I know some ways to obtain .edu addresses. Will consider posting a thread later on how to get .edu emails.

I currently use my legit one, as I am a actual college student ?.

May post a thread later on how to get .edu emails. I do believe there is some threads around though on how to do so.

Seems like all .edu websites do not offer the possibility to host a mail account on their site anymore... I believe it got abused...

If you find a cool quick way to get an .edu email please let me know, I wanted some of that Dreamspark<3?

Thanks.

b0ngt0ker420 - June 19, 2014, 6:02 pm

Some of the links aren't good anymore and the ones that do work I already have listed. I did add one though, that second web hoster. Thanks.

I ignored all the links for discounts, only looking for free things.

Lol, I bet you used that second .edu. They know better and only accept .edu emails from well known schools.

Updated thread, read.

I just wanted to let you know for the first method (which I am guessing is californiacolleges) you just have to speak to a live agent and they will send you an activation link, but they don't give out free emails anymore.
