One question; if you accept the application, will you still need to buy in? If there's no buy in, I will most certainly submit an application.

Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back):

I manages a Minecraft Server a while back, I was staff for it for quite a while. Typically I will just play on a server that has something to do with Skyblock or PvP.

No, it is pretty much self explanatory. If your application is accepted you will be accepted as a minecraft player not a buy-in.

Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back): Sometime in 2012 I purchased MineCraft, ever since then I have achieved anything you can possibly think of to achieve on a game like this, ranging from staffing some enormous servers, owning multiple large networks and having the experience to play with my mates and have some fun. I have a huge genera of aspects in the game that I do with skill, ranging from Pvp, building and creating servers. I think choosing me to join Instinct as apart of the MC Sector would benefit both myself and the other members apart of the Sector.

Thanks for reading my application ?

I've also been staff on a couple of the bigger servers out there and know most if not all of the commands needed to run a server. Along with being staff I've also ran my own server before so I have some experience with issues that may occur within a server and how to fix them. Apart from the commands, I'm fairly good at PVP and making hard to raid bases for factions since I've played factions mostly the whole time since I've bought Minecraft. Lastly I have pretty good building experience, I'm good with both World Edit and VoxelSniper and have built some start up spawns for servers that are just starting out.

Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back): I usually play alot of servers and build but I am creating my own prison server at the moment, it is almost finished and will be completed hopefully by the end of the week. I am a decent builder and if someone needs help building I will usually help them unless I am busy with work. I am good at PvP'ing if we both have equal strength armour and sword. I am also very patient at mining and people normally ask me to mine while they work on the house because I can mine for a while and not get bored at it. I got minecraft to escape from family life and be in my own world with other people that enjoy the same hobbies as me. I do not use hacks what so ever because I think the game gets no fun when using them because you literally have no challenge.

Thank you for taking time to read my application and I hope I can benefit from Instinct and that Instinct can benefit from me. Cheers Hoode.

How long have you been playing?: I've been playing since the alpha version of MC. I believe that was four or five years ago.

Do you have a mic and are you willing to talk on TeamSpeak/Skype?: I do have a mic, and I would be willing to talk on TeamSpeak, Skype, and any other communicative software.

Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back): Well, with 4+ years of experience with the game, I have a pretty large understanding of Minecraft. I've played on all types of servers throughout the years, including Factions, Prison, Minigames, Roleplay, Survival, etc.

After I got a better understanding of the game, I decided to found my own server. This server is known as AtlasMC. At first, business boomed, and I made an exponential amount of money, much more than I expected. I invested more in the business, and it was very popular.

I then had a very good amount of knowledge regarding the functionality of servers.

Soon after, I went on to being staff for other servers. I've been the lowest authoritative position on servers, and I've also been the highest. All of these experiences just broadened my knowledge about Minecraft.

All of these events lead up to now.

AtlasMC is still up, but it's seen better days. So, I intend to lift it back up. I'm currently hiring plugin developers and professional builders. Hopefully I can redeem the server to its greatness.

I would say my experience with the game is quite large. I've been playing for a long time, so I've seen it all.

Thanks for reading my application.

I've played on all sorts of servers, I love factions mainly. I've built servers, I've co-owned them, "I've just been everywhere man"

I don't know why, but as I get older, minecraft still remains an interest with me, it never really gets boring, only when you have no one to play with. So I'm hoping I get accepted and that changes. I prefer Faction servers and Roleplay :) Oh and adventure maps for sure! I've even done a small lets play with my personal friends, it didn't last long but it was fun. How long have you been playing?:Since 2011, been playing the game ever since then and i still play it to this day.

Do you have a mic and are you willing to talk on TeamSpeak/Skype?:Yes

Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back):

I have started playing this game because i wanted to be more interacted with the story mode, after a while of the struggling and completing the game by beating the Ender dragon. I then found a website name <http://Planetminecraft.com>, that site was the opening to a new door of things to do.

Ever since i found that site, i started to know more about multiplayer servers, gameplays, and other types of things to do on Minecraft to make your day feel even more special then before.

Minecraft then started to be more developed, adding more plains, new items, new mobs, and new materials to make sure your quality and enjoyment of the game is fun and exciting. My favorite game to play on multiplayer servers was Factions.

