Thread: [Unofficial Group - The Order \[Computing/Coding/Hacking\]](#)

King Cin - June 6, 2014, 4:08 am

Leaders:

Aura

The Order is a group that focuses on computing, coding and hacking.

We plan on releasing tutorials, helping the forum in the sections we are knowledgeable in, and learning. We plan on becoming official, but no arrangements have been made, nor do we know if this will actually happen.

To apply, use this format:

Code [font=Tahoma][b][color=#FF0000]Age:[/color][b][font]
[font=Tahoma][b][color=#FF0000]Timezone:[/color][b][font]
[font=Tahoma][b][color=#FF0000]Why do you want to join us?[/color][b][font]
[font=Tahoma][b][color=#FF0000]What are your skills?[/color][b][font]
[font=Tahoma][b][color=#FF0000]Tell us about yourself: (min. 50 words)[/color][b][font]
It will take a while to hear about your recruitment status, mostly due to Pony being on a vacation ban, and Aura being busy. The only ones who can accept you are Aura, Th3PonyWizard and myself.

Why do you want to join us? Group seems interesting, and i would like to help out the forum more by releasing tutorials etc. Joining this group seems like the way to go about that.

What are your skills? PHP, MYSQL, batch, visual basic, Actionscript 2.0, basic c#, basic Javascript, experienced in creating malware.

Tell us about yourself: I am the SEV, used to go by the alias of Ghostface, Glitch before that, i was a member of the hacktivist group The Order in 2011 (that group ended in 2012 or something, i know this group has no relation) I used to perform a lot of website hacking however have not done much website based hacking for ages, so would like to get back into that. My main focus these days is in Malware, i have created various viruses, my main virus being the Win.69 virus, which you can read my previously made threads if you wish to learn more about.

Hope you enjoyed reading :)

Why do you want to join us? Friends with Aura, and this group looks promising.

What are your skills? Mainly for web forensics, but I am starting to LEARN python and since your group is about learning, why not apply.

Tell us about yourself: (min. 50 words) Tend to be very caring about others and am constantly striving to achieve new skills. Coding python is next on my list. I love to have fun and joke around as well. I'm creative.

? ? Bang. Bang.

Everyone that applies with Computing/White Hat Hacking (Malwares sided) skills will pass an interview with me if I want to verify your skills first.

Good luck.

Why do you want to join us? I would love to join The Order because it has a set group topic and I have a passion for many of the things that the group is focused on. The group is ran by respected members and from the looks of it, I would learn a lot more from being a part of the group and enjoying myself within the group, by the means of collaborating and having good technical discussion with members that are a part of the group as well. I would contribute as much as I can to the group and I would be sure to attempt to be a valued member at the same time.

What are your skills? Malware Removal [Somewhat beginner], Python, Java, Android Development, Ethical hacking

Tell us about yourself: (min. 50 words) I am 17 years old and live a little outside of Montreal, Quebec, Canada. I enjoy programming and I have a passion for anything computing related. I have been working with computers since a young age and I would love to join this group. I spend a lot of my time learning about computers and studying malware removal. I try to learn and absorb as much as I can from the experiences that I face in the internet world.

Aura wants the D.

Why do you want to join us? I chose to apply for this group because it meets everything I am interested in also I always wanted to be in a group where I can discuss about same interests.I would learn more and faster being a part of such a group, because having a good discussion with members that are part of the same group and are interested in the same topics is the best learning curve besides that I would like to share my information to members.

What are your skills? Experienced with the Linux command line and some basic theoretical / practical C knowledge.

Tell us about yourself: My name is walet and I live somewhere in Europe basically I am just a normal person who is interested in computing mainly programming under linux, encyption and hacking. Daily I spend alot of time to learn new things about Linux or programming also I am very dedicated person,I love to take criticism and learn new things there aren't any topics about computing that are not interesting.

Why do you want to join us?: I need people to be friends with and motivate me to do and learn more.

What are your skills?: I have basic understanding of several topics(Coding, Computing, Hacking, ect.), I consider myself advanced in the area of botnets and RATs and things of that nature; there's always room to improve. I rap really good if that has any relevancy.

