did you signed in ? this website is changed now you need to sign in and allow the app .. i'm testing it now and the followers are adding,if yours not working you can send me your account .. and i will make it for you.. Trust me :)

JABEL - July 2, 2014, 5:22 am

Since they changed the website I hate it.

Once you log in your account will be added to the website creators tweetdeck and he will use your account to follow people on that website. He followed like 20 people an hour using my account which was annoying.

The only way to stop it is to revoke access to the tweetdeck app and quickly change your password.

Wish the website would go back to how it was before):

I never believe in the process of gaining followers in the first place. I have however seen everyone on the thread praising the whole idea. With that in place, i will have no excuse but be able o give this a try. I just want to ask whether the followers we are gaining are active or passive. It is very important because you may gain bigger numbers but in reality have no value to what you do and the task your perform on twitter. kindly share.
