No Asuna? What's to hype :(

Not sure if I should let the episodes build or watch weekly.

Manny - June 30, 2014, 3:07 pm

Well i'm happy to see one. I was debating on whether I should of made one or not.
Anyways i'm looking forward to see this.

They don't look all that good but one of the scenes from the 2nd preview looks like the UMP from MW2 and MW3 lol. The animation better be good or even better than CoD.

UMP is a real gun though? Not really from call of duty..

I can't wait until this saturday!
I'll probably watch the first episode with my friends :)

I'm super stoked for the new season, but I really want to let it build up a couple of episodes cause I hate that feeling of wanting to know what happens, but I have to wait a week it's torture hehe.

Hard to say what her exact position in the story is atm, she is a presence but.. she isn't directly related or important to the main story at this time. (And isn't so far in the novels)

I won't say anything more than that, don't want to possibly ruin anything for those who aren't up to date on the novels.

You'd think after all his statements saying how much he loved the two characters she'd have more of a presence.

Smexy - July 1, 2014, 8:52 am

I'm going to wait until the first 3 episodes are released, i will watch them all in a hour and then decide if i want to watch more.

#Doge - July 1, 2014, 2:36 pm

I'm currently confused about the storyline.
So what's the dilemma here anyway? It's not like they're going to be stuck in a game again right?

Anyway, saw the trailers and I think they're treading the Ecchi path.
Might not like it but.. who knows? Maybe it'll turn out great.
The first season ended up great. Wasn't expecting for a second season.

Maybe slight spoilers for anyone waiting for SAO II \(Click to View\)

Basic story is that a new game is becoming popular called Gun Gale Online and there's rumours that a mysterious someone has the ability to kill people in the game. Everyone goes in to investigate. That's the basics of it.

Bezo - July 1, 2014, 2:45 pm

I read somewhere that season two may be split into 2 arcs like season one. If that happens, I'm gonna have to end up reading the LN... They're probably going to skip some important info.

Ohh. That's quite nice. Maybe I'll really like it. Genre became "Mystery" lel

Sasaki Haise - July 1, 2014, 3:21 pm

It's not really Sword Art Online anymore.... since it uses guns and all.

Book is actually called Gun Gale Online - but its hard to drop such a marketable name as "SAO" when it did so well. This was probably the production companies decision to keep it called this. The name holds a lot of value.

Welp. Sounds like I'm going to drop this after 3 episodes right off the bat. So basically, the first two seasons and the romance within them were absolutely useless? WTF ?

Yea I know lol, still disappointing because SAO was a butchered gold mine. Let's see if the producers can actually make it a better anime this time round.

rozzokjames - July 1, 2014, 5:46 pm

Not a fan of the second arc. eeruh no asuna even (Maybe a little bit here and there)

Maybe they should of added onto more episodes of the first season. Just sword art online, few episodes each level up to 76 Or wherever it ended

I would of been happy..

Shenanigans™ - July 1, 2014, 5:53 pm

Im probably going to get hate for this, but Im not much a fan of Asuna anyway.

I'm just not a fan of shows that replace roles like that.

Teen wolf is a good example, Alison just looked like a whore.

If anything they will finish GGO in 14 episodes and use the rest for the ALO/Aincrad merged world side-stories like Excalibur and such.

Chitoge - July 1, 2014, 8:55 pm

I feel like I am not so excited for this as I am for other animes. I have a feeling this is just going to be an okay/subpar anime. Please prove me wrong though, I'd really like to have another season as good as/better than the first season.

I've heard that Kirito is a girl in it, which is upsetting.

I'm not saying that I'm not going to give it a shot, because I will but I am not too excited as I would be if Asuna and Kirito went on another adventure together in another world or something related to that.

He's not a girl, he just has feminine features that came with the skin he has. It's the rarest skin in the game or something.

Sejskaler - July 2, 2014, 4:20 pm

(Jul 2, 2014 03:38 PM)Nater Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) He's not a girl, he just has feminine features that came with the skin he has. It's the rarest skin in the game or something.

I will spoil a bit while answering this;

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

Well, yes, it is the rarest male model, he is really lucky to get it, this play quite a huge role for the start role, so basically, he's a trap.