Tell us about yourself: (min. 50 words)

Well, for starters, I prefer to be called Sinister and I'm 16. And my journey into the hacking scene first started at the tender age of 9. This was back in the day and age when YouTube streams was around, if anybody remembers them. I knew a guy who knew a guy that first discovered the ability to use HTML coding in YouTube streams. With the HTML codes you could do anything from put a picture in your post and opening a javascript text box on someones screen. After experimenting with the codes I became hungry for more knowledge. I began to learn HTML. Fast forward three years. I'm now at the age of 12. It's the middle of summer, right before 9th grade. I notice my computer has been acting strangely. Somehow a rouge anti-virus has been installed on my PC. In desperation, I quickly Google how to get rid of it; in my searches I came across the lovely Hackforums and came to learn how to deny the inevitable, if not remove the rootkit/rouge anti-virus. Thus, I started my spiraling journey into the hacking scene. With in the coming weeks I started to learn the basics of rapping/skidding. This was only the appetizer. During the school year, I decided to take a nose dive and jump in to Linux; I installed Ubuntu on the computer I got the rootkit on, and oh boy did I like me some Linux. I tried a couple different distros and I prefer Debian and all of it's apt-get sexiness.

Time skip to summer. It's now the summer, I'm bored, and I look for something to do. With me being a regular on HF, but never actually posting, I decide to get active and start posting. Within about a week, my post count jumps from 92 to around 300 or so. To even advance my activeness on HF, I decide to join an unofficial group called Universal. Within my time in that group, I met a really awesome guy who is now like my mentor(I won't mention his name because he probably doesn't want to be mentioned). After I met the guy, I noticed he had some actual hacking skills ranging from pentesting to coding; and with me, wanting to learn more, I ask him to take me under his wing. With in the coming weeks, him and I become very close and he starts to teach me the serious stuff of hacking; elaborating more on pentesting. But even with him teaching, I really have yet to actually grasp any degree of mastery in pentesting. I want to learn more about hacking to hopefully ascend to the level that my mentor is at, and possibly even higher. Sorry for this wall of text, you said for me to tell you about myself c:

Why do you want to join us?

I remember reading a few quality posts by Th3PonyWizard, so I'm assuming that you guys actually know a thing or two about infosec. I don't really care about the whole group-concept, but I'm bored and it'd be nice to have a few decent people to talk to when there's stuff to talk about. As a bonus, this creates context. For example, I don't have a reason to touch ExtJS these days, but given the request of another member and my interest in the project, I might take it up again. Same applies to code audits or anything else I'm usually just too lazy to do or learn. tl:dr; looking for a place to hang out.

What are your skills?

About 3 years worth of coding experience in various languages. I know my way around a linux system. Decent knowledge of exploitation techniques for both web and binary targets, though I focus on binary. I do my own research instead of pestering others. Solved level 7 of the microcorruption ctf a few days ago, also did a few on smashthestack.org's IO back in '13 (up to 7 or 8, I believe).

Seriously, just ask for specifics if you want them.

Tell us about yourself:

I just did. Unless you're interested, that's all you need to know.

What do you expect from us?

Motivation, mutual respect, solid english and a real interest in infosec. I also kind of expect you to update your initial post with a description that is actually useful to the applicant. Hacking and Coding is about as vague as it gets. I neither have an idea of what you guys are actually looking for (Again, mainly looking for experienced members. Experienced in what exactly?), nor do I know what I'm getting myself into.

Why do you want to join us?:

Well, I'm going to be making this a lil' longer because I saw that you guys apparently like longer applications. I'd like to join this group mostly because there are probably going to be people that know more than me, which is an opportunity for me to learn new stuff. 'Hacking' has been really boring this month, because it's always the same. SQL Injection, Local file inclusion, XSS, RCE. Those are the vulnerabilities I see the most, and it isn't fun. That's why I started doing Reverse Engineering, which I admit is more fun to do because I've never tried it. I succeeded in cracking several programs (one of them being an hf product, contacted the seller, protected it) and I'm trying to get used to Ollydbg. On another note, I have several projects going on, just because I need to spend my time somehow. Onto the point now. I've seen several threads by Th3PonyWizard and I've read most of Aura's WHH threads. I'm gonna end this section here, because it's becoming too big, and I need to write some stuff in the other sections aswell :p.

