

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Need graphics for new YouTube channel layout. Will pay.

Screenwriter - June 10, 2014, 10:20 pm

I need someone qualified with GFX to reply to this to help me make GFX for a YouTube channel and website. Helps if you have skype so we can stay in contact.

I will pay whatever you require if you are good enough, preferably cheap, just post some examples below of work that you have done and what you charge to do similar work.

My YouTube channel is mostly about motorcycles, dirtbikes, and fails. It is a compilation channel. I like a grimy/grunge look. I like silhouette art. It all must be stuff that cannot be copyrighted. It all must work with the new channel layout. If your examples are good enough I will send you a private message and work it out with you. If what you give me is good enough I may contact you in the future for GFX work on a website.

I will need an outro design with 4 boxes for next video, last video, and two un-labeled videos. It will need to be 1280x720p. It should be moto-oriented and grungy. with white boxes with an outline that are all the same size and each take up less than 30% of the total size. If you have done YouTube work before you probably know all of this and I don't need to explain it.

I will need a banner art that works well for all devices, mainly focusing on Computer and Mobile, but I do have quite a few views on TV other devices. If you don't already know all of the dimensions for each device study up on them as YouTube has all of this publicly documented.

I will need a channel avatar/profile picture that fits well and is high quality and grungy and it must say "FailsAndFights" or "FNF" somewhere on it, preferably centered.

I will need google+ artwork, twitter artwork, and facebook artwork as well as I am trying to expand just beyond my YouTube channel.

Thanks, please respond as I am willing to pay!