

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: OMC Ticker API

NETExplorer - June 10, 2014, 11:32 pm

<http://positron.pw/nonsite/omc/>

There it is people, it gets the past 50 transactions on AllCrypt and averages the selling price of all of them, I think this is pretty solid way of getting the worth of a coin. Also give you btc-e's value of 1 BTC in USD.

Updates every 600 seconds (10 minutes).

Don't worry about the first value, it's a backend thing :P

Maybe some of yall can find a use for it.

.Matt - June 10, 2014, 11:42 pm

Looks good, I don't advise using 30 seconds tho as Allcrypt will ban your ass so quickly :P

Crypto™ - June 11, 2014, 12:29 am

AllCrypt has some crazy rate limiting xP They only allow for the rough equivalent of once every 10 minutes.

NETExplorer - June 11, 2014, 10:44 am

(Jun 11, 2014 12:29 AM)Crypto™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) AllCrypt has some crazy rate limiting xP They only allow for the rough equivalent of once every 10 minutes.

Actually, it lets me about once every 15 seconds. And it doesn't update unless someone requests, that is what the timestamp is for. It checks if it is more than 30 seconds old.

So if it isn't used for a month, it won't update until it is requested again.

Crypto™ - June 11, 2014, 3:00 pm

(Jun 11, 2014 10:44 AM)PatPositron Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Actually, it lets me about once every 15 seconds. And it doesn't update unless someone requests, that is what the timestamp is for. It checks if it is more than 30 seconds old.

So if it isn't used for a month, it won't update until it is requested again.

Quote:API requests are limited to once per 15 seconds, and a total of 150 per rolling 24 hour period. This allows for an API request about once per 10 minutes.

It's pretty ridiculous, but yeah :/ If you exceed 150, you're throttled until the initial point of the 24 hour period passes.

NETExplorer - July 24, 2015, 10:41 pm

This deserves a , the ticker still works after a whole year

Abraham Lincoln - July 25, 2015, 2:34 am

Congrats on running for 1 year! Here, take a .

NETExplorer - July 25, 2015, 7:37 pm

(Jul 25, 2015 02:34 AM)Abraham Lincoln Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Congrats on running for 1 year! Here, take a
.
I appreciate the .! ?