Asuna will be there, just not in the game itself, there will be outside scenes, and I hope they remember to add a lot of what happened to Kirito after ALO and SAO, which they should be covered and introduce Asuna, I wonder if they will cover both books, and also if we will get the short-stories in here...

For another note, I am quite upset with how the city is built, from the shots I seen, it seems more futuristic, it should be kind of old-school/post-apocalyptic-western-ish
Which it doesn't seem like...

SIM-1980617 - July 3, 2014, 8:31 am

I really liked the old SAO, the fairy stuff was a little... ya know. I had no idea the second one was coming out so soon, I'm kind of excited to watch it.

Obli - July 3, 2014, 2:15 pm

Never liked Asuna in the first place tbh, I hope that they won't ruin it like with the fairy dance arc.

_wind - July 3, 2014, 2:18 pm

Not a big fan of GGO, mainly because Kirito looks really weird in his new avatar.

Maybe a futuristic bayonet-type thing?

Kina - July 5, 2014, 2:21 pm

Pretty hard for me to finish that first episode since I read the novels and know what they are already gonna say and explain. Sucks that it feels like, aside from the first couple minutes of episode 2, I don't feel that there will be any action till 3-4. Since the beginning of the LN goes really in depth to backstory and they really didn't make it far. If its 25 episodes though this sets a marvelous pace and I'm only getting more excited for the rest.

It is just like in SAO/ALO, MCs was Kirito and Asuna (Aincrad arc)/Suguha (ALO arc). And the GGO arc will not have fairy bullshit in it but they might air some ALO/SAO episodes from the side stories after they finish GGO.

Spoiler (Click to View)

That is not true at all, the reason is that it is another avatar, it is a very rare avatar, as such is randomly generated (I think that was how it is, been a long time since I read it), and therefore he ends with that skin, or well, else it is because there is a bug, I just remember he doesn't pick it himself.

I doubt he will have any other voice than his own, as it is just an avatar

The romance between Kirito and "the sniper" as I will refer her to here for your sake, is kinda there, but it is not too much, he will not lose Asuna and he will not engage in a relationship, basically, it is a triangle-ish drama, without much drama, but "the sniper" seems to fall in love with him indeed, it will not have any real affect on the whole thing except a couple of small cute scenes though ^^

Kirito's avatar is an extremely rare type (M9000 type) that occurs when the system misinterprets the player's brain waves and impulsively chooses the opposite gender

Well, for one, hes not actually a girl. He just has an avatar with an appearance that would make people think he is female at first glance. He also doesnt get to pick his avatar so yeah. ?

K?ng - July 6, 2014, 9:31 am

Kirito is NOT a girl, nor is his avatar a female avatar. It is a MALE avatar that is incredibly rare to the point that people would pay a shitload of money to buy it off someone else.

Spoiler \(Click to View\) The reason why Sinon admired Kirito was because of her tragic past and after hearing part of Kirito's past (SAO), she wanted to be as strong as him. They don't get into a relationship, and Kirito stays faithful to Asuna. There will be some people who call this a love triangle when it isn't really one at all.

To add on to this, it's incredibly rare because your accounts needs a huge amount of time clocked ingame to get a chance at randomly generating this skin. Kirito's account spent 2 years 24/7 + ALO time ingame.

Well, they completely murdered the ALO arc of the first season, but I still have high hopes for this show.

Ep1:

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

It was slow moving, but that's expected. The scene in the cafe took a lot of time in the LN they cut some off (Theorizing ways the amosphere could kill someone) before they reach the "Nope can't happen" type of thing. It's unfortunate that Sinon's first shot is a fan service shot, but on the other hand dat ass. Not too much to say, the second episode will probably be fairly slow too, as I believe it will focus on Sinon and her back story, but we might get some action.

They may end this episode with another fan shot with Kirito just getting in GGO and looking in the window.

I think its bad, the start of SAO was so perfect, ingame ingame ingame, explanation about skills things going around and a instant storymaker.

Like, I want to see a mmorpg that is about real money and real skills and a hacker who can kill people over a little cable.

Not 3 episodes of how everything went with a little gameplay.

It might be me, but I will rather wait till the 12 eps are released just so I can't flame the non-gameplay anymore.

His voice isn't even girlish.

So this is kinda weird.

But cool sword, no one uses it no one duel wields.

Still not amazed.

