Thread: PuTTy VPS question.

Unova - June 27, 2014, 11:59 am

I've gotten suspended from a few webhosts for dos w/ a VPS.

What's a decent VPS company that'll either let me, or won't suspend me for dos?

Dedi servers are alright but they aren't cheap.

I don't need anything super powerful, I just need a host that I won't get suspended from for a decent price.

I know that Ecatel doesnt care but they only have dedicated. No host will let you waste resources on a VPS thats shared with other clients.

Ecatel have started to care about DoS now I think.

Unova - July 1, 2014, 5:30 am

Every VPS we have tried we ended up getting fucked over -.-

Ecatel no longer let's you spoof and they've been cracking down. It's no longer a good option.

There are no hosts that will ALLOW DoS or DDoS, but as long as you can keep the attacks to a reasonable level then most won't catch you. Using DNS amplification will help keep you under the radar, but still not 100% effective.

Thanks for the tip asylum! I'll give it a try, me and a buddy have been trying to set one up.

Vicellus Drum - July 2, 2014, 6:18 am

Message me on skype if you want some of my VPS's.

You just want a server to take down single IP's with? I'll give you one free lol. No SSH though but it's not needed.

Haunter - July 3, 2014, 3:51 pm

What a bunch of bloody idiots.
No one could give this poor kid a straight answer without ask him to PM you.
Just answer his bloody fucking question.
I apologizes for these idiots.

Offshore Hosts are the best and less likely to be detected.

AlibabaHost
FortaTrust
Scopehosts
shinjiru

No one will let you dos with a vps because all the other VPS on the same node go unresponsive when sending attacks.

temstin - July 3, 2014, 5:52 pm

lol why is everyone asking him to pm them. anyways VPS aren't good for ddosing, you're sharing the machine with someone else, you should look at offshore, spoofed, dedicated servers and even better are ones with no outgoing logs, or you can purchase a server from someone here on HF