What are your skills?:

At first, I wanted to list them in PM/Skype/Jabber/etc, but I guess that won't do. I'll try to list several stuff that I am capable of doing. I mostly specialize in web penetration, but I know my share of knowledge about other stuff. (ie. reverse engineering)

1. Web penetration - SQLi, Anything related to XSS (XFS,CSRF,etc), LFI & RFI, LDAPi, Most common stuff.

2. Coding - PHP, Python, MySQL, HTML (lol), CSS, Javascript

3. Misc - Malware Removal(mostly easy when it comes down to HF malware), Reverse Engineering(runtime and normal), Social engineering, Basic BOF.

That's basicly it. I most likely know more, but we can discuss the rest in private. :)

Cross Site Request Forgery is all about having the browser accessing a triggered URL, usually with GET parameters which executes a malicious activity.

for example.

There's a solid similarity tho.

There's a solid similarity tho. Let's say you have a persistent XSS on HF, and a CSRF like the one you showed above.

You can just use img tags or something to make everyone give you rep, just by loading the page with the XSS.

A funny thing would be if there was a CSRF + Persistent XSS on a bank or something.

Why do you want to join us? I want to join your group because I want to learn more about hacking and pen testing. I may not know much about it now, but I have my first thread in the beginner hacking section of the forum that may prove that it is something I want to do. I don't want to be a script kiddie and am currently learning programming. On that thread, another user posted a guideline on the last page, which I will be following. I am looking for a good community to learn from and to contribute to once I am able. I hope that I am accepted, I will try my best not to be a burden and to help others whenever I can.

What are your skills? My current skills include a basic understanding of Visual Basic (high school course completed), next school year I will be learning C++ in school, and I am currently learning python on codecademy.com

Tell us about yourself: (min. 50 words) I am not very experienced, but hey, we all have to start somewhere, right? I have a very good attitude towards others and I am a team player. Once I dedicate myself to something, I will do all that is in my power to learn about it and understand it. I read about topics whenever I can in order to further expand my knowledge. Anything that I learn will be shared with the other members of the group if I am accepted. I will possibly take on the white hat as a career choice, either that or software development. I want to get started hacking as soon as possible so that I can possibly help myself pay off loans for college when I get there. It would be much appreciated if I am accepted. I look forward to learning all I can with all of you!

Why do you want to join us? Summer is coming and it means that I will have more time for hacking & coding. Also I miss that cool feeling of being part of a group to share some knowledge.

What are your skills? I like to consider myself either an advanced script kiddies, meaning that i know how to do an SQL injection, basic Penetration testing with Nmap and Metasploit (sometime I use Armitage but I like doing it Console style). I also know how to use Ettercap if that matters.

Now for the more "coding" part of my life I consider myself an okay Python programmer with a basic knowledge of C# and some knowledge in .

Tell us about yourself: (min. 50 words) I was in Legion for a couple of months, then I quit because I didn't have the time to contribute. My main goal in joining The order is to learn new stuff mainly about hacking since it's harder to find some good resources online about this than finding informations on Python.

I am Antigen. First of all let me talk to you about who I am.

I'm a 21 year old computer science engineering student. I do spent most of my online time in hackforums.

I like programming, white hat hacking and money making(Although I'm just a wannabee online earner). I am a positive, friendly and optimistic guy, I do love making friends and spending time with them. I guess that's all about me.

Let's talk about my skills and knowledge. I'll start from my plus points and eventually where I do sucks.

I do know to code in various languages, which are C, C plus plus, PHP, Visual basic and such languages. as a computer science student I do possess knowledge in many languages. which are ranging from assembly to python. Aside from programming.I do have my skills in hacking, well let's put it this way. I'm a white hat hacker who have knowledge in Sql injection, cross site scripting extra.

I spent my hackforum time in mostly helping out in Hacking section, computing section programming and now a days market section also.

If you wanted to see my important threads. please read below spoiler.