Because he's not a girl he's a m-9000 meaning a male character. Scrub.

His sex is still male in the game, when he checks whether he has boobs or not he doesn't at all so he's still a male, a slight variation in his voice would have taken place, for a whole girlish voice you'd have to get female hormones and all that. I doubt anyone wants to listen to kirito with a little girl's voice.

2. She took him for a girl due to his long hair and female face structure.

3. His voice sounds a bit girlish indeed.

Credits is the form of currency used in Gun Gale Online. The initial amount received at the start of the game is 1000 credits.

GGO is the only[4] VRMMO game that has a «game coin to real money conversion system». Not only can players purchase credits with Japanese yen, but credits earned inside the game can be converted into yen, at a rate of 100 credits to 1 yen (the rate in December 2025).

Am I the only one who likes Sinon more than Asuna?

Sinon has been through some rough stuff and she was never spoiled by anyone. She seems mature enough and understands well the strategy of GGO.

Asuna was spoiled by her daddy and over-affectionate girl, only thing she really went through was SAO and she was lucky to meet Kirito. Kirito must have faced a lot of psychological troubles during his time in SAO, as in when Sachi dies and when his other friends die, etc...

Overall Sinon is better than Asuna IMO. You wouldn't expect Sinon to become ridiculously over-affectionate like Asuna.

(never liked asuna to begin with)

I do like Sinon more than Asuna but I think your judgment on Asuna is a bit harsh. She didn't have a tough life like Sinon, but I wouldn't consider her a spoiled girl, atleast that's not how she acts at all. You don't need to have a rough life to be interesting or have depth.

Yeah Asuna is clingy at times and over-affectionate while Sinon seems more shy and reserved, but that's just because they have different personalities and just depends what you prefer.

Regarding the 2nd season it's pretty cool, I thought it wouldn't like it since it's gun related and I usually prefer close combat action, just appeals more to me, but since kirito didn't convert to guns and still has his sword I'm sure it will be just as exciting to watch.

Lyralei - August 2, 2014, 6:42 am

Asuna was ment to act that perfect girlfriend character so im sure thats why she isn't that as interesting as Sinon :)

i personally don't hate asuna but yeah she ain't that as interesting.

I can't believe this energy sword bullshit is actually going to work. This is why the anime would be so much better without Kirito this time around.

This is infact true due to the fact when kirito faced the final boss in SAO season 1.

Lyrlei - August 4, 2014, 3:14 am

I think the sword does work, if anyone have played the game Gunz, it kind of works the similar way. Some are pro with swords and some are good with guns, I just hope Kirito won't go inb4 op.

Spoiler \(Click to View\) The server owners of GGO are in the US and do not want to cooperate with the Japanese. This info wasn't said in the anime, I think. Anyways, the reason why they can't just keep going around is because it would cause widespread panic to the public since there is yet another murder spree caused by nervegear and they don't know how the person is killing the players (if he even is). Of course, in the end, they figure out how he does it and his identity, but at the current moment, they do not.

As for Kirito's relationship with the guy, he met them personally in SAO.

I don't remember Kirito finding out Death Gun was part of Laughing Coffin until much later - like.. when they fight at the end of the arc later, though he did feel that he knew Death Gun before from -somewhere- he just didn't know where. It's a minor thing anyway though. Also the representation of the beam sword was weird. They always made it out to be a one hit kill, not a "one-hit-now your stunned until you slowly die". But I guess him just cutting the dude in half is much less grandiose.

someone has 1 out of 5 wins, they'll be ineligible to enter.

\(Click to View\)Best bet is to wait to find out about their relationship and how it develops. Last episode showed some foreshadowing to Sinon liking Kirito, so we'll see. No point comparing the LN to the anime, they'll both be different just like the first season. Screenplays are always different to the manga/book.

I personally like these type of episodes, I liked SAO for the plot not the action. However it feels like nothing is really accomplished, so I might just stack up the episodes.

Jasic - August 16, 2014, 5:45 pm

I was really disappointed as well tbh.

I was kinda hoping to see the tournament fight, the episode was really just being dragged along.

Nothing really happened besides Sinon getting pissed off & Kirito getting sad about killing people in SOA xD

On a different note I often wonder if I should just marathon this anime once all the episodes are done for the fact that this anime focuses a lot on the plot not just action scenes which is why there are so many episodes.

