Im getting these almost every day, and I am sick and tired of it.

I downloaded BlueScreenView

And this is what it tells me.

This was the last BSOD from yesterday.

Just for future reference, the BSOD issues goes in the Windows sections (depending of your Windows version), not in the White Hat Help section, thank you.

You have one of the most complicated BSOD to troubleshoot OP as the solution proposed by Microsoft for this particular BSOD is a Hotfix that never worked.

What were you doing or what are you doing when you're getting these BSODs ?

Alright, start by opening an elevated command prompt (with Admin Rights) and enter the following command :

Code sfc /scannow

Tell me what message it returns after the scan.

You indeed had some corrupted system files.

Now restart your computer like asked and tell me if you get any more BSODs.