Ok that's all about my positives sides. now let me say about my negatives, I am a total NOOB in graphics even in paint. Now you know why I haven't made glittering graphic application for recruitment,. also I don't feel like copying others images and using it in my application thread to look more appealing. I do also sucks in money making. may be because I am totally new to that area. but I have made little but decent money with adsense using my blog. I really want to make money and have passion for it, but I lack methods and knowledge in this field. I really want to improvise in this area and ready to work hard for it.

I can honestly say you can check my entire posts I had in Hackforums but you won't ever find any low quality posts or anything.

I sincerely thank you for reading my application, also my best wishes to fellow applicants.

Why do you want to join us?

Simple. I'm a coder, and I'm looking to hopefully help others with problems in Visual Basic, Visual C#, and some minor PHP problems. Also, I want to expand my knowledge on the programming languages I'm interested in.

What are your skills?

- 6 Years Experience in Visual Basic
 - 1 Year Experience in Visual C#
 - Some PHP Knowledge
 - 2 Years Experience in MySQL and PHPMyAdmin
 - Coded a Traffic Exchanging Program - View Thread - (Re-Coding it now, and planning on releasing it in the next 2 weeks)
 - I know a decent amount of information in Computing, so I can solve some basic problems.
- I'm not the best at what I do, but my skillset is pretty good IMO.

Tell us about yourself:

Fresh graduate of highschool, I like to go on the computer everyday, and work my ass off to try and make a living online. Why do you want to join us?I'd love to join this group because it is lead many respectful and trustworthy members of the HackForums community. I am a friendly character on this forums, always striving to help others and contributing to these forums as it's where I learnt most things. I want to be involved in a group where we help eachother, and come up with solutions to problems. I do believe I belong in the "Hacking" side of the group as that's my main focus, hacking to learn. I would contribute to this group by posting tutorials and giving this group a well deserved name I think it should have. I can assure you, it would be a pleasure participating in this group of friendly individuals.

What are your skills? My skills involve: Social Engineering (Intermediate), Doxing (Advanced), Website Hacking (Beginner), Good knowledge on basic hacking skills which newbies would love listening to my advice and experience with things like RATs, Crypting etc, Linux (Beginner but learning) & all these individual skills can lead to many things, especially my doxing talent which I am releasing one of the best doxing tutorials ever seen soon.

Why do you want to join us?

Simple. I'm a coder, and I'm looking to hopefully help others with problems in Visual Basic, Visual C#, and some minor PHP problems. Also, I want to expand my knowledge on the programming languages I'm interested in.

What are your skills?

- 6 Years Experience in Visual Basic
 - 1 Year Experience in Visual C#
 - Some PHP Knowledge
 - 2 Years Experience in MySQL and PHPMyAdmin
 - Coded a Traffic Exchanging Program - View Thread - (Re-Coding it now, and planning on releasing it in the next 2 weeks)
 - I know a decent amount of information in Computing, so I can solve some basic problems.
- I'm not the best at what I do, but my skillset is pretty good IMO.

Tell us about yourself:

Fresh graduate of highschool, I like to go on the computer everyday, and work my ass off to try and make a living online. I had an income of $200/month, but it all went downhill due to a recent update by youtube. Programmer by night, Internet Marketer by day. I enjoy poetry, and gardening. I also read a bit here and there. All in all, I'm the average teenage guy, but with a twist ;)You got me curious. I don't value VB, but your other abilities are interesting. PM me your skype

Why do you want to join us?: I want to join the Order because I would like to be associated with other users who's interests pertain to mine.

What are your skills?: I do not possess any mad skills in hacking or computing. I'm not the best, nor am I the worst. I can do a little of everything such as all the basic crap like Rattting, Account cracking, and Complete anonymity. I am also very fond of the Windows OS and playing around with batch. I know the Windows OS inside and out and I'm constantly pentesting servers or other networks for potential port vulnerabilities and other things like VNC. I honestly just like learning new ways to do things and I have fun creeping through holes in networks. However I find myself lately helping others clean out their computers, disinfecting people and things like that. I've done more whitehat activity than anything else lately. I learn something new every day. As I said earlier I can do all the other basic blackhat shit I don't even really have to name. Things everyone should know mostly.