It was a great experience as it involves you and your team mates working together on making your faction one of the strongest factions on the server.

It involves close combat, planning, and teamwork in order to accomplish this goal, it can be very time consuming but the output is worth it.

Especially with the new updates they have recently added can help improve the imaginations and adventure when it comes to Minecraft.

I can go on and on and on about Minecraft but all i can say is that, it is one of the best PC games that still moving strong.

Hope i get accepted.

I was able to experience a ton of new stuff added into Minecraft first hand since I got the game early.

I have ran numerous different channels about Minecraft. All the videos are gone however. I still have some hacker reports from Hypixel up on youtube.com/gamerhaste though.

Getting into Minecraft got me into HF (Picka client) and also got me into programming in Java.

I have been playing since 1.2.5.

Do you have a mic and are you willing to talk on TeamSpeak/Skype?:

Yeah I'm willing to speak but sometimes I don't like talking over somebody while they speaking it just something I tend to do.

Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back):

Well I started playing minecraft around 1.2.5 and joined a server and became a mod in it. I also, started to build stuff that I found nice and then eventually I started my own server which had a good amount of people playing daily but I shut down the server since I didn't have enough time to manage it since I had other things to do. Then I got bored of playing minecraft legit so I started to use hack client on kitpvp server and stuff for around 1.5.2 then I got bored of using hack client so I bought minecraft for Xbox 360 and started to play with some friends building stuff. After my friends stop playing minecraft on Xbox 360 I started to go on PC and started to play Mini Games and I had some fun but at the same time I felt lonely playing all by myself. Then after 1.7.2 I bought minecraft for PS3 and currently enjoying the game since it really fun. But yeah that all I did in minecraft I always play on PC since it more comfortable and is easy to play. I also, love playing faction servers because I like to raid others and always be on the top. I play competitive in minecraft since I never like losing to others.

We first started out to play regular mc servers. Then we moved onto Raid servers and have been playing those till now. We also discovered minigame servers and play those all the time. During that time I have been learning about plugins, configs, and servers. I have setup over 50+ servers. I even have my own Minecraft setup service here on HF. I love to have fun and know a lot of strategies and techniques for raiding servers. I am also very good at PVP and have played kitpvp servers since they came out. I have been playing on HC recently and have had a lot of success and made a lot of IGM. I think I will keep playing MC for a while. Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back): Well, I started to play Minecraft after a friend asked me too and we were playing on a server called Legendarycraft. It was a lot of fun but then we decided to make our own server. At the time I was 12 so I wasn't very experienced but I still learnt a heap of stuff. I then started to code bukkit plugins and was working on some magnificent projects. I am very experienced in WorldPainter and I have a history with managing other servers. Nowadays I find it very easy to code bukkit plugins and have almost learnt the whole API. Thank you for reading :)

I also have an extensive knowledge in server plugins, and have designed a fully functioning prison server, as well as a drugs/factions server which I plan on selling in the coming months. It was never released publicly as I did it more as a fun/learning experience.

When HackerCraft was fully active you could find me online almost 24/7. I was in a team with DaRusky and I Am JT named notorious. Second only to Instinct, and I'm fairly sure we ended up having a nice alliance in the end. I am very skilled in making unraidable bases and will mine obsidian for hours on end to make sure of it.

Thank you for reading my application, whoever you are! Hoping it is Lovol, and I am hoping you are impressed. Looking forward to seeing what the Minecraft Sector comes to accomplish under your lead :)

Was removed once unbanned and it was not something i miss.

I am allowed to apply to instinct as always wanted to join the group and already talked to many members about it at that time.

Did not have the cash to buy in instinct at the moment so i decided to apply to Respawn since it was a gaming group.

I do not want to be in between the conflict between Instinct and Respanw.

A gaming group is a gaming group, if you like gaming then anyone should be allowed to apply.

Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back): Well i've owned a concurrent minecraft server for about a year or two. Once I started the game I was hooked. I had a server called cheesecraft, which closed unfortunately due to insufficient donations. But few months later. I get back up on my feet and begin a brand new server, that has been running ever since. As a reference take a look at <http://replacethiswithatinyurl.com/lowah3n> I also had OmfgsCraft which was right after so basically around the same timeframe. Kind of the same server just different name, as a reference to that you can check here, <http://replacethiswithatinyurl.com/q9wt3jc>. Now to my successful server (KitPvPcc) is custom-coded, we have 1337 slots. Many features. If you want info on that visit our site, <http://www.kitvpcc.net/> my server ip is: KitPvPcc.com | Hopefully in the summer I will be starting a hub server with a good friend of mine who is a very talented coder. I also code. But not as good as him. I've coded a plugin to prevent profanity on servers that would want to prohibit such. If you want to check it out, please click here <http://dev.bukkit.org/bukkit-plugins/ezswear/> I have been very active in the HF community, such as offering HF rank/kits on my server if you prove you are a HF member. I have honestly put alot of time into playing Minecraft, if it's trolling with friends over skype or building a new server spawn. We have a blast. I have a forums for my server and the community is great, some are turned out to become really good friends of mine <http://kitvpcc.enjin.com/> As I mentioned a hub server earlier, we have the funds and the means to start it, and it's long overdue, really stoked for it. I am really clever. From Photoshop to Sony Vegas. I like to be very innovated with what I do. I really have accomplished alot just by playing minecraft, it taught me to be creative. Such as practicing PhotoShop for gfx regarding my server, or learning how to properly edit videos for my youtube channel. Or how to speak out to my server community. I always love to help out other people with servers. Believe me when I say this, I helped oh so many people from setting up their servers to helping build spawns. I have brought alot of people into the world of Minecraft and I have gotten roughly 90% to get addicted! I have fun by playing SkyBlock with friends over skype, sometimes recording or streaming it over twitch. If your wondering, my Twitch is http://twitch.tv/ez_dan/ I have also done youtube videos of minigames like Cops and Robbers. I love to help fix problems, when a friend needs help in minecraft regarding server management, someone advertising on their server/stealing players, or dealing with hack threats. I'm there to lend a helping hand. I truly do hope you accept me. It is late (2 AM in the morning, wish I could have done better.) Thanks for taking your time and reading =)

I know how to play the game fairly well. My skills are stronger in building then raiding due to having a pretty bad computer, but I can still build a pretty nice, well hidden base with traps when need be. Starting off, I find loot pretty quickly and work well with others. I am on HC all the time so I will probably know some of the people in Instinct's MC Sector due to that if I get accepted. I have also owned a very well known and successful Minecraft server that had almost hundreds playing everyday until the popularity of it died down and people stopped played and I shut it down. So I do know how to run a server with Bukkit as well.

How long have you been playing?: I began playing Minecraft in November 2011. I purchased the game and began playing. Obviously the game lacked many features that the game has today as that was a rather early update in the cycle. However, I stuck by Minecraft and enjoyed every minute of my time playing Minecraft, although back then I didn't play a whole lot - I still thoroughly enjoyed its simplistic gameplay. I continue to enjoy my time spent on the game. Servers were what really pushed me to continue playing Minecraft as I enjoy playing with other players and enjoying myself discussing and playing the game. While Minecraft has grown a lot since, and is now an extremely popular game - when I began playing it, it wasn't nearly as popular. It has been quite the experience seeing the game grow over the years.

Do you have a mic and are you willing to talk on TeamSpeak/Skype?: Yes, I'm on Skype all the time and I would certainly be willing to participate in the Teamspeak. I'm always happy to chat and I'm extremely friendly.

Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back): I've been experienced with the game in the sense of various factors. These include PVP, server management and pretty much I've tasted every aspect. I've been playing the game for fun for a very long time and I've participated in several teams for the game as well, these include Obj3ctiveX and several others that I enjoyed participating in. I would be a dedicated member of Instinct and would never hesitate to help someone else in the group out in Minecraft as well as outside of Minecraft, I always have an open ear. I enjoy my experiences with Minecraft and I personally think I would be a great addition to Instinct.

How long have you been playing?: I have been playing for 3 and a half years, ever since close to the end of 8th grade.

