Thread: How do I make profit from my website traffic?

Marko - May 4, 2014, 7:54 am

I own a website that gets 30,000 visitors from France with a keyword cpc of $0.20 which is not much.

Any other way to make more money out of it?

It's very hard to answer without knowing the niche of the website.

Just use PPV (Pay Per View) banners. Check <http://www.infinityads.com/> they pay $1,80 each 1.000 views ?

adf.ly website entry ?
cpalead banner tool ?
amazon affiliates ?

Instead of monetizing the traffic by putting ads on your pages (which is an idea to consider, but there are others) why not make a product that spins with your niche and sell it to your traffic.

If your domain, SEO, page details, niche, contains anything with the word "free" though, I would just forget the idea above and put ads as your traffic is basically now downed in the quality margins as the audience would most likely be the people that are just on the search for free stuffs.

I also suggest going with that idea.

Product Market affiliation is really good, like being an affiliate on Amazon and selling stuff like that. Or becoming an affiliate for someone on Sellfy and sell their online product on there.

What if someone buys views? Do the PPV still pay out?

When you buy views, obviously you are paying the PPV network and you are not going to get cash back from them. You pay for traffic so you can get a offer you have out there that you want to convert and make you turn dollars.

you can use CPA or adsense, depends on niche.

Nico Robin - May 7, 2014, 7:55 pm

adsense or any ad clicking/viewing site would be nice.

if its really niched based and u can find a CPA that goes along nicely with that niche u could try CPA or even CPD
