Thread: Need someone who can set up block chain explorer and a mining pool

Theref - May 8, 2014, 6:57 am

I'm currently working on an altcoin to educate crypto currencies to my local community. And I need someone that have experience in setting up a block chain explorer site and a mining pool. I will provide all things needed such as server, domain name, or other stuffs as needed. All you need to do is just to set up the sites.

If there's nothing wrong, the coin will be released next month-ish, and I will need these block explorer and mining pool be ready shortly after that. If there's anyone interested, reply to this thread or add my skype : rurod1

Will pay for your effort in BTC, as long as it's reasonable amount.

So, for the mining pool, someone sets it up for you but you get full ownership afterwards?

Yes. It's like, hey I have an unused server, can you install MPOS on that server for my coins? I'll pay you.

? Why would I transfer the ownership to someone else anyway

No, it could be that the creator of the pool kept monitoring the pool to fix it when the stratum is down, for example.

If you don't have any knowledge of pools, you won't be able to have a pool just like that, it requires you to know some things about it.

Ok, just spent my whole friday night fiddling and finally got the MPOS and block explorer running. Sorry to those who pm'd me! I'm closing the thread now.
