

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Advantage to multiple domains?

Folks - June 30, 2014, 11:44 am

Is there an advantage to have multiple domains only changing the extension? Like having Facebook.com and facebook.net for a new forum/community?

simgar98 - June 30, 2014, 11:45 am

A smaller chance of fakers once you get bigger....

Easier to access (if someone forgot the extension they can just try something?)

maureenaxelwood - June 30, 2014, 11:47 am

if its a large organisation and people access your site a lot you would make it easier since they wont need to remember the extensions

RTS - June 30, 2014, 12:29 pm

Sometimes if someone has accessed your site and forgot if it was a .net or .com they will still be redirected to the right site. Plus if you plan to make it big then you have the domains before someone else get them.

UNKNOWN - June 30, 2014, 3:54 pm

I would get all the main ones like .com .net .org .info

Would help prevent fishing sites

Crypto™ - June 30, 2014, 4:07 pm

Lots of reasons:Phishing prevention

Localization

CDN Domains

And more...

However, for a new site, there's really no reason to get more than a single domain.