to hang out with, or speak to someone about it. Normally, I'll call up one of my friends, and have them come over to my place, and we'll hang out for a bit. Working in a gym, or using a punching bag is also a great thing, if you're in the angry, 'I'd like to beat the living daylights out of something' mood.

Mind PM'ing me, and elaborating a bit? I feel I could help you more then.

I've thought of taking a run or something, but I have no motivation. How long have you felt like this? If this has just been going on today only then take a nap or eat if you have the time. I find those two things to actually help better than anything else when it comes to stress. If this has been going on for a while then I suggest doing something that you've never done before. Even if it's as small as playing a new video game, do something fun and enjoyable that will make you forget about all of the minor issues in life. I hope this helped! ?

I meant regarding innuendo - So your opinion is that it only influences your partners opinion or though process on you slightly? Meaning it's not a big deal?

I should probably be more specific - How much in your opinion does height matter to the female sex when it comes to physical attraction to men?

Thanks for your response.

That's a hard one to answer. Some females like shorter guys, and some like 'em taller.

It depends on who it is really. In the end however, height doesn't really matter.

This is another tough one to answer.

There's no tell-tale sign to see if someone likes you. For example, I've had people who immediately made it very obvious, and some who didn't. I'll let Tom answer this further.

You can tell someone likes you by subtle hints, see how they respond. If he is straight though, he may not react how you want him to. Also, he may be married.

There are obvious ways to tell if someone likes you. Differences in a general mood and conversations are big giveaway. It is harder for us gay guys because you can't really force someone to like you. You should pay attention to body gestures and what not and see if there is a difference. It is hard to accept it, but sometimes you'll just have to move on from him.

Agreed.

Look for the signs man. There are ALWAYS signs. If someone is in a hellishly pissed off mood and then totally do a 180 and turn to a wonderful mood when you talk to them, there is a good chance they are into you.

If they are always making small talk with you, especially in a different manner than simply "friendly", they are more than likely into you.

But in your case, you also have to consider the guy being straight and older. So it is quite possible that he is just being friendly and doesn't realize he is sending any signals at all. He might not think in that way towards you at all and could possibly be totally ignorant of people being gay. That tends to happen. People sometimes just forget that people are gay due to the low population they have and they are still decently rare at this point.

Hope everything works out for you though.

How can I move on from my past? I have had a hard life and have done things, and saw things that the average person most likely won't in a lifetime, I have a lot of regrets and there are lots of things I would change if I could, but no matter what I do I cannot rid myself of the thoughts and it depresses me a lot.

One day I can be fine, happy and not thinking about it, but it takes one thought and I go to a dark place that is filled with anger, hate and sometimes suicidal thoughts. I have a girlfriend who does a lot for me, but I don't think she fully understands what I am going through. Sometimes I have nightmares and panic attacks and don't know what to do. I have been to both a psychologist and an anger management specialist but neither of them had any success with my issues, and I am at a loss of what to do next, I am scared that one day my anger will get the best of me and I will end a life, or that my depression will get the better of me and I will end my own.

I struggle from very similar stuff actually.

I have made it a goal to make my life better. I do many things that help at least some what.

Examples:

Writing

Music (both listening and singing/creating music)

smoke cigarettes. (wouldn't do that if I were you)

Hangout a lot with friends and people I like

I would suggest you start writing. I write constantly. A good story of mine for you to read is this:
<https://www.fictionpress.com/s/3164239/1/The-Mysterious-Voice>

The entire story all revolves around depression, anger, and dealing with ones past. Probably the best thing I have ever written actually, not saying I am really any good, and probably easily the most "from the heart" story I have ever done. This started by my simply grabbing a piece of paper and I started writing everything I was feeling. Eventually it somehow turned into that. It helped quite a bit for me to do it. I also keep a journal as well. Have done that for years now. I always feel better venting through it.

Also, talk to us. Find some good guys on HF, I have found quite a few such as Eternal, Evangelist, Kosmos, etc; and I talk to a few of them quite a bit. They give good advice and like to help. This thread is here for such things. Having a shit day? Post here. Tell us what is wrong and ask for advice. Or simply vent here.

I actually just started to get big into music. It has become one of my biggest stress relievers. I now listen to metal (metalcore, hardcore, death, etc) because I feel it talks a lot about this type of stuff. It really helps. Then suddenly I got into a band with some friends and started making music. It is an AWESOME vent.

There is NO real way to escape your past. It will always haunt you to some degree. But you can make it so that it doesn't effect you as much. You have to first realize that you are what you are/were, and accept that. Accept that there isn't much about it you can do except be better now.

Don't live in the past, live in the present.

I hope I helped man.

Quite simple honestly, just say you're not seeking a relationship at a time, and it's not her. Don't show a non-interest in her, but in a relationship. She'll seek elsewhere, and her self-esteem won't be effected. Normally, if you tell someone it's with them, they get offended or think it's them.

I've mentioned numerous times that I'm not seeking relationships nor am I interested in women at the time, yet she continues to purse me.

One time she followed me all the way to the bathroom and sat and waited 10 minutes for me to do my business, and no im not kidding.

So close to saying something I shouldn't to her.

Tell her it's for her own benefit to not want to pursue you. Just say you don't want anyone getting hurt, and that you're not looking for a relationship at all anytime soon, or say you're better off friends.

Men who lie about their penis size think that women judge according to their penis size and that they might get rejected or turned down because they don't have a big enough penis. Also the men they are friends with probably lie about their penis size and make them feel like their penis isn't 'big enough' or is very small. They end up lying to their friends who believe they are telling the truth and make them feel more insecure about their penis. Pretty much its a perpetual cycle of insecurities.

That's always a romantic time.

If you can't drive, or can't do that, why not take her on a picnic? Those are always great, and there's no tremendous amount of money going into that.

Some girls love a man who can cook, so if you can cook, why not whip up a nice dinner, and have a candlelit date from home, that you cooked? She may love that.

There's loads of dates that don't require a ton of money.

~ The Empire

This is great! I'd like to help out too. I know I've just joined HF, so I'll put in some time and gain trust on this board with some good posts if I can help further HQ content.

There are so many skilled users here with knowledge of things completely beyond my ability. I'd love to give back and return the favor with some level of knowledge in the 'human sciences' dept. if I can. The balance of IQ and EQ makes for a happier life :)

Good on you guys for building a support team for others if someone might need it.
