Hey guy's...

Made this a while back and wasnt really happy with the shadowing, so reopened it to fix it up a bit.

Looks amazing. The lighting details and shadowing make everything seem so real.

Great Job Daemon.

Thanks, was an oldish piece that needed some love lol...

Not done a manip in a while, may have another crack at a few more.

Thanks for your comments guys...

Getting some stocks to make a new manip. Will post it up soon.

How did you cut her out? It looks like the pentool... right?

Yes sir...

Zoomed right in and cut, then refining edges. Then smooth it out.

I ask because the short area of her hair is very sharp, it somewhat sticks out, and ruins the illusion for me. However, most people won't be looking for something like that, and most people who see that wouldn't think "looks like she was cut and pasted".

Everything looks very good, I would just suggest more refinement on that area of her hair.

The hair is always a fucker to get perfect...

But thanks for your critique.

Major improvement from the first version to the second javie - June 15, 2014, 7:19 pm

I remember looking at all your manipulations on ttg, Your work is great.

Auxil - June 15, 2014, 7:38 pm

May I ask how you did the birds? Did you find some and cut them out? Or get one and duplicate it?

The birds were added by a custom brush.....

Considering you pen tooled the girl, added in clouds and birds and shaded/color corrected the whole image, it looks great.

8.2/10

I consider this more of a photo edit than a manip. I understand that there are manipulated elements, but the actual changes to the original image are so minimal.

Although, I will say- good job on sharpening up the background. Looks great in contrast to the original.

Honestly, normally not a huge fan of manips.

But this one, I quite like it.

The lighting is gorgeous, and the manip is done smoothly.

Grats.

Wouldn't worry too much about it, the hair looks fine. Only on her left (our right) does her hair look a little too dark than it should.

That's sick! You can truly see a difference between the before and after. Great job.