Tell us about yourself: (min. 50 words) Outside of my virtual life here on the internet I'm an avid Volkswagen enthusiast. Here's my car: Spoiler \(Click to View\) I'm always at car meets, I go to all the shows, etc. It's my primary hobby. I like cars and I like driving. It's always been something I enjoy. Most of my daytime is spent with my girlfriend and/or friends in pool, driving around and finding things to do, etc. My computer is my late night life and I'm usually on here from about 11 PM until 3 AM. I'm a very versatile person.

Thank you for your time. I stopped reading after Ratting. Sorry.

Why do you want to join us? I want to become better in computing/coding and learn the basics of hacking.

What are your skills? I am in the process of learning C++, I am taking a malware removal school (Geekstogo), and I am good at dealing and speaking with others.

Tell us about yourself: (min. 50 words) I am a 16 year old guy with a twin brother that spends most of his time on his computer. I enjoy learning as much as I can even though it may take me longer to learn certain things. I spend a lot of my time now just lurking around forums and threads trying to get ready for college, which my school is making me attend a year early.

EDIT: Saw this wasn't a student group, apologies, skip over this application if you'd like. Depends how good your C++ is.

Why do you want to join us? I'd love to join this group because it is lead many respectful and trustworthy members of the HackForums community. I am a friendly character on this forums, always striving to help others and contributing to these forums as it's where I learnt most things. I want to be involved in a group where we help each other, and come up with solutions to problems. I do believe I belong in the "Hacking" side of the group as that's my main focus, hacking to learn. I would contribute to this group by posting tutorials and giving this group a well deserved name I think it should have. I can assure you, it would be a pleasure participating in this group of friendly individuals.

What are your skills? My skills involve: Social Engineering (Intermediate), Doxing (Advanced), Website Hacking (Beginner), Good knowledge on basic hacking skills which newbies would love listening to my advice and experience with things like RATs, Crypting etc, Linux (Beginner but learning) & all these individual skills can lead to many things, especially my doxing talent which I am releasing one of the best doxing tutorials ever seen soon.

Tell us about yourself: (min. 50 words) I'm an honest, hard working individual. I finished my first year in college not so long ago. I am studying a full diploma in level 3 computing hardware. I got distinctions on every piece of work and have a distinction star. I want to progress into networking. I love networking tasks. My hobbies out doors include mountain biking. I also loved beatboxing, until the cruel world implanted braces onto my teeth making it impossible to beatbox. I'm really friendly and easy to get along with, I have spoke to plenty of users on this forum, and have always received good feedback. I'd never fuck a friend over, I like to keep my earned respect. to summarize, I'm a fast paced person with a good initiative to work on tasks given and if given the chance to join this team would make me over the moon. You sound like an interesting person. That's not really what I need though, sorry.

Why do you want to join us? As there are no official groups dedicated toward computing/security, this is the next best thing (no offense). I've personally talked to all three of you before, and know that all 3 of you are extremely talented and capable. You possess the skills and potential to lead an unofficial group to mean something, and who knows maybe be official some day. As of right now, there isn't too much I can bring to the table, rather than acquire new information from other users, and to create new experiences.

What are your skills?I cannot code, nor can I hack. I'm not going to be the guy who comes in here boasting about what he can do with a RAT, as I previously once was. I have knowledge within computing hardware. I've passed my CompTia 701 (Big Deal Right? ?). I've provided assistance within the COCH section multiple times. I can provide trouble shooting experience to others. I know your basics on Malware Removal, but nothing as close to the regulars of that section. Throughout my studies of hardware, I know the basics of the Windows OS, typically the up to the type of material that you see on the A+ exams. The same applies with my knowledge of security and networking. I have the skills of patience and helping others. That is simply it, I have no mastered skills.

Soon I'll begin an extensive researching of Cyber Security outside of the forums, as I'm considering it as a major. The closest things to me in life are my family, I care about them deeply. Why do you want to join us?

I am looking for a tight-knit group of focused, passionate members. I'm applying in the hopes that this group has a goal or mission that will keep me challenged and actively broadening my knowledge. However, that is not to say I'm completely clueless in my area; I have a large wealth of knowledge relating to microprocessor architecture.