Do you have a mic and are you willing to talk on TeamSpeak/Skype?: Yes

Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back):

I have been playing Minecraft for 3 and a half years just about. I started out by playing the single player version that they had online, which was the demo version but you could play with other people. I found it interesting and fascinating about the whole 'server' aspect of minecraft and was dying to own my own. So I decided to start teaming up with people , mainly because at the time I couldn't really pay for a minecraft server, I just didn't know how. So, summer next year I spent basically my life working on these servers that I have been teaming up with, coding plugins, building giant builds and things and basically moderating, and it seemed that the owners of those servers didn't seem to appreciate the work that I had been putting in. I was a little upset about that, and decided to basically just out my foot down and not take any more of it, and it decided that I was going to create my server. I created my server about 6 months later and it became very successful. Gaining over 5000 unique players in 3 months and about 4000 in donations I was doing pretty well. The server is still alive today (3 months later) but due to recent hosting issues a lot of players quit. I am very experienced with Minecraft servers, and how everything works. I have done bungee cord, as well which took me forever to figure out, but I did.

Anyways, besides my boring story. My actual Minecraft experience is fairly decent. I'm sort of an experienced redstone user, I haven't spent too much time on it compared to my other things I do. I build a lot, I'm really good at replicating real live things like sky scrapers, or cathedrals or any architectural build by eye. I'm alright at PvP not exactly as good as everyone else, but that's because I don't spend all my time on minecraft doing that. I have beaten the game, (Killing the Enderdragon) and I know basically all the little things by heart, such as crafting and brewing (I might need a guide for some of the useless potions)

Other than that, I believe that I am a very skilled minecrafter, who would love to be a part of and contribute to Instinct.

Thank you for reading and considering my application,

How long have you been playing?: Since July of last year

Do you have a mic and are you willing to talk on TeamSpeak/Skype?: Yes

Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back): I started playing minecraft back in July and at first whenever someone would mention the game, the only opinion that would arise to my mind is that is a horrible game with pixels everywhere. When I started playing, I was influenced by my younger brother and he told me about Hunger Games, and thats where it began. I play Hunger Games for a good 4/5 months, and I even became moderator on some Hunger Games Servers such as mcsg and a pvp server known as nebula. After I retired as moderator from both of those servers, because of the reason being that people hated the mods on the server. They hated the mods on the server mainly because they sort of ruined the fun you can say, but they kept the whole community safe. After I was done with Hunger Games, I moved onto factions/survival and factions was great. I got all of my friends I met through the Hunger Games to Factions, and we played till we ranked up as the highest Faction on the servers. We later got tired of this because of the hard work we put into our faction, the administrator was corrupt and shut the server down. My brother and I started playing survival by ourselves and it was great at the time until you started to understand that you are not doing anything productive. So later, I started building maps with my friends and I still do that to this day for the game Hunger Games and I sometimes get back on to pvp once in a while.

Starting off with a regular survival, to building, soon to PvP. I've spent lots of time on each style, along with mini games, like Paintball, Super Craft Bros., the TNT Games, and everything in between. Experienced with all sorts of things concerning servers, from configuring it, advertising, plugins, and appeal. Along with building a server, there's also watching over it, which I've experienced first hand, on both sides.

Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back): I have been playing the game long enough to know pretty much every crafting recipe and trick there is to know.

I love the game and have played on countless different servers such as factions all they way to basic vanilla survival. My favorite is by far plain vanilla with a friendly community! If I got ingot he group I can imagine I would have a lot of fun with other members.

I actually own my own survival vanilla server! I would be more than happy to share with Instinct members since I feel it could be a lot of fun. And lastly I feel I am very friendly and a likable person on Minecraft since I try not to show a mean side!

Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back):

I got interested in Minecraft seeing all the things you could build, and I wanted to play the game just in survival mode.

I got extremely bored with singleplayer after reaching the end-game, and only having expansion and building ahead of me.