But next episode should be quite exciting so I guess everything is fine. ?

TBH, I enjoy this a lot more than the action packed S1 because in S1, if you read the LN, they skipped over so many important facts. In this, they're actually including the characters personalities and better development (Kirito's).

I bet their going to finish GGO by like EP 16-18 and then they're going to do the next arc 'Mother's Rosario' for 7-9 episodes. (This arc is short.)

Escapism is the main people watch shows but saying too much crying ruins it is silly. Shows like Clannad wouldn't be so popular if they were ruined because of something upsetting to the viewer.

I read something where a guy elaborated on this, and it was interesting. If we can develop robots that do our every-day tasks, couldn't we basically flee into the VR world? If robots can take care of farms and everything else that needs doing on this planet, couldn't we literally be in VR the whole day, an hour out to check on things, and then go to sleep and repeat? There would be no need for wars in real life like this if just everyone entered VR.

And don't give me the "robots are gonna take over" bullshit. The type of robots I'm talking about are machines designed to do something. If you've ever been into programming you know what I'm talking about. It's like a loop

Code If cow is hungry feed it;

If plants haven't been checked for water in (x hours)
check plants for water;

If plants needs watering
Water plants;

This type of thing. They couldn't possibly harm us in any way because that's all they are set to do. They have no capability of developing other ways of thinking unless we for some reason experiment with some brain-shit. Which is why we won't.

Just felt like elaborating on the robot part. Back to the topic, Imo it would be awesome. I'm waiting for the day where I can live my perfect life in VR without having to worry about all the bullshit of the real world.

The only issue I see with this is new-born people lacking knowledge etc. They will need some education, and we're gonna need teachers for that. Developing robot teachers to teach humans isn't probably gonna be a very good idea. Then again kids could be home-learnt... But then we would all be stupid after a bit. No one would be able to take care of the robots because no one knows how the operate.

I think this OP sounds really good with guitar. Yeah i do program so i know what your talking about. As long as we don't give robots the power to learn or think were fine. Which the government and scientists are trying to do now. There trying to make robots who are like a clone of humans and you would never tell the difference. The scary part is.... there not far from completion.

Source: Documentary's on people who tell government things and seen there projects from the eye. Look it up on netflix or google :p They show actual footage.

I honestly think that shot wasn't fired from desu gun. It was probably kirito, or maybe someone else that disrupts him. Sinon won't die, we've already got a lot of her backstory and stuff... That makes no sense.

Death Gun used the cloak along with a zooming-in device or binoculars to find out the person's address when they signed up for BoB. Because if you were to close to them while they were signing up, your screen or what you could see would start to blur.

Ah, my memory is a bit bad regarding SAO, seeing as it's been more than a year since I read the light novels, and I don't even really like SAO, so I didn't store all that info in my head.

But, is it explicitly said that he is part of laughing coffin?

Because, he wasn't in SAO, where laughing coffin was made.

Also, death gun isn't one person, it's he and his brother.

One injects the drugs that kill the person, while the other one shoots them in-game.

SAO is basically built upon cliffhangers.

Knowing the cliffhangers makes it an extremely dull show.

However, the alicization arc doesn't have that many cliffhanger parts, so that'll be interesting to see if it gets an adaption.

Spoiler to your spoiler \(Click to View\)

The one in the game was the one who was originally in LC. His name in SAO was Xaxa, but he had some sort of title like red-eye or something, not sure. When he got back to reality after Kirito beat Aincrad, his younger brother started to idolize him when xaxa started telling his younger brother the stories of how he killed people. So they wanted to do something more 'awesome' (not sure how to put it) and decided to create the concept of death gun.

