Stub server is encryptable.

Panel Screenshot (Click to View)

Currently in BETA (v1). Please PM me (or e-mail us at rproxyproject@gmail.com) with inquiries, bug reports, or for support.

Need more than 50 max connections? PM me (or e-mail us at rproxyproject@gmail.com) for a custom package.

Alan Turing - July 7, 2014, 2:53 pm

I'm partner with Squidward. Do not hesitate to ask us your questions !

We can also make custom packages if you need more than 50 maximum connections.

I'm not sure what that is. PM me with inquiries.

EDIT: No, those are just standard proxy servers for sale.

Same question from me... could we sell the vicsocks?

Well you can, somewhat, they're private and have an IP filter that applies to all proxies.

We plan to change this up in the future.

AntraXoZ - July 7, 2014, 3:42 pm

What do you mean with IP Filter? Since you say, "you can" ?

Alan Turing - July 7, 2014, 3:48 pm

(Jul 7, 2014 03:42 PM)AntraXoZ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What do you mean with IP Filter? Since you say, "you can" ?

Only one connection at a time to the proxies is possible.

So you can share it with one person.

AntraXoZ - July 7, 2014, 3:49 pm

I just saw in the panel what you mean.. well if i have 20 Socks and want to sell each Sock to one people it would be not possible.. since it can always only use one person one socks from me..

Well would be lot better if , i have 20 socks that 20 people can use my socks.. everbody gets his unique socks.

I've added a panel screenshot to the OP. Feel free to PM me if you still don't understand.

A per-proxy filter is in the plans for a future update.

Vouch for these two. The upcoming ideas and updates are going to be phenomenal!

Die Jude - July 7, 2014, 5:14 pm

This looks a very good product, going to purchase once I get some money! GLWS OP.

Squidward - July 7, 2014, 7:22 pm

Thanks for the vouches guys! Updates coming soon.

Alan Turing - July 8, 2014, 1:30 am

As squid said, update is coming!

But we need your suggestions, you can tell us what you need here :

You give an executable, you give a webpanel -> but you charge per month? Why dont you sell the whole product instead of rent?

(Jul 8, 2014 11:32 AM)jahson Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You give an executable, you give a webpanel -> but you charge per month? Why dont you sell the whole product instead of rent?

This is because we also provide hosting for the panel. You log in through our website and you got your web panel.

Anyway, you can PM us for a custom package if you want to host it on a private server.

NohTow - July 8, 2014, 12:18 pm

Vouch for Alan Turing, HQ member :)

Goodies - July 8, 2014, 1:08 pm

Huge vouch for Squidward. This seems like a very unique product. If you are interested in running a botnet, a reverse proxy is almost a requirement. Do not hesitate to buy.

Kasual™ - July 8, 2014, 3:55 pm

This looks fucking awesome! I will be buying this very very soon!

diesiel - July 8, 2014, 4:12 pm

It would be better if you could have the ability to connect to each reverse proxy, and have a specific URL that lists all of the vics in a similar format:

Code 127.0.0.1:5001

127.0.0.1:5002

127.0.0.1:5003

127.0.0.1:5004

127.0.0.1:5005

..

..each port connects to a different computer

To save the amount of ports used, you can do the exact same thing but select which you'd like to use in the panel.

In a later update when we add a separate IP filter port port we will have to do something like that.

Maybe you'd like to connect to multiple ports simultaenously, if you wish to acheive your task faster and need a large list of IPS to use with some multi-threaded application...

Currently you're limited to using one OUT_IP, i propose to open them all up so you effectively have a large reverse proxy list that you can use.

Yep, I know what you mean, and that's planned along with IP filtering per server.

Hello,

So we need to make a executable on slave and after with the web panel we can use them as socks 5 ? How configure the computer for use the proxy ? Does it works with Tor ?

Yes, you download the executable and run it on the slave and it shows up in the web panel. The only configuration you need to do is the IP filter and such in the web panel. What do you mean "with Tor"?

DCreavers2 - July 9, 2014, 10:35 am

We get the installs, give them to you and you LIMIT the connections?

Why limit? Are all the proxies pooled together for all customers?

Squidward - July 9, 2014, 10:38 am

We don't get your installs or even access to the proxies. The amount of servers that can be connected is currently limited to limit server load and keep things stable. As stated in the OP, you can PM us for a custom package where it would be hosted on your own server with many more max connections.

Your servers act as proxies only for you - with the incoming IP filter.

As long as SOCKS5 is supported in the browser then you should be fine. ?

Unless you mean between our server and the stub server, then no, it's not possible just yet, but we may add that feature.

This is a nice idea. We will add it on a future update.

How is this different from proxifier?

Squidward - July 19, 2014, 6:09 pm

(Jul 19, 2014 06:05 PM)LionHeartLow Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) How is this different from proxifier?

Proxifier just allows you to run applications through a proxy.

This allows you to turn a PC's network into your own proxy - which can also be used to proxifier.

Yes it is, just go to <http://www.rproxy.co/buy.php> to buy a basic package.

If you need more than 50 connections, contact us for a custom one.

rProxy update (1.1) is now available!

Changelog :

- Independent proxy use (IP:PORT for each proxy)
- Mutex
- Fixed some bugs
- Improved security

We can now also accept paypal payment from trusted members.