What are your skills?

Spoiler (Click to View)

As primarily a researcher, my skills lay in giving consult or gathering information on microprocessor architecture. I also have some minute graphical design skills, as well as some Java and C++ skills; but my primary knowledge lies in, as stated, the processor arch.

Obviously, with all this talk on arch, it only makes sense to give some proof that I even know a damn thing about it; so let me give some examples.

Threads I've made directly about architecture:

{A webseries on the basic fundamentals of CPU Architecture by me.}

{A basic dissection and changelog of Intel's Haswell architecture.}

I also enjoy making discussion threads, such as the one that follows:

{A discussion on the future of AMD.}

My prowess is so renowned that even knowledgeable members make threads specifically for me to answer their questions:

{A thread asking about some basics about CPU architecture. I go a bit in depth here.}

{A thread where CP is asking me about prehistoric CPUs. Sortof displays my research abilities.}

I also happen to be the main editor and writer of HF Hardware News that's been going on for about a month now:

{Here is the latest issue thus far.}

But I don't only teach when it's specifically asked of me or I make it available, I also like to just help folk on the fly; such as here:

{Here I teach another member on identifying components from a dieshot.}

Also, kind of goes without saying that I'm mentioned as a veteran builder:

{"elemein - CPU Architecture Wizard"}

The links above are only a small amount of examples; there are plenty more examples where I show that I know a thing or two about processor silicon. Usually, a lot of examples could be dug up from my PMs, but I think the examples given should be enough. If you really want more examples though, I can of course dig them up.

I also have some skills in using Linux distributions like Kali or DSL to set up wireless pentesting or phreaking on unconventional devices, though I'm not entirely sure they're relevant to the group's cause.

Tell us about yourself: (min. 50 words)

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

I'm a native-born Canadian who has a passion for technology. Next year I will be going to post-secondary education to earn a degree in Information Systems Security (which is like Computer Science mixed in with Networking and Database Administration) where I'll learn plenty of new skills related to programming and security.

I'm a very goal-oriented person, and love being given things to do that show a real contribution to something greater. I enjoy being part of a tight-knit group of skilled individuals with a similar passion. I'm also optimistic and love learning new things and helping others; especially if it means growing and learning on my end.

As far as positives go; it's no secret that my main "skill" is simply being a walking database on CPU knowledge. So I'm not going to lie; while I could help everyone and their mother optimize their code for a particular architecture, help people build and select components for a computer, as well as learn more about their underlying hardware, my potential to create isn't incredibly high at the moment. While another one of my skills is an innate solid ability to research and help others (even if it's in another skillset than mine, such as if someone needs help with hacking and they can't figure out an issue, I could certainly see what I can do about finding an answer to their issues.), my main role in creation of something would currently be a supporting role or consulting role.

However, don't mistake that in the next coming years my knowledge in creation skills will improve at a dramatic rate; as my full-time job will be a student at post-secondary learning skills completely relevant to this group. I definitely see myself being able to hang with even the top programmers of the group in the future.

Thanks for your time, and I hope I will be considered for being taken on as a full member.

What do you know about malware removal ?

Why do you want to join us? Mainly as a learning experience, as someone that is currently dedicating all of their time into malware, the development/history of malware, and usage of malware I feel that joining a group with individuals skilled in those fields could benefit me quite a bit. I'm very dedicated and I'm putting my all into this learning process and I know it won't be easy, and I'm not expecting any spoonfed information. I can't promise that I can contribute back in the name of the group right away but with work I most certainly do not mind putting in the hours to make this group more successful. Everyday for roughly ten hours+ I'm researching and trying to further myself in the area of malware/hacking.

What are your skills? VB.net (high level programming language, but it's a start I suppose), basics of malware/malware removal (nothing to pride myself on), marketing/advertisement, social manipulation (use to run a successful business in selling SE'd goods), as well as determination if you could count that :P.

