Step 1: Make an identical account for the person you're going to hack.

Step 2: Make sure you know the following answers. (Which Country was the account created in?, Date & Year of the creation - Just say, I'm not too sure., Original Email, & 5 contacts in their Skype list)

Step 3: Go to https://support.skype.com/support_selection

Step 4: Log in & click "Security & Privacy" > "Account Takeover"

Step 5. Then scroll down & click "Continue Support Request" then click "Start Live Chat"

Step 6: Once you're in the chat, say your account got hacked.

Step 5: They'll ask you 4 questions. Answer them. (Which Country was the account created in?, Date & Year of the creation - Just say, I'm not too sure., Original Email, & 3 contacts in their Skype list)

Step 6: They'll ask for a new email. Success! Grin You just jacked a Skype account!

This method does require some prior knowledge of social engineering. Although if it doesn't work the first time try it at different times of the day with different support techs!

Great job! But I wonder if it still Works?

cadthac - June 17, 2014, 6:19 am fi this method still works....does it change the present password?

logging*machine - June 17, 2014, 7:07 am

You can't necessarily find the password, but you can recover the account and change the password.

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4035305>

This method isn't a public method, it doesn't even require contacting support.

Essence - July 3, 2016, 3:01 pm

Instead of Skype jacking their account why not just get it banned lol. Make a new fake Skype account and start making bomb threats towards yourself, contact support, screenshot the messages, and send it to them. I've gotten a couple people banned like this and it takes like 10 minutes to do lol

Hey,

I would like to hack a Skype/Lync account but I do not want them to know they've been hacked, is there anyway of doing this above what's posted above?

Ideally, I'd like to know there password rather than having to set up a different account is this possible?

Thnks,

Ed
