

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Magic Stresser potential scam?

Bryan Cranston - May 5, 2014, 11:27 pm

Hi, I have a concern I'd like to raise in regards to Magic Stressing. I recently bought a subscription for this booter and I wanted to see how it went. I input 500 seconds ($10 plan claims maximum boot time is 172800 seconds, which is 48 hours) and the attack only lasted a minute. Not to mention you can't even start attacks because apparently I "already have an attack running" and nothing is happening. What's going on here..?

EDIT: Oh yeah and not to mention, the website is constantly down and is hardly functional. Autobuy not working and logs have mixed values.

Spoiler (Click to View)

xploD - May 6, 2014, 7:54 am

Have you contacted the owner of this booter ?

Bryan Cranston - May 8, 2014, 3:47 am

(May 6, 2014 07:54 AM)xploD Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Have you contacted the owner of this booter ?
Yep, no response after 3 days now.

<https://i.imgur.com/ON0uxh8.png>

Teh Afro - May 8, 2014, 3:50 am

Why the fuck are you calling this a potential scam? It is a scam.

You've just wasted your money.

GG OP. ?

Time? - May 8, 2014, 3:52 am

You were scammed OP. I'd contact the owner in any way possible and have a chat with him.

Ifinger - May 8, 2014, 5:08 am

That is one of the most worst coded booters ever but it is HackForums...

Remix™ - May 8, 2014, 9:06 am

Yeah I would chargeback on PayPal before the date is up. Say that you paid for access to a site but the site is offline and the when it is online, the services you paid for are not working

Reticulum - May 8, 2014, 9:14 am

No screw that, report there site and Paypal email to Paypal. Get their account permanently limited.

(May 8, 2014 09:06 AM)Remix™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah I would chargeback on PayPal before the date is up. Say that you paid for access to a site but the site is offline and the when it is online, the services you paid for are not working

Alex™ - May 8, 2014, 9:31 am

"Fuck off and <https://puu.sh/8EdMh.png>"

Lol, wrong context or just an unneeded exclamation mark?

Lorde - May 8, 2014, 9:32 am

The site works perfectly fine I can't help it its being dosed at times. You were in no way scammed you recieved what you paided for, I do apologize for the time it took me to respond there is no exception for that.