Tell us about yourself: (min. 50 words) I'm currently 20 years old with a passion for technology. I am attending college next semester for Computer Science, as becoming a software dev really interests me. Before I leave for college I'm trying to cram in as much information as I possibly can, as I've been slacking the past few years (thought I would take a marketing approach to life). Currently I'm learning C++ and have created some unique projects (albeit useless), and I can honestly say that

C++ is a lot more stimulating than vb, lol.

EDIT: After reading through just about every application and the responses from you three individuals I don't really see myself getting an invitation, which is fine by me. All that means is I've got to work hard and continue studying and analyzing different things to become diverse in a well rounded group of subjects. Best of luck on finding an awesome team!

What do you know about malware removal exactly ?

(Jul 30, 2014 06:06 AM)Aur? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What do you know about malware removal exactly ?

To kind of put it in retrospect, if malware removal was like a layered cake I would only understand the icing on top (probably a really awful analogy). I don't have a complete grasp on removing malware manually, just the bare basics everyone should know in order to do your best to maintain a clean/malware free PC. I am reading up on quite a bit of articles/reading past threads in the WHH section to educate myself on certain scenarios/situations in my spare time when not researching malware itself.

Splendid.

Quite literally the basics of how to keep a clean system. Implementing AV for malware detection and such, I know what to look for when manually seeking out an infectious file/.exe, etc.

What are your skills?

Im int Cryptography for 4years now, my main passions is cryptography crypters creation etc. I can code in PAWN/lua/html/css/java/c#(vb) and atm im learning PHP and Python! I've also started with CPA about a month ago and it's'going pretty well but i guess im going a bit off topic .Also social enigeniry skills bound to black hat activity i did for about 2 years wich im not allowd to talk about on HF... I guess it's pretty easy to figure out ?

Tell us about yourself:

Im deffinitly from the youngest side of HF but does it really matter? Also as you can see english is not my 1st launguage so im sorry for any typo's/mistakes in this post. As i said, im 14 years old, im into hacking and coding for about 6 years and i spend about 7-13H on my computer a day, i love programming and gaming, also i really like helping other people! I had few sucessful projects like crypters and VIP install shop, i sold tobuscus and few other famous ytbers on TOR(im not sure if im allowd to talk about tor on here... and if anyone is interested on the method i got him infected pm me :D) Well yeah... im maybe not that old, and not that long on HF... Not that trusted either xD but screw it! Im really interested in joining this group so ill try! Have a nice day!(PS: I feel sorry for you

Well as all the leaders know, previously I have ran forums in which The Order has been an official group and on one of those forums I made it an official group.

The Order is full of professional members and I know personally that the members have advanced knowledge in their area of expertise and I'd like to become apart of that team.

I have come to notice that there is not a lot of Web Designers in within The Order and I would like to expand that area and become apart of the order to help make that happen.

What are your skills?

Web Design - Main skill

Games Design - Secondary skill

Programming - Good knowledge

Tell us about yourself: (min. 50 words)

I'm from Scotland and I spend a shit ton of time on my PC and I love forum websites.

Well what can I say? I'm a web master and I love to work on websites (mainly forums) as you all know.

Previously at college I done a web design course and tomorrow I start a Networking course which should help me gain more skills and become more useful on these forums aswell as on other forums.

I can contribute the group by creating applications (any kind of Windows' related applications is fine) and also helping with the cryptocurrency mining (if considered as computing).

I can tip you what are the best ASICs, what are the scam coins but not in a way to earn profit (because this isn't a money group, is it?).

What are your skills?

Coding in Visual Basic .NET and/or C# for Windows GUI and Metro (Win 8), Windows and Mac OS X management (Linux/Unix also but a bit less), Scrypt ASIC and GPU mining. Not skilled in hacking at all.

Tell us about yourself: (min. 50 words)

I love coding since I was 10 years old. Basically I do some applications like obfuscators, crypters and related RCE stuff (I can prove it if desired).

I'm now into Scrypt ASIC mining (for OMC and other coins). I started with mining when the marvellous Dogecoin appeared and I mined with a GTX 680.

I might be helpful in terms of computing and coding. I'm not into hacking and I won't enter that world. Of course, I'm skilled at doing RATs, crypters and silent miners but I don't use them.

I'll pass, hmu if you learn a real language