I'm pretty impressed so far this season. It started off pretty slow, but we're finally getting into the awesome action that made me love the first season. First of all I'd just like to point out that I think most people overexaggerate the whole incest thing. Sugu told him that he loves him, which kind of makes sense after all the time they've spent together as a brother/sister type thing, when they aren't brother/sister. It never went any further than that. They accept it's not supposed to happen and move on etc,

Anyway, yeah, it's not gonna be like that in the future. Alicization is said to be an awesome arc (there's GGO, then a short arc, then alicization). So let's hope for the best :D

Most people that read the LNs said that they like alicization the best (more than aincrad)

I know it didn't go that far, I just can't stand Sugu's character at all. I thought the main focus of the 2nd arc was Asuna and Kirito's relationship, but it felt like it was focused on Kirito and Sugu's relationship. I understand that their relationship is weird because of Kirito being in SAO for a couple years, but Sugu falling in love with him? Really?.. The 1st arc of SAO was bad ass, but the 2nd arc kind of felt like the last part of Death Note to me. I think it hurt the reputation of the series (plus the tentacle scene around episode 22). They took a show about survival and action and took it down the sibling romance route. But I'm glad that they've moved on. I really over react to this but it's just really what my honest take on the 2nd arc is. It's over, and now we have some bad ass Death Gun action with Kirito deflecting bullets with a light saber.

After this GGO Arc, there's another arc for SAO. Don't open the spoiler if you don't want to know what it's called. Don't quote this either.

Spoiler \(Click to View\) The next arc is probably going to be called or something similar to "Mother's Rosario".

This arc is kind of tragic, that's what I think anyways. It is pretty short though, it's only 1 book (light novel) compared to GGO which is 2 books. (Aincrad arc and ALO arc both had 2 books ea for them, that's why it seemed rushed.

What's most likely to happen is GGO ending around ep 13-14, then they put in a bit of the Early and Late side stories before starting Mother's Rosario which will end this season (probably the last 8-10 episodes).

So there's like 2 more GGO episodes, then a few with Early and Late, and then like 8-10 Mother's Rosario.
(you may have heard 'Caliber' somewhere, it's part of Early and Late)

More cliffhanger online stuff. That's fun.

jasont20015 - September 20, 2014, 11:34 am at least this episode had action :D

butwhatif - September 20, 2014, 11:36 am

Soooo the second season really sucks. I only watch it when I got nothing else to do. There is almost no fighting only that Sinon crying.

zyvox - September 20, 2014, 11:57 am

Cliffhanger wasn't so exciting imo, we all know who's gonna win in the end anyway, eh?
Also looks like Sinon finally got her shit together
Finally some actual action though, that was great. I assume they will wrap up the GGO arc next week.

It's pretty good i guess- desu gun has surprises everywhere.

Ryuujinx - September 21, 2014, 3:20 pm

Man. The last part of this arc is dragging on. I don't think we really needed to sit in a cave for 3 episodes discussing desu gun. I actually thought it would wrap up an episode or two ago, but we finally get into it and the fight is once again delayed.

neil5050 - September 21, 2014, 3:22 pm

it takes 4 episodes to see any action, then break, and then we have to wait a few more episodes for it to get good again.

Ryuujinx - September 21, 2014, 3:38 pm

My guess is that next episode will be the fight, and end with a cliffhanger of Well it's a bit different this time. The next episodes until 18 or 19 are gonna be ALO and side stories etc, idk what it's about tbh. But after that it's Mother's Rosario and it's supposed to be pretty sad.

Kirito is a side character here, we barely see him I think. Asuna/Konna in the main roles. Supposed to be good and very sad.

But then next season I guess it is, we enter Alicization. Most people who read the light novels agree it's the best arc, which means above Aincrad. I have high expectations for it and hope they pull it off :p

Didn't read up too much about it to avoid further spoilers but imagine her living a happy life and fighting bravely and she's probably gonna be everyone's best girl (you can view videos of her from the SAO game on youtube, it's the same voice actor and roughly same graphics). She's a loving caring girl with a cute & likeable voice and you just fall in love with her looks as well. When things might start looking bright (idk the story, just guessing here) she dies from it as well. Just like her family. Oh god the amount of feels that would come if I didn't know this. And probably yet even if I know it's gonna be hard x-x

If this story follows norse mythology, which it seems to be doing, I probably know how this arc is gonna turn out

So far,

Girl in the cage = freya

Excalibur = thor's hammer, (or Mjölñir)

Thrym = guy who stole thor's hammer (or excalibur)

"Trymskvadet", or in English "Lay of Thrym" is the name of the story or w/e the heck you call it in english no idea

I'm just gonna go ahead and spoiler tag this just in case. I don't know if this is gonna happen or not but it probably will tbh:

This is the norse story, it may or may not make you think spoilers although I don't directly mention any \(Click to View\)

In the story, tl;dr:

Thor's hammer has been stolen by Thrym, so he dresses up as a girl called Frøya (Freya?) to go there to "marry him" and get his hammer back. He plays along and even though Thrym questions it a lot like how he eats so much and drinks so much beer etc, but he manages to brush it off. Once he gets his hands on the hammer he just goes bambambam and slays them all and goes back safely with his hammer.

