It's my first time using PhotoShop and idk its pretty basic compared to some of the things I see on here but yea, thoughts?

its quite nice, the char you used can use a bit less light. besides that, its a cool thing, maybe add a nice piece of text with a super awesome cool font, and your done.

Depending on what kind of genre you want to have, its cool enough.

I just realized I posted in the wrong area there's a board for ratings

Um I was just copying the render and adding a different effect on each layer so idk how to make it less brighter actually

Im going to be 100% honest. I dont like this design at all. Its just a background with a HUGE empty spot and some anime image off google. Also this is the wrong section

Ouch right in the feels I'm still not done yet I was gonna add something to fill in that HUGE empty spot but this is my first time even using PhotoShop so everything was touch and go..

And did you even read the thread.. I know it's the wrong thread

I like this, I'm new to photo-shop as well and trust me you'll get more used to the basics and fundamentals. I'm having a blast doing this, you should try and lower the brightness of the render and fill in the empty spots :)

Approximately 16 hours at the most, I'm a fast learner.

I got to the hang of things, caught on pretty fast.

I never went through tutorials, just taught myself. 'Experimented' as I would call it. I've gotten lot's of advice from users here.
