So what did you guys think about Aku no Hana? I heard it only sold 400 copies which I seriously don't understand as to me, that anime is a masterpiece! I'd give it a 9/10 though instead of 10 because the ending sucked. They were probably planning on making a second season and due to low sales, they didn't but still. Give me your opinion :)

I couldn't bring myself to finish it.
I watched 3 episodes and was falling asleep.
Art felt bland along with the music...
Different people like different things I guess

I just searched that anime up in google and I have to say that must be the most shittiest animation I have ever seen in my career of watching anime. No wonder they had bad sales.

They aren't making any profits due to people sueing them for raping their eyes. The animation is horrible, made it unwatchable for me.

You'd all get used to the animation in a bit, and to me, the story is worth it.

I have a friend who dropped it after the first 3 episodes and then later came back to it and gave it a 10/10 >.> Just saying

The anime just looks like shit in general. That's only character design though; it looks so bad in comparison to the manga.
Thought if you don't mind it, the story isn't all that bad.

Well, the anime used that technique called retroscooping so yeah, but mostly the story kept me interested so yup I didn't mind it much :)