So I assume this will happen in SAO

My assumptions, may or may not be correct and thus spoilers \(Click to View\)

The girl in the cage is freya, the reason she's in a case isn't relevant at all, just a way to put her there. Anyway I guess this is the true owner of Excalibur or some motherfucker transformed to a girl with a spell or potion. Now they go to the ice king that definitely is Thrym that stole Excalibur from someone, and they are probably gonna fight and get absolutely smashed until the girl gets her hands on Excalibur. At that point she's gonna turn into her true form, a manly man, Klein is definitely gonna have a "WHAAAAAAT" scene at this point, and then epic explosions, pewpewpew & bambambam and freya (or whoever it really is) saves the day and everyone is like ARIGATOU GOZAIMASU and the world didn't go ragnarok after all. Yet.

Can't properly recall if there's more to the story.

Sucks to be scandinavian huh, most likely have half or most of it spoiled then.

THANKS OBAMA

What? Mother's Rosario isn't gonna ruin SAO at all, it's a great arc. Also they are more than likely going to make season 3 (Alicization) seeing how SAO is a money-machine.

Also it's likely that the progressive manga will be adapted into an anime tbh (Aincrad floor 1-100, no time skips). This might be a long time until tho

I'm not trying to troll but this anime is utter shit. complete cancerous shit. I don't understand what all the hype about this show is, and why it has even a single good review. I managed to force myself to watch a bunch of episodes, and I don't think I've ever witnessed a more empty meaningless plot in my entire life.

There was literally a handful of episodes where the main character was living on a farm with some orange haired chick, doing absolutely nothing. Aren't they like 12 years old, wtf are they doing trying to act like they're grown. How is this entertaining. Those are precious hours of my life that I will never get back.

I see this thread is 69 pages long, am I missing something or can someone give me 1 valid reason on why this show is good.

Alright first of all this is the SAO II discussion thread, which is the second season and it's very different from the first season you're talking about. That being said, the first season was better in most people's opinions. So if you don't like it just go ahead and drop the show right now.

As to answer you,

They are 16 years old at the time they move into the cabin iirc, and because this game basically is their life at this point (like 2 years in already?), they wanted some time off the front lines to relieve the stress.

What's good/fun about this anime? I guess the whole video game aspect doesn't appeal to you, but in my opinion it's very entertaining to watch how they handle everything I've experienced myself when playing MMORPGs. The fighting is nice, I like the characters and the graphics of the anime are the type I like. The permadeath aspect to the game makes it more interesting and exciting because the stakes are high. To be able to return to their normal lives they're gonna have to keep fighting, and by doing that they risk their lives.

I don't know about your age but I guess this anime most appeals to ~13-25 (or 30 maybe) year olds mostly. I'm saying this because I believe that most of the people actively playing MMORPGs today are in that age range, and watching this anime without having an affection to video games is most likely gonna drastically change the way you view the anime and the enjoyment of it.

I think it's great to watch how people live in a video game, because I'm gonna be honest here, I want to do that too. It's not realistically gonna happen due to me needing to have a job and a life outside the game aswell, but it would be cool. And because I can't experience it myself I think it's great that I can watch SAO to see how they do it.

I think it's great to see how they've made the game world. It's fun how there are actual people getting professions in-game to become blacksmiths and cooks and the alikes. It'd also be pretty cool for me to participate in a raid battle myself in "real life", seriously, that would be so rad.

SAO definitely have flaws like time skips, some rushed episodes and kirito being Jesus. But when you watch anime, you should watch it for entertainment and not sit there trying to nitpick out all the flaws and proceed to go to an internet site to write a review on how horrible the anime was because of the flaws you find.

The soundtrack is just amazing for SAO. Examples are Swordland and A Tender Feeling, the first one being a great battle theme and the second one being kind of a relaxing or sad song depending on what you think of. Furthermore the animation quality is mostly great, I like the battle effects and I love how the characters look.

Bottom line here, opinions on anime and tastes are very very subjective and WILL vary from person to person. Just because a show is 10/10 in every fucking aspect I might still give it a 3 because I didn't like it for some reason. It's the same way here. A lot of people like SAO, however you didn't enjoy it for some reason. And that's fine, but you asked why I like SAO and my reason is stated above. That being said I think a lot of people like SAO because of the affiliation with video games, because a lot of people who watch anime also play video games. And SAO is mostly aimed at teenagers, which are the ones playing the most video games (I believe).

leegizm - November 10, 2014, 7:28 am

The Japanese government is trying to make super crazy advanced AI, so they've made a VR that connects to your "soul" directly. Everyone outside of Kirito is a fake soul that they are going to use as AI. Kirito was originally doing testing for them, then gets attacked by the third death gun and dies. Before they can revive him part of his brain gets fucked up and having him use the VR thing fixes it or some shit. Then he spends times in there and SAO does SAO things. It's pretty good, but I feel it's kinda too long. It's currently 7 volumes long (9-15), the 15th isn't translated yet so I don't know if it ends the arc or if there will be an 8th for this arc.

The Japanese government is trying to make super crazy advanced AI, so they've made a VR that connects to your "soul" directly. Everyone outside of Kirito is a fake soul that they are going to use as AI. Kirito was originally doing testing for them, then gets attacked by the third death gun and dies.

Before they can revive him part of his brain gets fucked up and having him use the VR thing fixes it or some shit. Then he spends times in there and SAO does SAO things. It's pretty good, but I feel it's kinda too long. It's currently 7 volumes long (9-15), the 15th isn't translated yet so I don't know if it ends the arc or if there will be an 8th for this arc.

Yeah, he gets drugged with the shit in the GGO arc. He gets revived obviously with part of his brain fucked up which lead to the events of the Alicization arc because they're trying to fix it. He's also not quite as OP in that arc and gets his ass kicked a couple times. The quality of writing goes up a fair bit imo.

Anyway I think it would be hilarious if the season ended with him dying and a "to be continued". It'd be like, Season 1 of code geass.

Here's a mediafire with all the translated LNs so far if you want to read them. Vol 15 is currently in the process of being translated.

TBH, this was how SAO 1 was supposed to be paced. The reasons why SAO 1 was more exciting was because there was an actual risk of dying and that the adaption mostly showed combat scenes instead of character developmental scenes.

Sure they had that from time to time, but it did not give enough development to the characters which made Kirito seem like a cheat. BTW, in just s1 of SAO, they rushed through 4 volumes of the LN, 2 for Aincrad, and 2 for ALO.

I kind of want to see more of what's going on with Asuna's real life, as that seems like it's going to be the main portion of this arc.

Asuna gets d/ced due to mommy issues

Kirito takes over

It's a modified version of Luminous Sword, they used it somewhere in GGO aswell I think. It's amazing indeed, but the OST isn't released yet so we're gonna have to wait for that.

Luminous Sword is a part of the season 1 OST (recognizable part 0.35->)

Just call it arc like the mass does- but kirito appearing and saving the day with an epic scene is kind of getting typical- i sometimes feel sorry for the other 'players' that sometimes i wish there'd be a worthy antagonist but looking at it right now and this far- most likely no- but it was a fun ride.

Still, Kirito couldn't win against Yuune so it means that there's still players stronger than him (assuming he didn't loose on purpose). The thing is that, it's complicated. Kirito fought WAY harder when lives were in danger (in SAO and GGO) then right now in ALO. But you remember when he was with his sister, trying to get to a new city in ALO (when he just got in init) and they were trapped on the bridge ? He told his sister that he wouldn't let anyone in his party die and fought until the end (even if he won). The question I have right now is : did that feeling die when he started realizing that no one life's in danger anymore, or will it comeback only when things really matters ? That's personally how I see it.

Do you mean Konno Yuuki? If so then...

Spoiler (Click to View) You should know I highly doubt he was actually putting his all into it, we all know he's stronger than Asuna and she had an almost even match with Konno Yuuki, so it would make sense that he was merely testing her and going slow. Hell if he was going at his all, he would of beaten her with a single swipe from Excalibur.

Another conclusion is he was trying, but he was having to level his one handed sword skill enough in order to wield Excalibur, because when he got it he claimed "It's still to heavy".

Who knows for sure really... I like to think our badass Kirito wasn't going at his fullest, and was merely testing around with people.

Lastly,

Spoiler (Click to View)

Oh and secondly... another concern of mine, doesn't Kirito still have admin access over all games built on the world seed? If so why didn't he use it on Gun Gale Online to track down Death Gun... and why doesn't he use it to protect people nowadays? Or was that reset after Alfheim or whatever?

I'm a bit confused, it's been awhile since I've watched it.

Oh and why does it even matter? You say you shouldn't be in this thread if you're not caught up, so you should be able to answer the spoilers (at least understand them) without a problem.

I think you misunderstood what I meant.

There's two type of spoilers:

1- Spoilers for those who haven't caught up to the anime, for example people who only watched up to episode 10 in season 2, so if your spoiler was about Death Gun it would be a spoiler for them, but not for someone who has caught up.

2- Spoilers from the light novels, ahead of the anime. These are spoilers for people who even are caught up to the anime, but haven't read the books.

What I mean is that we shouldn't spoiler tag #1, because if you haven't caught up with the anime you shouldn't be in the discussion thread for it.

Therefore we should just spoiler tag if we're AHEAD of the anime (#2), for example if you're talking about something that hasn't happened yet like who Death Gun was if we still were in the middle of GGO; or something from Alicization.

So unless your spoilers are actually tagged for example [sp=episode 20], I'm not going to open them (and probably most other people aswell) because I don't know if it's a light novel spoiler or if it's something you spoiler tagged in case someone here hasn't caught up with the anime. This is why I say that everything posted in here that has already happened in the anime shouldn't be spoiler tagged; and things that are from the light novels ahead of the anime should. At least if you want people to actually read your spoilers. Because most people here haven't read the light novels and won't open a spoiler that just says "spoiler" because it could be something about a character's death that hasn't happened yet for example.

Is that enough to prove that he's far stronger?

True, while I also think Kirito is stronger (Jesus-kun*), Yuuki does have a 11-hit combo (it was 11 right) and a faster reaction time than Kirito.

She also...(light novel spoiler) \(Click to View\) lives in a full dive machine, doesn't she? (or something). I'm not gonna open spoilers as replies to this cause I don't know too much (well that she dies), but fuck I alt+f4ed as soon as I could :(

So I think they wanna leave it kind of as a question who of them are actually the strongest and not test it. They might test it later though, I don't know.

If he really wanted to win, he would have used everything he could in his power, hence why I say that when Kirito don't think that anyone is in danger or fighting isn't worth it, he doesn't give himself 100%, which could be his weakness.

Yeah but at the same time it's not like Kirito had to win for some reason, so he probably just didn't give it his all.

That said it leaves a question which one of the two is the strongest which is interesting. We can only assume :p

Loved this ep, lots of fighting, badassery from both Kirito and Asuna, and also Yuuki.

The end is a bit of a taste of what's to come I guess, I suppose next ep is where it starts getting sad :/

Nevertheless SAO is picking back up to being good imo.

Oh right, my bad. Well personally I don't mind it, but they should either make the romance a core part or not have it at all. I'd be all fine with them developing Kirito x Asuna relationship if they chose to go that way; or if they dropped it overall I'd also be fine with it. But right now they're kind of just half-assing it so I guess I agree with you. What can you do though, it's based off books.

No obvious build-up to season 3 and a nice way to wrap it up, but I'd be surprised if they didn't make a season 3 considering the numbers SAO is getting

I guess the only kind of 'build-up' we got was that Asuna said she'd follow Kirito wherever he goes.

Well, I've read all the light novels & the alicization arc is the best arc of SAO.

The part where you are at is very long & has various scientific terms so I can only say Good luck in reading it all as it may frustrate you in the midway.

I'd explain it into details but it will be too long so just to keep your interest in this.

Here are a few things that happen:

Kirito is attacked trying to save Asuna.

He gets hospitalized & is then kidnapped.

The starting chapter is a memory of the gameplay in the Alicization arc & when Kirito is hospitalized then he goes into diving again.

You should keep on reading more.

So does anyone know if they are planning to make a season 3??