Once I got bored with that, I played on a server known as WinDooM, and how it used to be is and always will be my favorite server. It was a hardcore PvP server, with extremely dedicated players, and an awesome community. That server is almost dead now because it isn't very noob friendly, as they'll get stomped by the older players who know how that server's system works. After that, I got sucked into the Techge3ks Prison server, Prison 2 to be exact. I was the strongest player on there for quite a while (.Ethan can vouch for that, that server is where I met him) until I was IPBanned, and then quit. I then moved on to just playing PvP servers, games, etc. I tried playing a Mindcrack type server with some people from HF, but I got bored of it, as there was almost no interaction between me and others, so it felt exactly like singleplayer all over again. I got bored and in between things I helped people with their servers, working on plugins before I lost my work ethic for those servers and quit.

Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back): I've been playing since late 2012, I have gotten pretty decent at PVP but one of my strong points is raiding and my favourite things to do is raiding/playing economy servers, I'm not sure if you support this but I also do a lot of griefing / making YouTube videos for glitches and tips for Minecraft itself. (I'll post some videos down below) (Not my voice though, it's my brothers) Majority of the time I get a nice amount of views and I enjoy making the videos and finding this kind of stuff (Even though I mostly don't use my own voice because my brother enjoys making the video itself). I've been staff of several servers, ran my own server at one point but at the end of the day I just enjoy hanging out with people/friends and doing some form of objective, where it may be to raid a base, build a base or team up and go for an objective.

Do you have a mic and are you willing to talk on TeamSpeak/Skype?: Yes, I do have a mic, and yes I am willing to talk on Skype/Teamspeak.

Experience with the game (everything you think is relevant should go here, don't hold back):

I have been playing for a while, so I do have a ton of experience (more with previous updates than latest updates). Because of my older super addiction to Minecraft about 2 years ago, I became a moderator on a fan site called "Planet Minecraft" (not sure if you know the site or not).

I play very often (about every day) and tend to switch from server to server until I find a good one. If the server is 'ok', then I usually play on it for a bit, until I get bored and switch to another one. I have much experience with several different types of game modes, from factions, to single player survival, to mini-games. I kept playing a variety of servers and also played single player often when I did not want to be with anybody.

I did make a server one time and I really got into it. I became an expert with PermissionsEx and was very comfortable with tons of Bukkit plugins. I was a pretty good Minecraft server owner and my server did become pretty popular (about 10 people on usually, more on peak times like when I'm on). I am a very kind player and tend to treat people nicely.

Overall, I've had a pretty diverse experience with servers and Minecraft itself. I am currently a bit inactive on Minecraft because finals are coming, but since that finishes next week, I'll be playing a lot more often.

Alright so I started playing Minecraft in the early BETA on a cracked version. A few weeks later I bought Premium for a cheap price, its about 2x for expensive right now. In that time I was proud on my first wood house like every noob. I started playing so much that I consider myself a kind of "Minecraft expert" I have been playing with a friend of mine servers for a long long time. We have been the #1 and #2 players in size of base and amount of diamonds/rare in around 3 servers. We have ripped economies by getting so much stuff and then giving it all away.

I recently started on HackerCraft and already have stacks of diamonds enchanted stuff so I got that goin for me. I have created around 3 servers myself. 2 hosted on my own Computer and 1 hosted on a VPS. All of my servers were a success and had a good amount of players, but I never made some money from it though :(So I know how to set up servers and how to control one.

Also I've been MOD/Admin on a few servers.

Edit:

Ofcourse I know how to use redstone in effective ways in big systems.

I have been playing Minecraft since I purchased it in beta (May of 2011). I am versed in a plethora of mods, plugins, maps, and servers. However, I always find myself going to vanilla every once in a while. I do look for Minecraft variations that I'm interested in, but my main goal is to submerge myself in a community. In my opinion a game, regardless of how simple it is, can be eternally enjoyable with a suitable group of people to enjoy it with. When playing Minecraft, I often find myself striving to be the best at whatever I am doing. Whether it be raiding the wealthiest member of the server, or being the first one to an end game machine/armor set, I am in it to be the best.

I have hosted the following types of servers:

- Vanilla
- Adventure Map
- Faction
- Minigame
- Monster
- Agrarian Skies

I have been a staff member on these servers:

- LegionForgeMC
- AnonymooseMC
- Aperture

I have played and/or continue to play the following vanilla plugins:

- Hunger Games
- KitPvP

I have played and/or continue to play the following mod packs:
